SUNLIGHT A CAPTIVE OF THE MOON

The moon today cast a ghostly pall across more than half the face of the sun during an eclipse that lasted from 10:35 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Independent-Journal photographer Bob Hax through multi-exposure caught these phases of the celestial event beyond the cross atop St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael. The eclipse brought a glowing dimness to the Marin landscape as Earth's satellite passed between it and sun.

FLEES INTO NIGHT

Thief, Yachtsman Exchange Shots

A San Rafael yachtsman and a would-be thief blazed away at each other with handguns behind the Disco store at 555 Francisco Boulevard at 12:45 a.m. today after the sailor interrupted a burglary, police reported.

Thomas C. Abbott, who lives aboard a boat moored at Dock 4 in the San Rafael Yacht Harbor behind the store, told police he noticed a light colored station wagon parked close to the wire mesh fence enclosing the store's rear yard and, suspecting trouble, took his .9-mm automatic pistol and walked over.

When he was about 60 feet from the car a man, who had been pushing a power lawn mower from the fenced area to the car, suddenly ran to the car and jumped into the passenger seat. The driver then leaned out his window and fired a shot at Abbott, the yachtsman said.

Abbott, unhit, dropped to the ground and fired four shots, all of which hit the car, he claimed. The car sped off on Francisco Boulevard toward Grand Avenue. Abbott returned to his boat and called police on his ship-to-shore radio but the car was not located.

The burglars had cut the wire chain link fence to enter the yard. A store official said nothing other than the mower appeared to have been moved.

Drowning Probed In Mystery Death

The mystery surrounding the death of a 21-year-old Sausalito youth deepened today as an autopsy revealed he died from drowning.

James Michael Letsos was found dead in his bed shortly before 9 a.m. yesterday. How he got there after drowning was still unexplained today.

Sheriff's officers worked most of the night trying to piece together the youth's last hours and reported today he had fought with his brother, Mathew Michael Letsos, 18, about 11 p.m. Tuesday.

The younger Letsos indicated he and his brother had had a beef about a dog outside the Eden Roc Apartments where the dead man lived, Lt. Guido Battaglia reported.

A beer can opener used in the fight was apparently responsible for a series of small cuts on the dead man's face, Battaglia said.

$5 MILLION PROPOSED

Span Panel Favors Commute Crash Plan

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

More than $5 million should be earmarked for a new transit system from the reserves of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District, a committee of district directors recommended yesterday.

The money would go a long way toward financing a $7.7 million crash program to get the district into the commuter bus business by next spring, as proposed yesterday by Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring.

But the committee split sharply on the tough question of how to divide the district's financial power among bus, ferry and rapid transit facilities — all of which are anticipated in future years.

The debate, however, was postponed to another special committee meeting at 9 a.m. next Thursday at district offices at the toll plaza. The chairman of the joint commuters' affairs and finance-auditing committee, Ben K. Lerer of San Francisco, told disputing directors, "you boys can put on your gloves and express yourself all you want then."

In one of the few displays of unanimity, committee members also recommended that the full board approve Luehring's proposal that the district seek to add enough bus and ferry service to hold congestion at the 1968 level. This would mean an additional 20,000 daily commuters would have to be attracted to public transit by 1980, Luehring said.

Luehring's transit program was reported in detail in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

District Auditor Gordon E. Dahlgren reported that reserves will total an estimated $28,770,000 on Nov. 30. Of this amount, $14,289,000 must be saved to pay bond retirement and interest, repay a state loan, and rebate taxes to counties in the district.

Of the $14,481,000 that then would be left, $9 million has been earmarked for major repairs and maintenance, a new roadway and other improvements, thus leaving $5,481,000 for transit.

However, under a new state law that restricts use of district reserves until it submits a long-range plan for its future transit operations, only half of the net reserve can be spent for buses, 30 per cent for ferries. Twenty per cent must be kept to carry out the recommendations of the long-range plan. The plan is due before the 1971 Legislature.

This all boiled down to $2,740,5000 for buses, $1,644,300 for ferries, and $1,096,200 for the long-range transit facilities. These amounts from existing funds would be increased, of course, as the district has an excess of revenue over expenses of more than $3 million a year.

Luehring explained that the figures meant that the district

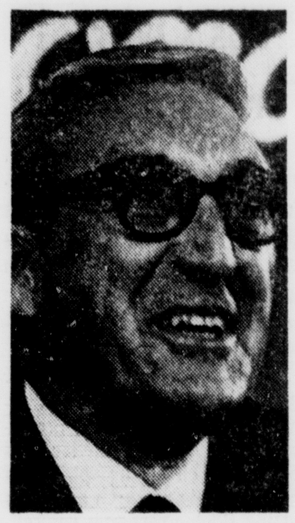
Knudsen, Ford's President, Fired



SEMON KNUDSEN
Ford honeymoon over

Surprise Action In Banner Sales Year

DETROIT (AP)—Semon Knudsen, who was lured away from General Motors to become president of the Ford Motor Co., a year and a half ago, was fired by Ford today.

Knudsen said that Henry Ford II, board chairman, told him nine days ago he was leaving because "things had not worked out as he had hoped."

Knudsen, apparently puzzled by the decision, issued a statement saying, "He (Ford) never indicated to me any dissatisfaction with my services or the direction the company was taking."

Ford has been enjoying one of its best sales years yet in the domestic auto market.

Henry Ford issued a statement saying Knudsen was leaving "with my appreciation for his services to the company these past 19 months.

"Even though things did not work out as I had hoped they might, Mr. Knudsen has my respect and my very best wishes for success in what I am sure will be the many active useful years ahead of him."

MAKES PROGRESS

Ford said Knudsen would be replaced by three presidents reporting directly to him.

"In the past 19 months that I have been with Ford Motor Co.," Knudsen said in his statement, "the company has made substantial progress.

"The company's record in recent months has been the best in the industry.

"In making me president of the company Mr. Ford informed me that his organization needed a man with intimate knowledge of all phases of the automobile business.

"He also said he wished to be relieved of the daily operating responsibilities.

"He asked me to act as chief executive officer during his absences.

10 YEARS

"On both sides the relationship was planned to last 10 years.

"On Tuesday morning, Sept. 2, Mr. Ford walked into my office and informed me I would be leaving. His explanation was that things had not worked out as he had hoped."

Knudsen quit General Motors and joined Ford as president early in 1968.

The financial loss was apparently of little concern to Knudsen who inherited millions from his father William S. Knudsen, who rose to the post of president of G.M. Ironically the elder Knudsen switched from Ford to G.M. in a dispute with Henry Ford, but it was early in his career.

SOVIET, CHINA LEADERS HAVE SURPRISE SESSION

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin made a surprise visit to Peking today and had what was described as useful talks with Premier Chou En-lai of Red China, Tass news agency reported.

Kosygin then flew back to Moscow.

Kosygin was returning from Hanoi where he attended the funeral of President Ho Chi Minh. Chou had made a flying visit to Hanoi last Thursday, then returned to Peking, supposedly to avoid meeting the Soviet premier.

The Tass announcement, however, said the meeting in Peking was arranged by mutual agreement. There were no details as to what the Soviet and Chinese premiers discussed.

Point Reyes Purchase Stumbling Block Falls

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — A possible stumbling block to a $38 million appropriation to complete the purchase of Point Reyes National Seashore evaporated yesterday.

The powerful Bureau of the Budget, which apparently was opposed to the appropriation last May, yesterday advised Congress that it "has no objection to enactment of HR 3786 increasing the authorization ceiling at Point Reyes National Seashore."

Word of the bureau's position came in a letter to the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs from bureau director Robert P. Mayo, reported Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District. Clausen and Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, co-authored the bill.

The bureau, at a May hearing on the bill, said it would express "its concern with the implication of the legislation" in a later letter.

Clausen gave "much of the credit" for the bureau's announcement to Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., and President Richard M. Nixon. They recently flew over the seashore en route to the Redwood National Park, and discussed "early completion of the seashore," Clausen said.

The bureau's announcement came only hours after Murphy issued a letter asking the bureau to issue a favorable report immediately on the bill.

When originally authorized by Congress in 1962, spending for the 53-483-acre park was set at $14 million. The amount subsequently was raised by Congress to $19,135,000.

The new bill would increase the amount to $57.5 million.

The bureau's letter means the House committee will send the bill to the floor for a vote, Mailliard's office said. That vote, however, will not automatically provide the money.

After a house vote, the appropriation then would have to be sought as part of the Department of the Interior's 1969-70 budget, which is before the House Appropriations Committee.

Nixon Will Address U.N., May Talk With Gromyko

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon will fly to New York next Thursday to address the United Nations General Assembly — and perhaps confer informally with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The White House announced sketchy plans for the trip today, saying it was not known yet how long Nixon would remain in New York or what he would talk about in his appearance before the U.N. delegates.

Nixon has been anxious to promote discussions with the Soviets on possible limitation of strategic arms, the search for a Middle East peace and, if there were any prospect of success, on ways and means to advance the Vietnam peace talks.

Ziegler said he would advise against advance speculation that Vietnam would be the focal point of Nixon's U.N. address. He said he had no idea what the President would talk about.

Nixon will convene his principal advisers at the White House tomorrow for a broad review of the Veitnam situation.

In late afternoon, Nixon plans to fly by helicopter to Camp David for an overnight stay.

The press secretary announced thrae added starters for the Vietnam review conference: Vice Preeident Spiro T. Agnew, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and Philip Habib, a member of the U.S. delegation at the Paris peace talks.

"There will be no announcement directly following this meeting," Ziegler emphasized. He said fruits of the conference would be revealed over a period of time "as our policy proceeds."

Asked when Nixon might announce a decision on expected further withdrawals of U.S. troops from South Vietnam, Ziegler said that would come "within days or weeks."

Alaska's Coffers Brimming With $900 Million In Rich Oil Leases

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The world's giant petroleum firms have put up more than $900 million in bids for leases on Alaska's North Slope oil fields, and the money goes to work today drawing almost $45,000 daily interest for the state.

Alaska piled up in the one hour of sealed bidding yesterday $100 million more than it had spent in the 10 years since it entered the union. Gov. Keith Miller and other state officials said the windfall would put Alaska on the road to financing many needs.

Giant combines involving such billionaires as J. Paul Getty and H. L. Hunt submitted apparent high bids on the choice tracts close to three discovery wells on the coast of the Arctic Ocean—where temperatures hit freezing on the day of the biggest oil lease sale in U.S. history.

The state had the winning checks flown by chartered jet to banks in New York, Chicago and San Francisco so no time would be lost in drawing interest.

The state opened bids on 179 tracts totaling 450,858 acres of land in the Prudhoe Bay area where the biggest oil field on the North American continent was discovered last year, about 380 miles north of Fairbanks.

Unofficially, the top bids averaged $1,965 per acre.

Alaska still has 800,000 acres of oil land to lease, but the governor indicated it is in no hurry to dispose of it now.

State officials put off until today decisions on which, if any, of the bids to reject. Rejections were not expected to alter the total money figure significantly.

Getty and Hunt, two of the richest men in the world, combined with three other oil interests to post the largest single bid—$72.2 million for one 2,560-acre lease. That was $28,233 per acre, the largest per-acre bid ever offered for U.S. oil land.

The Getty and Hunt interests combined with Amerada-Hess Oil Co., Louisiana Land and Exploration Co. and Marathon Oil Co. on the record single bid. Getty lives in London, Hunt in Dallas.

The successful bidders had to put up 20 per cent of their bids in cash and must come through

Olompali Dope Charges Dropped

By MARY LEYDECKER

Narcotics charges were dismissed today in Marin Superior Court against former hippie leader Donald C. McCoy Jr. and 10 of his erstwhile followers when Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales refused to reveal the name of the informant in the case.

"I have reason to believe that his safety might be imperiled if his identity is disclosed," Bales said, adding that a verbal committment had been made to the person who led to drug raids at Rancho Olompali.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson had ruled at an earlier hearing that the informant must be identified to the defense because his testimony conceivably could help the defendants.

"I am not ruling on the guilt or innocence of the defendants," Judge Wilson said today. "I agree with you that there is sufficient evidence in the case," he told Bales after reading portions of a Grand Jury hearing transcript aloud in court.

The judge ruled that any defendants upon whose persons contraband had been found could be held for trial. Bales said that this had not been the case with any of the arrested Rancho Olompali residents.

McCoy, who was not in court today, had marijuana in a jacket pocket, according to testimony before the Grand Jury, but was not wearing the jacket at the time of his arrest.

When Shelia McKendrick, former wife of the one of the defendants, attempted to thank Judge Wilson for his decision, he crisply pointed out to her that "I was just carrying out the law."

Bales said today he would review the case before deciding whether to appeal the judge's decision to a higher court.

The charges had included possession of marijuana, LSD, methamphetamine and heroin.

The group was arrested after two raids at the ranch last January.

Since that time the ranch has been sold and the hippie colony "scattered to the winds," in the words of one of the six defense

38 Cholera Deaths?

SEOUL (AP) — Thirty-eight persons have died of a disease believed to be cholera in South Korea's port city of Kunsan, the Health Ministry announced today. The epidemic is spreading, but no cases have been reported among American military forces, a U.S. Spokesman said.

The spokesman said the U.S. Air Force has instructed troops at its Kunsan air base to restrict their movements in the city, not to visit civilian homes, and to stay in military quarters unless on official business.

More Troop Talks

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman and U.S. Ambassador Leonard Unger held the second of a series of meetings today on the gradual withdrawal of some of the 49,000 U.S. troops in Thailand.

The meeting, held at the Foreign Ministry, lasted an hour.

A joint statement issued by Unger and Thanat said they had reviewed the results presented by a military working group of Thai and American officers.

The working group has suggested a figure for the cutbacks, which is expected to be released later this month.

Cooley Out; Fuss Over Transplants

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Dr. Denton A. Cooley, who has performed more heart transplants than any other surgeon, says a disagreement over research with artificial hearts led to his resignation from the Baylor College of Medicine.

In a statement issued yesterday, Cooley said his appointment as unpaid clinical professor of surgery at Baylor was contingent on his acceptance of control of his research activities at the Baylor research committee.

"Subsequent refusal of the committee to accept my proposal for continuation of research at the Texas Heart Institute in the field of cardiac replacement then followed," Cooley said.

The resignation does not affect his relations with St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital, where his team has performed 20 heart transplants. Two patients survive.

Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, president of Baylor Medical College, heads a team which has performed 11 heart transplants at nearby Methodist Hospital.

Cooley said he resigned from Baylor "so that I could continue with clinical research, which is vital to the future conquest of cardiovascular disease."

Cooley and his team implanted a man-made heart in Haskell Karp, 47, last April 4. Karp died April 8, after the mechanical device was replaced with a donor heart.

Following the implantation, DeBakey said the artificial heart Cooley used had been developed by a federally funded heart program. This program was subject to federal research guidelines.

Cooley claimed the heart was developed with private funds.

Meanwhile, DeBakey told a Los Angeles news conference yesterday that the future of heart transplants is limited and federal cutbacks in research funds threaten development of mechanical hearts.

DeBakey said, "Transplants will never be a major treatment of heart disease."

Probe Centers On Radar In Plane Crash

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Investigation of an aerial smashup which brought death to 83 persons centered today on how an Aliegheny Airlines DC9 jetliner and a small private plane got on a collision course within radar range of the city's airport.

"The big plane showed on the radar screen but not the small plane," said Jack H. Frets of the Indianapolis Air Route Control Center.

"This is not uncommon when a plane does not have a transponder or beacon, a device which reflects the radar beams."

IGNORING OTHERS

The light plane, a Piper Cherokee, did not carry this equipment.

In Washington, Max Karant, vice president of the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, said one question it wanted answered was: "Why did the radar see the DC9 and not the Cherokee? Was the radar looking only at, or mainly at, transponder-equipped aircraft? Was it ignoring all other aircraft on the primary radar?"

Duane Jennings, Indianapolis airport chief, said all aircraft within a 25-mile radius of the Weir Cook field normally are kept under radar surveillance. The collision occurred 23 miles from the terminal.

Jennings said both craft were on visual flight rules, there were scattered or broken clouds at 3,000 feet and visibility was 15 miles.

Ground witnesses said both planes were below the clouds and clearly visible.

Jennings said that under visual flight rules, avoiding air collision is the responsibility of the pilots.

RECORDING DEVICE

The National Transportation Safety Board, part of the investigative team, said it recovered two recording devices which were aboard the jetliner.

Edward E. Slattery Jr., the board's director of public affairs, said he heard a voice tape and there was "nothing indicative of any knowledge of the crew of other air traffic."

Slattery said it has not been determined whether the private plane hit the airliner or vice-versa but that "through coordination of eyewitness reports and an analysis of paint smears it should be possible to determine who hit who."

Witnesses said the private plane appeared to knife into the jetliner's tail section, tearing it from the fuselage.

The private plane was flown by a student pilot, Robert W. Carey, 35, an Indianapolis plumber and father of six.

Alioto Stumps State In Ire; Magazine Plans Broadcast

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Embattled Mayor Joseph L. Alioto of San Francisco, believing the best defense is a good offense, is campaigning the length of California to counter charges against him published in Look magazine.

Alioto again denied the assertions in the article, "The Web That Links San Francisco's Mayor Alioto And The Mafia," and claimed it falsely stated he was "enmeshed with minute television show originat-Nostra leaders.

Look magazine tonight will defend its article on Alioto in a 15-minute television show oroginating in San Francisco at 7 p.m.

The program will consist of a statement by William B. Arthur, editor of the magazine, and also comments by the two authors of the article which linked Mayor Alioto to a half-dozen members of the Mafia.

The Look issue with the cover story on Alioto went on sale Tuesday, but the mayor learned about the article last Friday and promptly filed a $12.5 million libel suit against the magazine and its publisher.

Alioto said yesterday that Look printed the story written by two free lance writers only after another major publication turned it down. The mayor did not name the other publication, however.

Alioto continued his attack on Gov. Ronald Reagan, charging that his office distributed copies of the article last Friday. But Alioto emphasized that only the magazine and the publisher were named as defendants in the suit.

"Publication is an essential part of any libel," Alioto said. "And publication of this article was first made by the office of the Governor of California."

He said Reagan's office admitted having an advance copy as early as Thursday, a copy was circulated at a Friday breakfast at which the governor spoke and aides to the governor have not denied giving a copy to the San Francisco Examiner, which broke the story Friday.

"The inference is irresistible," Alioto said, that the paper "got it from the governor's office. This article was published to the world by the Governor of California."

A REAL SNARL

Takes 36 Hours To Get Out Of Libya

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — The first American civilian permitted to leave Libya since the Sept. 1 coup said today he had to stand in line for a day and a half to get the necessary stamp in his passport.

Ronald D. Richard, 29, Torrington, Conn., North African area manager for the Goodyear Tire Co., arrived in Tripoli Aug. 31, hours before the army coup. He reached Tunis early today in a taxi.

"I stood in line for a day and a half," he said. "All that time, the line didn' move forward. Hundreds of foreigners were standing in line with me, mostly Italians and British, but also a number of Americans.

"At the head of the line outside a Tripoli police station, nothing was happening because the procedure was snarled in red tape. Finally I ran into an army officer, who put a stamp saying' Revolutionary Command Council' in my passport. That was all I needed."

Richard said he and many other Americans stranded in Tripoli complained they got little or no help or advice from the American Embassy.

"At first we all went to the embassy," he said. "But all they told us was to go and see the local officials. They gave us absolutely no help or direction. People walked around in circles not knowing what to do."

Richard said most of the stranded tourists ran out of money after a few days, since all banks remained closed. Many hotels accepted IOU's from those who had no credit cards.

He said he walked out of his hotel, the Libya Palace, early on the morning of the coup without realizing that anything had happened.

As I turned around a corner, I was confronted by a soldier who fired his pistol in the air to stop me. Not knowing what was going on, I was quite shaken. He made me put my hands up in the air, searched me and then marched me back to the hotel."

Later in the day, armed guards were posted at the hotel entrance to prevent others leaving. Richard said he saw numerous policemen being arrested and marched off by troops.

Woman Heads USC Law School

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dorothy W. Nelson, the new dean of the University of Southern California Law Center, says legal resources should be used to solve social problems like urban blight and pollution.

Mrs. Nelson, 40, wife of Municipal Court Judge James F. Nelson and mother of two, was named yesterday to the post, making her the first woman to hold such a position in a fully accredited U.S. law school.

Mrs. Nelson has been a member of the USC law faculty since 1956 and will continue to teach a course in judicial administration. She was admitted to the California Bar in 1954.

Kopechne Inquest Road Clear

BOSTON (AP) — The road was clear today for the Massachusetts Supreme Court to set a date for hearing arguments on the constitutional questions which have blocked the inquest into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne, but when the high court would act was uncertain.

The development came with the filing late yesterday of all the pre-inquest orders and rulings made in the case by Edgartown District Court Judges James A. Boyle, before whom the inquest ultimately is to be held.

The inquest was supposed to have started Sept. 3, but Associate Supreme Court Justice Paul C. Reardon ordered it delayed until the high court's full bench could hear the arguments dealing with the constitutional questions. He also sought Boyle's records.

Reardon acted on a petition from attorneys for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, in whose car Miss Kopechne died July 18.

Kennedy's attorneys are challenging a ruling by Boyle that denies them the privilege of cross-examination during the inquest.

They seek the privilege on the contention that the inquest will be of an "accusatory nature," similar to a trial, and say Boyle's denial is unconstitutional.

Belvedere Tree Law Draft Is Challenged

Belvedere residents dont' take too kindly to having neighbor's trees block their views.

Belvedere City Council got the message last night in the form of a petition from 50 residents backing a proposed law for topping, trimming or removing trees on private property if they block a neighbor's view.

The proposed ordinance was drafted by Haskell Titchell of 30 Eucalyptus Road, who stressed the view from Belvedere as a basic part of the value of property.

City Atty. Robert F. McKay said it would be unconstitutional and would put the city in the position of "enforcing the view rights of property owners."

Belvedere properties have "magnificent vistas" and "I think it's a crime they can be impinged upon," Titchell asserted.

He proposed that "no shrub, tree or natural growth shall be planted, maintained or permitted to grow upon any private or public property" in the city "in such manner as to interfere unreasonably with the view of any other residential parcel in the city.

MacKay contended the proposed ordinance wouldn't be a regulation for the general welfare, but "to prevent one land owner from obstructing the view of another landowner."

Titchell said it would be in the general welfare because it would maintain the value of property, and consequently property tax revenue to the city.

Theodore Eliot of 401 Golden Gate Avenue said when it came to blocking views, "the biggest offender is the City of Belvedere" with many eucalyptus and pine trees on city property along roads.

Lloyd M. Tweedt of 32 Eucalyptus Road stressed the fire hazards created by eucalyptus trees, and the call for tree removal wasn't entirely based on view.

"Someday eucalyptus trees could own this island if something isn't done," Tweedt said.

MacKay said the proposed ordinance didn't mention hazards, and esthetics alone wouldn't be sufficient basis.

To remove a tree under the proposed ordinance would "be taking private property without just compensation to the property owner," MacKay said.

Besides, he said, any tree planted prior to adoption of the ordinance would be "nonconforming, pre-existing," and the ordinance wouldn't apply.

Titchell said property owners would get a full hearing before any topping, trimming or removal were done, and the complaining party must agree "to pay all costs" of any work done.

The council referred the proposed ordinance to the city planning commission, and suggested that an informal public hearing be held.

Houseboats Crackdown Is Proposed

Belvedere City Council last night introduced an ordinance regulating watercraft, which will put houseboats under strict controls.

As proposed, houseboats would have to be connected to the city sanitary sewage system, and the owners would have to provide two off-street parking spaces, near the mooring, with access to public roads.

Houseboats also would be barred from areas where they are not permitted by the city's zoning ordinance "or where such use would be in violation of any provisions" of the city code.

The proposed ordinance also bars dumping of refuse into waters within the city limits, dangerous mooring or anchorage, obstruction of navigation and the storage of petroleum products or inflammables on floats, wharves or piers.

It calls for persons to operate vessels, boats or other watercraft at a reasonable speed.

The council also adopted a resolution to annex a portion of Richardson Bay, which will greatly increase the city's water area.

The city is set to annex bay waters between its existing city limits and the city limits of Sausalito. The State Lands Commission has approved the annexation, and City Atty. Robert F. MacKay explained that annexation will become effective when it is filed with the California secretary of state.

The Belvedere City Council Also:

CORPORATION YARD — Heard renewed complaints from Lagoon Road residents about debris from eucalyptus trees at the city corporation yard, and authorized City Mgr. William L. Cavalli to get bids on removal of the trees.

LAND COMPANY — Gave warning to the Belvedere Land Co., granted use of a portion of the corporation yard site for storage of equipment, that it must cease storing building materials there.

CAR STICKERS — Referred to Cavalli for study a suggestion by a resident that the city issue car stickers to city residents at $10 a sticker, for identification and as a source of revenue.

CATV — Heard a report from Robert Lewis of Cable Television of Marin that the firm is concentrating on reaching areas of the city that have poorest reception, but couldn't give an estimate on a completion date.

PARK PLANS — Heard a report from Roger Felton, chairman of the parks and recreation commission, that plans for parks, paths and landscaping have been completed, and viewed sketches of the plans.

VARIANCE — Granted Charles Page a variance from a requirement that he provide two-off-street parking spaces on property across from his home at 410 Bella Vista Avenue, on the condition there be no building on the lot.

CONFERENCES — Named Cavalli as the city's delegate to a League of California Cities conference in San Francisco starting Sept. 28, and authorized him to attend the International City Manager's Association conference in New York City, Oct. 12-16.

LAGOON ROAD TREES — Received a report from Cavalli that the pine trees on Lagoon Road, afflicted with an infestation of ants and pine scale, have been sprayed.

Councilmen Edwin J. Drechsel and Merritt K. Ruddock were absent.

Juvenile Court Gets Pot Cases

The cases of two teen-age Peacock Gap youths have been accepted by Marin Juvenile Court, it was reported yesterday in municipal court.

To be tried on marijuana possession charges are Robert Dudley Deane, 18, of 235 Riviera Drive and Eugene Fredrick Schenk, 19, of 231 Riviera Drive.

They were arrested when police broke up a noisy party near Peacock Gap Country Club on Aug. 23.

Third-Quarter Tax Deadline Is Monday

Monday is the deadline for paying the third-quarter installment for individual taxpayers who filed declarations of estimated federal income tax, Joseph M. Cullen, district director of the San Francisco District Office, Internal Revenue Service, reminded yesterday.

Declarations of estimated tax and the payments are generally required if the taxpayer's total estimated tax for 1969 exceeds his withholding by $40 or more, he said.

Direct Communication With Pike, Wife Says

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Diane Pike, the widow of former Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike, says her dead husband will continue to communicate to her "because we are not separated by death."

Memorial services will be held at noon tomorrow at Grace Cathedral in San Francisco.

She told newsmen yesterday that any further communication between her and her husband will come directly, and not through the use of a medium.

Mrs. Pike spoke at St. Francis Episcopal Church where she and Pike were married last December. She arrived in San Jose, where her family lives, after seeing her husband buried in Israel.

Pike fell to his death last weekend after the couple had become stranded in the Judean desert. The couple was doing research in preparation for a book on the life of Jesus. They lost their way, Mrs. Pike went for help and the bishop then looked for her, thinking she had become lost. Pike's body was found Sunday after a lengthy search.

The 31-year-old Mrs. Pike said her husband would be alive today if he had not tried to look for her during their ordeal.

"There is no question Jim would be alive today had he stayed at that well where there was water, shade and the certainly that he would be found and rescued," she said.

Mrs. Pike said she and her brother, Scott Kennedy, plan to visit the Holy Land again and write the book Pike had planned about the life of Jesus. Mrs. Pike said her husband had disclosed plans for the manuscript before his death.

Murphy Bemoans Navy Pollution In Bay Area

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., yesterday sent a telegram to Secretary of the Navy John Chaffee requesting the Navy "to stop this pollution of the (San Francisco) Bay."

Murphy, in a press statement, said his telegram promised help in getting Congress to appropriate money for pollution control by the Navy.

The federal government "should set an example for the nation in our battle against pollution," Murphy declared.

He said he had learned of the Navy pollution while on a recent tour of the Bay Area. The San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board has listed Navy installations as major polluters.

Belvedere Fire Whistle Debated

Some Belvedere children might not know when it's time to go home, if the city cuts out it's 4:30 p.m. fire whistle.

City Mgr. William L. Cavalli told council members last night the whistle, once blown at noon, is now blown at 4:30 because some mothers felt it would be a good signal to let children know it was time to go home.

Now, the city is investigating the possibility of a fire alarm system that doesn't require a daily blast on the siren as a check.

Lone Parent Outgunned In Rafferty Books Ban Attempt

By FRANK CHESLEY

Two Marin attorneys and two educators today ripped into State Supt. of Public Instruction Max Rafferty's attempt to ban two controversial books from schools while an outgunned Mill Valley father of three defended the excision of the books from high school classes.

The father, William Henderscheid, said the book-banning issue had been clouded and really boiled down "to the question, 'Does he (Rafferty) have the duty to enforce the law'?"

Henderson's appearance on the KTIM Sounding Board was prefaced by a statement from program moderator Kitty Oppenheimer that she had experienced great trouble in finding a Marin parent who would publicly defend Rafferty's stand.

The other panel members were Richard Godino, assistant county counsel and legal adviser to the county superintendent of schools; James L. Pierce, curriculum director in the Tamalpais High School District, Theodore C. Lachelt, San Rafael attorney and a member of the American Civil Liberties Union, and Jack H. Feller Jr., a former staff member of the San Rafael Military Academy.

Rafferty triggered the imbroglio last week when he said that Eldridge Cleaver's "Soul On Ice" and Leroi Jones's "The Dutchman" were unfit for use in black studies programs and threatened to lift the teaching credentials of teachers who used them.

San Francisco is preparing a suit to challenge Rafferty's authority.

Godino — prefacing his remarks by saying that "this is obviously another political year" — said the flap involved two issues: "black vs. antiblack and the rights of teachers to control their own destinies in the use of books."

Pierce maintained that the use of the books in Marin County was justified because they were selected "in accord with the state code and our own policy."

He explained that instructors recommend texts and supplementary materials, but that responsibility for their approval rested with the board of trustees.

Hendersheid tried unsuccessfully to read portions of "The Dutchman" over the air, a move which prompted Fuller to say: "That's the kind of tactic used by people who want to ban ideas . . . Reading a few colorful words wouldn't prove anything."

The burden of Henderscheid's argument was that Rafferty was justified in upholding the state education code by calling the materials questionable and that children should not be exposed to four-letter words.

That the controversy has no simple solution was underlined by the number of issues raised during the hour-long program.

The panel members mentioned, at various times, freedom of speech, local vs. central control, who can or cannot lift teacher credentials, who should be — or who is — responsible for selection of texts, the obscenity statutes, what "social significance" means, whether teen-agers should read four-letter words and the problem of the black in society.

Pierce, who said he didn't particularly like "Soul On Ice," nevertheless defended its use by saying, "The status of the black society is a problem. Students want to understand why the black man is angry, why he feels emasculated in our society. These books are an expression of that."

Godino, who also was lukewarm about Cleaver's book, sliced through the controversy to say, "If they want to read on that problem, I'd rather have them read the "Autobiography of Malcolm X."

The program will be rebroadcast at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

OIL

with the rest in 10 days.

The money on the table at the municipal auditorium was in the form of bonus bids. The state is allowed under its own laws to collect only $1 per acre per year for oil lands, but the law doesn't prohibit oil companies from sweetening the pot with as much one-time "bonus" money per acre as they wish.

The actual $1 per acre per year leases will bring in $4.5 million over 10 years. The bonanza comes from the bonuses, and state officials were jubilant, despite the total having failed to reach the $1 billion they hoped for.

State executives expressed caution in handling the windfall.

Republican Miller said it is important "that we wisely use the money from nonrenewable resources to assure the continuing success of renewable resources — timber, fishing and tourism."

Shoreline School Food Plan Set

The Shoreline Unified School District board last night passed a resolution approving the food service program, according to Supt. Charles E. McCully.

This will give the district the right to purchase surplus government food for the cafeteria at Tomales High School. The board set the price of meals at 35 cents for students and 45 cents for teachers.

The board approved an agreement to pay 10 cents per average daily attendance for use of the Louise A. Boyd Museum.

It authorized the staff to purchase a mini bus for the Bodega Bay Elementary School.

It raised Prudence Wise from half time to full-time language and remedial reading teacher at a $8,630 salary per year.

History Or Not, Security's Vital

RENNES, France (UPI)— City authorities are going to ask the Protected Monument Commission for permission to alter Rennes' historic courthouse—at least to the extent of barring its lower-floor windows.

Alain Cheneau, on trial for armed robbery, jumped out a ground-floor window at the courthouse yesterday and made good his escape. He was the sixth man who has escaped from the building in a year.

Hitchhiker Trouble

Catherine M. Mello, 17, of 1704 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, reported that a man about 36 years old dragged her into his car as she was hitch-hiking on Lincoln Avenue, at 10:30 p.m. yesterday placed his hand on her arms and legs and she was forced to jump from the slowly moving car on Highway 101 at Terra Linda, police reported today. She was not injured; police are investigating a suspect.

A 3-month-old dachshund-chihuahua puppy was taken from the laundry room of her home at 1710 Lincoln Avenue while she was working and at school. Mrs. Marilyn Wise reported Monday, San Rafael police said yesterday. The dog was purchased for $15.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon announced today he will name Secor Browne, an aeronautical engineering expert, to be chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Browne will be nominated for the remainder of the term of John H. Crooker expiring Dec. 31, 1974. The White House said Browne would be designated as chairman, a post also held by Crooker who has resigned effective Sept. 30.

A former businessman and professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the 53-year-old Browne has been serving since March as assistant secretary of transportation for research and develpment.

Johnny Carson Offices Burned

NEW YORK (AP) — Fire swept through the office of television star Johnny Carson Wednesday night, destroying furniture, scripts, clothes and a portrait of Mrs. Carson.

"Things look pretty bad. Everything's gone," Carson said as he looked over the water-logged office on the seventh floor of the 70-story RCA Building in Rockefeller Center.

Carson, who already finished taping the Wednesday "Tonight" show and had left the building when the fire began, said all he could salvage was "a pair of cufflinks my wife gave

G.M. Boosts Price Tags For 1970

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp., today announced the price of its average car would be increased by $119 from $3,070 to $3,189.

The firm said $38 of the average increase would come in converting previously optional equipment to standard features.

The increase varies with the model but the firm said the average hike was 3.9 per cent.

The $119 increase would come to $125 if federal excise tax were included.

James M. Roche, G.M. board chairman, cited increased costs in labor and materials and taxes as the principal reasons for the boost.

The price of the two-door, four-cylinder Chevrolet Nova was hiked from $2,237 for 1969 to $2,335 for 1970. G.M. said $26 of the increase came in converting previously optional items to standard equipment.

The Cadillac Fleetwood's tag moved up from $10,979 for 1969 to $11,178 for 1970 with $37 of the boost coming in optional items being made standard.

The price of the popular two-door Chevrolet Impala with an eight-cylinder engine was jumped from $3,085 to $3,266 with $101 of the hike coming in newly standardized equipment.

G.M. cited as examples of equipment now made standard larger engines on some Pontiac models and power seats and windows on some Oldsmobiles.

"Our payroll costs account for about one-third of the cost of manufacturing a car," Roche said. "In the past year these have increased more than 6 per cent and beginning next month they will rise another 6 per cent."

"The materials and components we buy account for approximately half our cost.

"In the past year steel has gone up 6 per cent, copper 24 per cent, zinc 11 per cent, lead 24 per cent, nickel 10 per cent and aluminum 4 per cent."

This was the first year in four years that General Motors has announced its prices before Ford and Chrysler, who normally pattern their prices after the auto giant.

The past three years Chrysler announced its price increases first and had to roll them back after G.M. came out with a lower list.

General Motors will provide the same new car warranty it had in its 1969 cars, thus breaking with Ford which cut its 1970 warranty sharply.

LETSOS

Battaglia said pathology tests are being conducted to determine what kind of water caused the drowning. Other tests are also underway and results are expected by Monday or Tuesday, Battaglia said.

The coroner's office reported the elder Letsos was a "known narcotics user" and preliminary examination disclosed a "reasonably fresh" needle mark on his inner left arm.

Meanwhile, Mathew Letsos, of 61-A Broadway, Fairfax was arrested by state narcotics agents in San Francisco last night on two counts of selling narcotics in that city and on one count of selling narcotics in Marin.

A state narcotics agent said his office became interested in Letsos in April and since then an undercover agent had made three heroin purchases from the youth.

The first buy was said to have been in Sausalito, the second in San Francisco. Yesterday, the agent attempted the third buy, for an ounce of heroin, the state spokesman said.

During that buy, agents learned the youth was wanted in Marin in connection with his brother's death. He was booked first in San Francisco and then transferred to Marin where he was again booked.

The youth was held to appear today in Marin Municipal Court and on the two San Francisco counts.

Bicycle Stolen

Brian K. Witt of 35 Maywood Way, San Rafael, reported that his bicycle was stolen from outside San Rafael High School yesterday while he was at school, police said today. The value was not estimated.

Miss Bacall, the widow of actor Humphrey Bogart, said a property settlement had been reached.

TRANSIT

could afford his proposed transit program, but that the high cost of borrowing money to buy buses probably would oblige the district to hike toll rates. Higher toll revenue then would enable the district to avoid financing costs of new buses.

Leading criticism of Luehring's program was director Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco, long a strong advocate of ferries. Starting bus service now, and ferry service in 1972 after its feasibility is tested further, would be "unfair to the water side," he insisted.

A demonstration project to test the feasibility of buses also should be tried before a full system is operated, Leonoudakis argued. His suggestion brought a blast from director Dean N. Meyer, mayor of Mill Valley, that "we need to test buses like we need to test autos."

Meyer argued unsuccessfully for a blanket endorsement by the committee of Luehring's program. Delaying to next week, he said, "is tantamount to just plain stalling."

Lerer cautioned the warring factions that "where we have had a commuters crisis, we're going to have a commuters panic," unless the district does something about congestion.

In related action, the committee endorsed Luehring's recommendation that a "technical design team" be established to prepare the long-range plan asked by the Legislature. Left unresolved was whether the work will be done by hiring new employees or consultants.

San Francisco Supervisor William C. Blake, a member of the committee, said the bridge district's staff was biased in favor of buses, while he favored rail rapid transit. The long-range plan therefore should be drawn by outside consultants, he said.

Blake also objected that San Francisco will not permit district buses to run on Market Street. "You people are dreamers — I don't think you've been over to San Francisco," he said. "We're spending $25 million to beautify Market Street and take off street cars."

He did not mention that San Francisco's Municipal Railway will continue to run buses on Market Street after the beautification project is completed.

In other business, the committee asked Luehring to review a suggestion by Blake that the district hire 50 special policemen to stand in the toll plaza and wave traffic faster through the toll gates.

A proposal that the District spend $5,000 to study the destinations of weekend motorists was referred to the full board for committee assignment.

12 Injured In $250,000 Fire

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A dozen persons were injured and damage estimated at $250,000 in a fierce, five-alarm predawn fire today that burned eight apartment buildings.

The first alarm at Masonic Avenue and Fulton Street was rung at 4:35 a.m., drawing 250 firemen and 54 pieces of equipment to the scene.

Of the 12 who suffered burns or smoke inhalation, three were hospitalized.

An investigation was begun by the Arson Squad. There was no immediate speculation on the case of the blaze.

$12,500 Paid For Small Parcel

The purchase of 1.25 acres of land in Petaluma at a cost of $12,500 was approved last night by the Marin County Mosquito Abatement District board.

The site, at 644 McDowell Road, is presently owned by Manuel Maciel, and will be used by the district for construction of its first substation outside Marin County.

The substation will house two trucks, a ditch opening dragline tractor and other equipment now kept in a rented garage in Petaluma.

The board last night also was told that residents in areas in West Marin not now included in the mosquito abatement district have expressed a desire to join the district.

Belveron Work Day

The Belveron Association will hold a work day at 10:30 a.m. Saturday to install landscaping at the entrances to Belveron, according to president Donald L. Batten. Workers should meet at the entrances to Belveron East and West on Tiburon Boulevard between Mercury Avenue and Jefferson Drive, Batten said.

A native of Nashville, Tenn., he was a resident of Vallejo for the past 20 years. He was a member of Painters Union Local 376 in Vallejo and a veteran of World War I.

Also surviving are his wife, Marcella, of Vallejo, a step-son, Larry Leonard and a daughter, Mrs. Patricia Hoffman, both of Vallejo, another brother, Elmer Capley of Nashville, Tenn.; a sister, Ann Capley of Nashville, Tenn., and two grandchildren.

Entombment will be at Santa Rosa Memorial Park.

SOME CHIEF TARGETS

Nazism Hurled Into W. German Election

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Charges and countercharges of past and reborn Nazism are being hurled in the campaign for West German elections Sept. 28.

The chief targets:

Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger, a Nazi party member in 1933-45 and deputy head of the radio propaganda section of Adolf Hitler's foreign ministry during World War II.

Economics Minister Karl Schiller, a onetime member of Hitler's Brown Shirts and of the Nazi League of University Professors.

Adolf von Thadden, chairman of the ultranationalist National Democratic party (NPD) whose sharpest critics contend he is the spiritual heir of Hitler's party.

Kiesinger and Von Thadden are continuously beset by leftist demonstrators shouting the Hitlerian "Sieg Heil" and "Nazi."

Kiesinger, chairman of the christian Democratic party, also has come under fire from within his own cabinet.

Schiller, a member of foreign Minister Willy Brandt's Social Democratic party, broke a truce between the government coalition parties.

"The chancellor, or better yet, the CDU chairman, has a disturbed view of freedom of speech and the press," he said. "Kurt Georg Kiesinger should reflect and consider if he has his personal and occupational background to thank for this disturbed view."

The spark for this attack was strong objection by Kiesinger's party to a nationally televised program that accused it of vying with Von Thadden's party for the rightist vote.

The counterattack on Schiller was led by Finance Minister Franz Josef Strauss, head of the Bavarian wing of Kiesinger's party.

Strauss' party organ, Bayern-Kurier (Bavarian Courier), said in an editorial: "Schiller, through his tasteless and hypocritical attack on the federal chancellor, has forfeited every right to be spared. That Karl Schiller of all people should dare to remind another politician about his stand during National Socialist (Nazi) times is to tax the German people in an unbearable manner."

Beate Klarsfeld, a fiery 30-year-old mother, has issued a book picturing Kiesinger as an important and willing tool of Nazism. She was sentenced to a year in prison for striking Kiesinger at a political rally last November, but an appeals court lowered the term to four months and suspended the sentence.

The book contains documents it says are from the files of Hitler's foreign and propaganda ministries. A number are addressed to or signed by the name Kiesinger, including one that ends: "Heil Hitler! Kiesinger."

Mrs. Klarsfeld's father-in-law died in an Auschwitz gas chamber. She is running for parliament against Kiesinger in the South German constitutency of Waldshut as a member of the new leftist party calling itself Action for Democratic Progress.

This party has issued a documentation similar to that in the Klarsfeld book.

Kiesinger's spokesman, Guenter Diehl, has called the material "a lot of unbearable trash." Kiesinger dismissed the material as "a disgraceful lie."

New cries are being raised for the banning of Von Thadden's party as undemocratic although Kiesinger's government has decided against such an action.

The state government of Hesse, where the NPD is represented in the state parliament, has resolved to press the federal government to ban it. The resolution was supported by Heinz Kuehn, minister-president of North-Rhine Westphalia, the most populous state. Kuehn labeled the party an "afterbirth of the Nazi party."

Point Reyes Condemnation Suit Finally Commences

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A long-deferred legal battle is expected to get under way tomorrow in U. S. District Court here as a jury hears opening statements in a suit to determine how much the National Park Service must pay Drakes' Beach Estates for the Limantour Spit.

Jury selection began Tuesday and was expected to be completed today, court officials said.

The involved court fight began in 1961 when Benjamine P. Bonelli, owner of Drake's Beach Estates, subdivided the area. The National Parks Service immediately filed for possession of the land. A suit to determine the rightful owner of Drake's Beach Estates was settled in 1963 with Bonelli being granted possession.

The latest court action will determine how much Bonelli will receive for the property, a spit of land that serves as a gateway to the Limanatour Estuary in the Point Reyes National Seashore. The suit was filed by Bonelli, who rejected the park service's offer. Although neither side will reveal the park service's offer nor Bonelli's counter valuation of the land, it has been reported there is a difference of about $1.5 million.

No matter what settlement the jury decides, the National Park Service has agreed to pay 7 per cent per annum interest from 1963 to date.

Attorneys Jess Jackson of Burlingame and Robert Weber of San Bruno are representing Bonelli. Rodney Hamblin of the U.S. attorney's office is representing the National Park Service.

Each side has indicated it expects the case to run about five weeks.

WALL OF WIRE—British troops unwind barbed wire in Belfast that separated a "peace wall" from a Catholic enclave in Belfast. The Catholics would have liked it to remain since they believe it will keep the peace between them and the Protestants. (AP Wirephoto)

'Free Belfast' Is A Place Where Many Catholics Feel Free, Safer

BELFAST, Northeren Ireland (AP) — If the barricades come down in "Free Belfast," a whole new way of life will vanish.

Life behind the barriers is not so bad, say the Roman Catholics of the Falls Road area.

Women picking their way along the unpaved sidewalks, unpaved because the stone slabs have been the raw material of riot, seem unanimous in wanting the barriers to stay.

A 64-year-old grandmother expressed the general feeling, "All we want peace and quiet and freedom to sleep at night. That's all anybody wants anywhere. While the barricades are here we have peace and we intend to keep it. I can still shop. The schools are open. Men can get to their jobs. We feel safe. So why change it."

The barricades went up four weeks ago when Northern Ireland's ancient feud between Protestants and Catholics erupted into riots that left eight dead and hundreds injured.

Now the barriers form an iron wall around the red brick streets of the Falls Road area, commonly known as "the Falls." There 2,000 Catholic families make their own rules and want to keep things that way. They call the barricaded area "Free Belfast."

Protestants have put up their own barricades elsewhere in Belfast to protest the Catholic ramparts. But the scattered Protestant barricades do not form an isolated enclave like Free Belfast.

Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark has warned that the barricades, both Catholic and Protestant, must be torn down or the British army will do it. As a first step, the troops began putting up a "peace wall" of wire between the Falls Road area and the Protestant Shankill area Wednesday after pushing a Protestant barricade out of the way.

The great majority of the Falls Road Catholics believe they are in danger of attack from Protestant firebombs if the barricades come down.

That is why the flag of Irish Republic, officially banned in Northern Ireland, flies from the lamp posts and second story windows inside the Falls.

This is a kind of insurrection, even an insurrection subsidized by the government. Mothers still squeeze past the small gap at the side of each street barricade on Tuesdays to collect their family allowances at the post office. Men who are not working —almost half are unemployed— still collect their weekly dole at the labor office.

Rings Missing

Seven rings and a necklace, valued at a total of $80, were taken from the home of Robert James Cole, 267 Tamalpais Road, Fairfax he, he reported yesterday. Police said entry was gained through an unlocked window.

Chemical War Proposal Denied

NEW YORK (AP) — A Nobel laureate says the Army asked him to help develop a chemical blinding agent. The Army research laboratory he named denies the charge.

Dr. George Wald, a Harvard University professor who in 1967 won the Nobel Prize for work on the chemistry and physiology of vision, told the American Chemical Society yesterday that the Army had approached him a year ago.

Wald said the director of medical research at the Edgewood Arsenal in Edgewood, Md., asked him, "Wouldn't you rather blind them than kill them?"

Saving The Wildlife —Peripheral Canal

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The State Fish and Game Department is asking the state Water Resources Control Board to "endorse the concept" of the Peripheral Canal to save the fish and wildlife resources of the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta.

Cross-examination of Fish and Game Department witnesses continued today as the board resumed its hearings, which began last July, on salinity standards for the delta.

The department recommended yesterday that the board "endorse the concept of the Peripheral Canal . . . as the best means of preservation and development of the fish and wildlife resources dependent upon delta water conditions."

The proposed $178 million Peripheral Canal would carry surplus Northern California water around the delta for delivery to Southern California.

The department also recommended that the board "declare its intent to preserve fish and migratory fowl resources at now less than present levels and impose terms and conditions in the permits of the Bureau of Reclamation and the Department of Water Resources to require that the facilities of the Federal Central Valley Project and the State Water Project be operated to preserve these resources."

Under questioning, Harold Chadwick, senior fisheries biologist for the department, estimated that if present pumping practices continue in the delta as scheduled for 50 years it would cause a $100 million loss in the striped bass fishery.

The board scheduled the hearings to determine what salinity standards to maintain delta water quality should be imposed on the water rights permits held by the federal and state governments.

Delta interests fear that diversion of too much water from the delta would result in an infusion of salt water from San Francisco Bay, raising the salinity of delta waters.

The department recommendations included tentative guidelines to maintain striped bass, salmon and Suisun marsh waterfowl at their present level.

The department recommended that the Department of Water Resources and Bureau of Reclamation finance studies to establish definite criteria for maintaining the fish and waterfowl resources.

Could Be Class's Happiest Assignment

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (UPI) —Police kept careful watch yesterday while the ornamental horticulture class at Kirkwood College burned weeds off the site where they are going to put in a flower laboratory.

The "weeds" were marijuana, and the police wanted to make sure it all went up in smoke.

Legislators Go Down The Tube

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Nine senators and assemblymen bicycled through the world's longest underwater tube yesterday on a leisurely inspection trip in anticipation of formal dedication ceremonies scheduled Saturday.

The tunnel is the transbay link of the Bay Area Rapid Transit System.

The lawmakers reported the surface was rough with a lot of steel girders sticking out and a trench along the middle which required careful steering, but they said accompanying engineers told them the passage will be smoothed long before the first trains roll some time in 1972.

The party pedaled into the tube at the foot of Seventh St. in Oakland and emerged on the south side of the Ferry Building in San Francisco.

Construction of the tube was under way three years and one month when the first walk-through was made last May 19.

Other BART links will include subways now under construction under Market and Mission streets in San Francisco and extensive rail lines in the East Bay.

A LEGAL NUDE BEACH?

Recreation Chairman Pays Heed To Skinnydipper Fad

Nude swimming is getting to be such a fad, especially among the young, that the county should look for solutions other than merely arresting the skinnydippers.

This novel suggestion came late yesterday from Lothar Salin, chairman of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission, at a commission meeting at the Civic Center.

Receiving cautious support from several commissioners and no outright dissent, Chairman Salin asked Recreation Director Pierre W. Joske to approach the problem "gingerly" and look around for beaches in the county, perhaps private ranches, which could be set aside for those who prefer swimming in the nude.

"We are in an age when 20 per cent of people under 25 prefer swimming without bathing suits," declared Salon. He said advertisements in the press indicate that resort areas exist where nude swimming is allowed.

"I think this is a sign of the times," said Salin. "It seems to me we are inadequately dealing with the problem because more and more are inclined to do so (swim in the nude). The day may come when three thousand people at Stinson Beach may take their clothes off. You can't arrest all of them."

Salin suggested that if the recreation commission expresses an interest in at least exploring the possibility of a beach for nude swimmers, interested people may come up with suggestions. "I'm sure they'll come in with suggestions if they know they won't be laughed out of the office."

"Are you suggesting that Mr. Joske informally investigate?" asked Commissioner Melton Ferris.

"Informal recreation — is that what you mean?" joked Commissioner Herber C. Leney.

"Maybe some rancher may come up and offer a place," added Salin. "At least it's worth looking at."

"I'm looking already," offered Joske. In a more serious vein, the recreation director asked the commissioners what priority the study should receive.

Since the swimming season is just about over, Salin said the study need not get high priority.

"I concur with Mr. Salin's idea," said Ferris. "It's a problem that we'll have to face sooner or later."

Other commissioners agreed that Joske should survey available beaches and look for an alternative to mass police arrest.

Name Changes Eyed For Old St. Hilary's

Various parcels of land acquired for public use at Old St. Hilary's Church in Tiburon should get the overall designation, "Old St. Hilary's Historic Preserve," the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commissioners decided yesterday.

Beverly Bastian, honorary president of the Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society, suggested that the present name,"Old St. Hilary's Nature Preserve" be changed to "Historic Preserve" since the church site is an official state historic landmark.

Mrs. Bastian also suggested that the 1.19-acre parcel bought by the county upslope of the church be designated "Caroline S. Livermore Vista Point."

Recreation Director Pierre W. Joske said he has no objection to names being attached to parts of the historic preserve, just so the overall name of Old St. Hilary's Historic Preserve is retained.

An area below the church is known as the John Thomas Howell Botanical Garden, which will also be retained.

Marin Parks-Recreation Commission Also:

SENIOR CITIZENS — Heard from Joske that the Senior Coordinating Council Inc. has contacted various cities for reaction on the county's policy to reduce county financial support of senior citizen programs after the first three years.

PARK ADVISORY — Decided that the commission should be represented on any advisory committee that is formed to make recommendations to the state on how Muir Beach and Tamalpais state parks should be developed.

BOLINAS LAGOON — Heard from Joske that The Conservation Foundation, a nationwide research and education organization, is using Ford Foundation money to make an overall study of ecology and development potential in Bolinas Lagoon. Commissioner Melton Ferris said the purpose is fine, but the county planning staff should have notified the planning and the parks and recreation commissions before The Conservation Foundation entered the picture.

TOM'S POINT — Got a report from Joske that Nature Conservancy is negotiating for purhase of 55 acres at Tom's Point, on the east side of Tomales Bay, for a future public park. The property is owned by Mrs. Mary Voight.

Another Crisis Is Boiling On New Guinea Island

By ANGUS SMALES
Toronto News Service

BOUGAINVILLE, (New Guinea) — Another crisis is at the boiling point on this unhappy island where the good intentions of black and white have led to violence.

The compulsory leasing of native land to provide a port for the Conzinc Rio Tinto — $300 million copper project has resulted in pitched battles with police.

The village of Rorvana tried to prevent bulldozers working on the site and police used tear gas and batons to clear the way.

The villagers have asked the Australian High Court to nullify the agreement giving the copper company their land. This agreement was made by the local authorities who need the dollars from the new industrial giant to create a viable economy.

The earnings are doubly important as they will come as Papau-New Guinea stands on the threshold of political independence.

But despite the best intentions of all groups — the island officials, the Australian government and the copper company — the bitterness grows since each group has a different idea of what is best.

Despite a huge program of negotiation and consultation, there is mounting opposition on Bougainville to some land take-overs and to the terms of local participation.

I went to the village and talked with the tribesmen.

While we talked, children played marbles on the grass and the women quietly went about their work round thatched houses fronting a sandy beach.

One man said : "Australia has taught us much and we are grateful for what we have learned. But we are black and the Australians are white and that makes us very different.

"And because we are different, the things which are important to Australians are not always important to us."

The villagers gave three main objections to the mining project:

They wanted to keep their land undisturbed because of the traditional and almost supernatural links they have with the soil;

Prosperity in the Western sense was not necessarily what they wanted for themselves; and

The urban development and disruption associated with mining would eventually engulf all Bougainville.

Their objections touched very little on the argument of adequate compensation and equity in the mining project.

Clearly the Rorvana people don't want the copper project at any price.

There is an obvious disagreement in the village about whether the people will use further physical force to prevent work on the port site.

Some indeed, want to fight but others, and perhaps most, fear that fighting would create nothing but trouble for the people themselves.

The good intentions of everyone are slowly pushing the island along one of the most disruptive courses ever experienced in Papua-New Guinea.

Commissioners Request Pay Via Split Vote

Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission members voted 5 to 2 yesterday to ask the county board of supervisors for $25 per meeting to meet expenses incurred by each commissioner.

The decision came on a motion by Albert J. Bore and a second by Herber C. Leney.

Two dissenters were Melton Ferris and Chairman Lothar Salin.

Ferris said he agrees that any expenses incurred such as attending conferences should be reimbursed, "but I refuse to discuss wage or salary as a member of this commission. It's a humiliating and undignified motion in the first place. I cannot accept it in any shape or form. I'm astounded!"

Salin suggested that the $25 request be deleted and a request be made for "an adequate per diem payment."

Albert J. Boro pointed out that this same motion for $25 per meeting had been approved by the commission in July on a 4 to 1 vote. Salin was the lone dissenter at that time, and Raymond Bresnan and Ferris were absent.

Boro said this motion should go forward to the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Boro and other commissioners stressed that the $25 is not for pay but in lieu of various expenses incurred by commissioners such as all-day field trips, telephone calls and attending night meetings and conferences.

Marin City Woman Faces Check Trial

A jury trial has been set for the week of Jan. 5 in Marin Superior Court for Alice Fay Grinner, 20, of Marin City, who is accused of having a check with intent to defraud, acquiring someone else's credit card and keeping property which she found.

Miss Grinner was arrested June 13 in Sausalito, when she attempted to buy clothing at a Sausalito shop with someone else's credit card.

POPE OBSERVES TRADITION'

Lynch Tells State Bar Weed's 'Frightening'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The use of marijuana is a "frightening social problem" and "leads inexorably to involvement with the hard stuff," California's attorney general contends.

Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch, speaking yesterday before the State Bar convention, disputed contentions that the weed is neither habit-forming nor a step towards narcotics addiction.

After noting that a crackdown against Mexican sources of marijuana had reduced the supply in this nation to a "comparative trickle," Lynch asked:

What are the pot users doing to slake their taste for this near-harmless, nonhabit-forming drug?"

"I can tell you, as can any narcotics agent in the United States," he answered. "They're turning to narcotics and the hard drugs and in ever increasing numbers."

The attorney general also declared that youth should be instructed in laws concerning drugs.

"Only the jurists and lawyers who have been involved are truly aware that there are thousands of young people who honestly but erroneously believe that there is a Constitutional right to smoke marijuana," he said.

At a panel meeting yesterday, U.S. Solicitor Gen. Erwin N. Griswold, former Sen. Joseph Clark and Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-11th District, called for the repeal of the Connally Amendment by which this nation reserves the right to determine what would come within the International Court of Justice's jurisdiction.

Griswold asserted, "we should understand we must yield up some of our sovereignty and take some risks to bring together the greatest good for the greatest number."

"The only sovereignty anyone is being asked to give up is the sovereignty to wage war," Clark declared.

Discussing the peace making efforts of the court, McCloskey said, "one interesting aspect is multi-national business agreements, wherein you can buy stock in a corporation in other nations."

"Why bomb a country where you own 40 per cent of the assets," he asked.

Handicapped Win Elevators For BART Stations

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Elevators for the handicapped should be installed in all of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District's 38 stations, the organization's engineering committee decided yesterday.

A previous vote by the BART board's committee had called for the elevators at only 28 stations.

Berkeley Mayor Wallace Johnson, a board member, called for the additions and general counsel Malcolm Barrett said that if BART did not comply with a 1968 state law governing facilities for the handicapped in public buildings, it might lose a legal suit.

Johnson questioned staff estimates that elevators in 38 stations would cost $9.5 million, saying by his computations the figure should range from $5 million to $6 million.

Flashing Signs Inside Stores Frowned Upon

Flashing, moving signs inside store windows are just as bad as those outside buildings, the San Rafael Planning Commission decided last night.

Commissioners unanimously agreed that inside signs would fall under a sign ordinance progibition of animated signs.

The question had arisen, according to Hebert G. Hotchner, city planner, because a company which manufactures such signs has asked if they were permitted in San Rafael.

In other action last night, the commission quickly gave architectural approval to a building proposed for the top of Quail Hill which would house the west coast headquarters of Commerce Clearing House.

Most parking spaces for the offices would be provided inside the building, according to plans presented. A scale model showed a large skylight in the center of the structure giving light to a planted area and pool.

The San Rafael Planning Commission also:

CHURCH — Approved administrative-professional zoning for a .367 acre portion of the Faith Lutheran Church property in Northgate Drive, which will be combined with property to the west for a proposed Traveler's Life Insurance Co. site.

SETBACK — Allowed Edwin O. Brown of 193 Bret Harte Road to construct a swimming pool and fence in the front set-back of his property within 11 feet of the property line.

CRABS — Approved for Puerto Suello Co. a use permit and plans for a fresh crab and sourdough bread outdoor sales building at Northgate Shopping Center.

SIGN — Turned down a request by Edward Simas for an addition to a freestanding sign as a service station at 1103 Third Street which would have shown gasoline price.

SHOE STORE — Approved plans for a Kinney shoe store at 2102-2110 Fourth Street with the condition that a freestanding sign not be taller than the building.

WAREHOUSE — Gave approval to plans for a warehouse building at 46 Mark Drive.

DENIAL — Turned down the request of J. Dillman for a sign on top of a building at 115-A Bellam Boulevard but told him he could have a sign projecting from the building.

CHILD CARE — Denied a request by Kathryn Cardoza of 260 Clorinda Avenue to care for six children at her home after protests by neighbors.

The United States regained the world record for payload-carrying July 30, 1939, when Maj. C. V. Haynes and Capt. W. D. Old flew a Boeing B-15 to 8,200 feet with a payload of 15 and one-half tons, at Wright Field, Ohio.

Federal Court Handed Issue Of GI Refusal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An attorney told a federal court yesterday a young Bakersfield soldier had a right to refuse to fight in Vietnam because he was a Roman Catholic.

Attorney Richard Harrington said Louis Negre, 22, "is backed in his choice by the Catholic Church."

Negre, a Roman Catholic educated in Catholic schools, sat quietly as Harrington said "the Catholic doctrine teaches that a man must follow his conscience. It is his belief that the war in Vietnam is wrong and he must refuse."

The lawyer asked the court to determine if Negre's action was dictated by his religion.

Negre was shipped to Vietnam last April after the U.S. Supreme Court turned down a plea to halt his transfer.

Inverness Water Bills Will Jump

1-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Inverness Water Co. customers will pay 42 per cent higher rates under a temporary order issued yesterday by the California Public Utilities Commission.

The rate hike, effective Sept. 25, is temporary until the commission makes its final decision on the utility's application for an 87 per cent rate hike.

A commission spokesman said the final decision was expected in about two months.

The parent company of the utility, Citizens Utilities Co. of Connecticut, originally applied for the hike in October 1966. The commission's order yesterday blamed the protracted delay in a final decision on "dilatory and obstructionist" tactics by the parent company.

The temporary rate hike means the average customer, who gets 543 cubic feet of water a month, will pay $7.74 a month instead of the current $5.45. The utility seeks to raise the average monthly rate to $10.41.

The application argued that the company was not receiving an adequate return on its investment, and asked for a return of 8.5 to 10 per cent. The PUC staff, in public hearings on the application, recommended a return of 6.9 to 7.2 per cent.

The temporary rate was based on a 6 per cent return. The PUC spokesman did not know what present return the utility earned.

The temporary order was subject to the usual condition that the company will have to refund the higher rate payments, with 7 per cent interest, if the final PUC decision imposes lower rates. This rarely happens, the spokesman said.

Commissioner A. W. Gatov of Kentfield dissented from the temporary order, arguing temporary rate increases should be granted only in emergencies.

Federal Hearing Concludes On Unasked Credit Cards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission ended today a public hearing on its proposed regulation to stop the mailing of credit cards to persons who have not asked for them.

Several months may elapse before the FTC decides on what action, if any, to take.

The regulation would prohibit mailing cards to anyone without the written request or consent of that person.

The American Retail Federation challenged the proposed regulation on the ground it would be discriminatory because it would not cover banks, airlines, and common carriers not under FTC jurisdiction.

A spokesman from the Kerr-McGee Oil Corp. objected that it would prevent the company from sending credit cards to its stockholders and customers who have shown an interest in buying its products on credit.

Michael B. Silva of the oil company said it was sound business practice for a company to send cards to such interested persons.

Bernard J. Duffy, president of the credit bureau of St. Paul, Minn., said the procedure used today in extending credit "is a help rather than a hindrance to consumers generally and should not be regulated or changed."

Ivy Leaguer On Pot Probation

A Columbia University senior yesterday was given a 30-day suspended jail sentence and placed on six months probation for marijuana possession.

Richard Stephen Headlee of Cheyenne, Wyo., 20, who peered nearsightedly in court yesterday because he lost his glasses on the day he was arrested, Aug. 31, had earlier admitted having the weed.

A probation officer said that Headlee met an acquaintance, David Jay Tenenbaum, also 20, of Great Neck, N.Y., after losing his glasses at Stinson Beach. Tenenbaum offered to drive Headlee's car, and the pair was arrested by officers for a traffic violation. Marijuana was found in the car in a bed roll and on the front seat, officers said.

Tenenbaum is scheduled for a preliminary hearing on Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

Boy, 10, Injured As Bike Hits Truck

A 10-year-old Petaluma boy was injured yesterday at 5:46 p.m. when his bicycle struck the rear of a parked truck on Edith Street near East Washington Street.

Edward Perraulp, 529 Upham Street, was treated by a private physician for cuts of the nose. Police said his attention was diverted and that he struck the rear of a truck owned by the City of Petaluma.

Assault Booking In Knife Case

A Napa State Hospital escapee who allegedly knifed an old friend on his Waldo Point houseboat Monday was booked yesterday at Marin County Jail on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder.

Robert Charles Cohen, 35, of no known address, is being held at San Quentin for security reasons and was booked in absentia.

Last Monday Cohen, according to sheriff's deputies, attacked Paul Harkless, 30, stabbing him several times with a five-inch hunting knife. Harkless was reported in fair condition this morning at Marin General Hospital, where he remains in the intensive care unit.

Report On Summer School On Agenda

The Larkspur School District board will hear a report on 1969 summer school programs when it meets at 8 p.m. today in the district office.

The board is also to hear a proposal by its insurance agent for a new insurance package in light of increasing premium costs.

Civic Center Annexation Is Opposed

The Las Gallinas Valley Council is opposed to the annexation of the Civic Center property and Smith Brothers Ranch to the City of San Rafael because the unincorporated area will have no voice in the future development of the annexed area.

This was the concensus reached last night at a meeting of the council at the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District office on Smith Ranch Road.

Members of the council authorized president Neal D. Harding to write letters to newspapers, expressing concern over the proposed annexation.

The county is in the process of having a thousand acres from Civic Center to Smith Ranch Road annexed to San Rafael.

"If this property goes into the city, those in the unincorporated areas will have no say on how it is developed," said Harding. "We have about 31,000 residents in the valley. We'll be shut out of any voice in future development. We'd like to have a chance to share in that development."

School Bond Promotion Spots Filled

Chairmen for two committees to promote the Oct. 14 Petaluma school bond election were appointed last night by the citizen's advisory committee to the board of education.

Robert S. Lipman, former city councilman, was named to direct publicity. Assisting him as co-chairman will be Mrs. Raymond Johnson. Appointed to lead the finance committee was Daniel Plumley.

Supervisor George T. DeLong, advisory committee chairman, said that other chairmen would be appointed at a sepcial meeting at 8 p.m. next Wednesay at the Rohnert Park Community and Recreation Center. Other committee posts to be filled include infornation, get out the vote, speakers bureau and follow up.

The committees will promote the passage of the high school bond election involving the approval of the sale of $3.6 million in bonds and $9.1 million in state loans. The funds are expected to finance a 10-year building program for junior and senior high schools.

Traffic Check Leads To Marijuana Suspects

Two Santa Cruz men were arrested on suspicion of possessing marijuana yesterday after the California Highway Patrol stopped their car for a traffic violation on northbound Highway 101 near the Marin City exit, the patrol said today.

Booked into Marin County Jail to appear in Marin Municipal Court this afternoon were Kent Allie Fishburn, 22, and Jeffrey Raymond Bates, 21.

The patrol said the two were stopped for speeding but as their car was stopping, Bates, also known as Jeffrey Raymond Conti and Bill Thompson, crawled into the back seat of the car and pretended to read a book.

Fishburn got out of the car and approached the patrolmen but when he was asked for a driver's license, he returned to the car and said he had left it at home. The patrolmen then searched the car and a bag containing what was thought to be LSD was found in the glove compartment.

Fishburn then made an unsuccessful attempt to hide a box in the rear of the station wagon, the patrol said. The box contained marijuana and reefer butts, officers said.

The patrol said Bates had been cited for speeding and having no valid driver's license by Santa Cruz police earlier yesterday but had given them his name as Bill Thomspon. The patrol cited him for giving false information and making a false signature on a promise to appear.

Viaduct Will Not Be Effected

Structural support work on the Lincoln Avenue and Linden Lane overpasses will have no effect on the San Rafael viaduct project as indicated in Independent-Journal headlines Tuesday.

The overpass work is on a separate contract, a state Division of Highways spokesman explained.

The spokesman said the work on the overpasses which will include excavation on the freeway surface will be done during non-commute hours so that by the end of October three lanes will be open in each direction during the peak hours.

The overpass work is part of a widening project from the north end of the San Rafael viaduct to San Pedro Road.

Hub Rec Panel To Elect New Slate

New officers for 1969-70 will be elected when the San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Commission meets at 7:45 p.m. Monday at Robson-Harrington Park, 237 Crescent Road.

The commission also will hear a report by director Frank Quinn on summer programs.

Nuclear Test Jolts Colorado Rockies

GRAND VALLEY, Colo. (AP) — An underground nuclear explosion equal in force to 40,000 tons of TNT jarred western Colorado yesterday. But whether it shook a billion dollars worth of natural gas free from buried rock formations remains to be seen next spring.

The Atomic Energy Commission said no radioactivity escaped into the atmosphere.

After six days of weather-caused delay, the blast went off at the scheduled hour despite about 60 objectors who marched into the observation tent while predetonation ceremonies were in progress.

The protesters, mostly from the resort community of Aspen and the town of Cedaredge, said they feared the blast and a possible flurry of contaminated gas later would release a radioactive form of hydrogen called tritium into the atmosphere and then into the food chain.

The ground at the observation site, six miles from the blast, surged upward enough to shake spectators when the charge went off, then jiggled for several seconds. Dust clouds rose along the crest of the mountains for 10 miles or more. One big cloud marked a landslide high up on one mountain.

A few rocks tumbled down on highways which had been blocked to prevent any mishaps.

Bricks were knocked off chimneys in evacuated houses near the blast and in Grand Valley and Rifle, the closest towns. Several bricks fell from an old cornice on the Grand Valley post office.

Colorado School of Mines at Golden recorded the blast on a seismograph and listed it at 5.5 on the Richter scale, an earthquake intensity capable of inflicting damage when centered on an inhabited area.

The explosion, named Project Rulison for a long-vanished village, was part of the government's Plowshare program to find peaceful uses for atomic energy.

The $6.5 million blast was touched off to determine whether underground fission can free gas in commercial volume from sandstone.

Evans' Deck Officer Gets A Reprimand

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (AP) — The officer in control of the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans when she collided with the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne was given a reprimand and a reduction in seniority today by a one-man court-martial.

The officer of the deck at the time of the collision, Lt. (j.g.) Ronald C. Ramsey, 24, pleaded guilty to three charges of negligence and dereliction of duty. The Navy dropped four similar charges against him.

In the collison during nighttime maneuvers in the South China Sea on June 3, the carrier cut the destroyer in two, the bow half sank and 74 Americans were lost.

Ramsey's court-martial lasted one day. Other officers here at the U.S. Navy's Subic Bay base considered his sentence quite light. The maximum penalty on the charges to which he pleaded guilty was dismissal from the service, two years imprisonment at hard labor and forfeiture of pay.

A key witness, the executive officer of the Evans, testified he would be "pleased to have Ramsey under his command and would trust him again as officer of the deck."

Ramsey's chief defense counsel, Capt. Lazar Benrubi, at one point in the trial asked Ramsey: "Had the carrier Melbourne not turned when it did, would you have avoided the collision?"

"Quite easily," Ramsey replied.

They were referring to the final seconds before the collision when the carrier veered left in an attempt to avoid the destroyer.

Ramsey, son of a retired Navy machinist's mate, remained expressionless as the sentence was pronounced.

The collision occurred as the destroyer was shifting from a position ahead of the carrier to one astern. Lt. (j.g.) James A. Hopson, 28, the junior officer of the deck, was directing the ship's movement at the start of the maneuver and was the first witness today.

The skipper of the Evans, Cmdr. Albert S. McLemore, 40, of San Pedro, Calif., was asleep at the time of the collision and will face a courtmartial, probably next week.

Hopson was punished earlier by a letter of reprimand from the commander of the U.S. 7th Fleet, and an Australian court-martial exonerated the captain of the carrier.

Discipline Is Promised At Cornell

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — A special trustees report on the student disorders at Cornell University last spring blames the disruptions in part on the lack of disciplinary action.

Cornell, the trustees said yesterday, "has failed to employ such (disciplinary) procedures available to it, and has thus threatened materially the usefulness of these procedures for the future."

The trustees also issued a stern warning to campus activists and said the preservation of order would be paramount at the university because of a minority of students who seek to replace reason with power.

Cornell must not in the future "negotiate under duress. There can be no amnesty for infractions of the student code," said the trustees who appointed a special eight-member committee to investigate the disorders.

Members of the school's Afro-American Society seized the Student Union building last April, emerging 36 hours later armed with rifles, shotguns and knife-tipped stocks.

The specter of armed students caused a national uproar and resulted in a state law banning guns from college campuses.

Major problems leading to the disorders, according to the trustees, were the handling of discipline and the judicial system; the committee on special education projects and the Afro-American studies program, and academic freedom and communications.

When the black students occupied the Student Union the faculty Senate first declined to yield to their demands, but later reversed itself and granted amnesty.

This agreement, the trustees said, "extracted an enormous price from Cornell."

Fire Equipment

The Inverness Public Utility District board discussed the purchase of about $700 worth of equipment for its fire department last night but delayed action until its October meeting to see if the list could be cut down, William H. Thompson, district director, said today.

Burglars Loot Five Southern Marin Homes

Five homes in Southern Marin were broken into yesterday, and $460 worth of items was taken from a Homestead Valley home, sheriff's deputies at the Marin City substation and Mill Valley police reported today.

Deputies said a tape recorder, transistor radio and camera worth $460 were taken from the Decross residence at 4 Madrone Park Circle sometime yesterday.

Two of the burglaries were of neighboring houses on Paradise Drive. Deputies said the burglars in those cases apparently were "very young" juveniles. A bottle of champagne and $4 in loose change were taken from the E. R. Plappert residence at 4810 Paradise Drive after thieves pried open a window. The home of Arnt Tjensvold at 4800 Paradise Drive also was entered but it was not known whether anything was taken.

A 35-millimeter camera of unknown value was taken from the George E. Johnson residence at 715 View Point Road, Mill Valley, deputies said, but the camera was later recovered by Mill Valley police.

They said the Gerald F. Nowell residence at 209 Julia Avenue, Mill Valley, was also burglarized but it was not known what was taken.

Deputies also said a window was broken at the George V. Canby home at 4126 Paradise Drive but apparently the house was not entered.

Equipment Change Plan Wins Approval

An equipment exchange plan among Marin and Sonoma water districts was approved yesterday by the Marin Municipal Water District board.

The agreement specifies that any piece of equipment loaned will be operated by an employee of the loaning district. The employee will be paid by the district using the equipment, Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger explained.

North Marin County Water District and the Sonoma County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, the other jurisdictions involved, have already approved the agreement.

The Marin Municipal Water District board also:

HUB — Awarded a contract to Soiland Company, Inc. of Novato for relocation of water facilities at the Hub intersection in San Anselmo. Soiland was lowest of three bidders at $4,395, a price which does not include materials.

WATER — Learned August water consumption set a record and was 18 per cent above August of last year.

PIPELINES — Authorized pipeline extensions along Marlin Avenue, Mill Valley, with applicant J. T. Cutter to pay the full cost of $3,010; and on Picnic Avenue, San Rafael, with Picnic Hill Properties to pay the full cost of $8,833.

FIRELINE — Approved a fireline extension on Ross Avenue in San Anselmo with that city and the district sharing the cost of $6,313.

DUES — Authorized payment of the district share, $3,300, of the county dues of $5,500 in the Eel River Association.

ORDINANCE — Approved an employer-employee relations ordinance which requires conferences on all matters affecting employees.

PERSONNEL — Hired William Bradley and Edward Burke as laborers at $558 per month.

MEETING — Adjourned to 1:30 p.m. Sept. 30 at the district office because board members and Seeger will be attending an American Waterworks Association meeting in Santa Barbara on the regular date, Sept. 24.

School, Church Camp Give Views On Muir Woods Bill

Representatives of Hillwood Academic Day School and Cameron House today issued a joint statement supporting a bill to enlarge Muir Woods National Monument but urging that lands of the two organizations not be included in the expansion.

Reps. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District; Don H. Clausen, R-First District, and Phillip Burton, D-Fifth District, have jointly sponsored a bill (HR 12320) proposing to add 50 acres to the national monument, with cost estimated at $400,000.

The 50 acres under consideration would include holdings of Hillwood School and Cameron House.

"Because we have been told that severe budgetary restrictions may prevent the bill's passage, our church and school group will continue to do everything possible to facilitate the purchase of any uncommitted and available lands in the Muir Woods area," said Mrs. Anita Curry of the joint committee yesterday after returning from Washington.

Hillwood School and Cameron House lands date back to those which comprised Camp Kent, founded by two ministers in 1890 as the Sunday School Athletic League of Marin County, on property of William Kent, later a congressman. Later, the privately owned school and the Presbyterian Church-owned Cameron House purchased additional lots. The lands are used as a camping area for the two institutions, both of which are in San Francisco.

Finland lost 10 per cent of her territory to Russia because of World War II.

Drive-Through Restaurant Gets A Use Permit

A drive-through restaurant, Jack-in-the-Box, will go up in Ignacio at the corner of Ignacio Boulevard and Entrada Drive.

A use permit for the restaurant was approved yesterday by County Zoning Administrator Thomas E. Cordill, but the approval is subject to design review on the building by the planning department.

The 21,000-square-foot lot is owned by the Novato Fire Protection District, which plans to sell the property to the developer, Ralston-Purina Co. of Hayward.

Cordill postponed a decision on a request for permission to have musical entertainment and dancing at the Houndstooth Inn, at 10 Woodland Avenue, San Rafael. Don Banks of Fairfax, owner, applied for the permit.

Nearby residents, including the owner of an adjoining apartment house, complained of the noise and congestion created by the restaurant. Cordill said he would rule on the request next week.

Tomales Water Still Polluted

A 3-month-old warning on drinking water in Tomales probably won't be lifted until a community water system is installed, the county's director of environmental health reported yesterday.

William L. Desmond said water contamination still is a problem in the community, where private wells are too close to septic tanks.

Tomales residents were advised last June to boil drinking water following an outbreak of hepatitis.

The alternative to a public water system, Desmond said, would be a community sewage collection system.

A HORSE DRAWN carriage took Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roberts Buxton Jr. from St. John's Episcopal Church, where they were married Saturday, to the Ross home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Blaskower, where a reception was held.

(Seawood/Wallace photo)

Melanie Margaret Blaskower of Ross was wed Saturday to Charles Roberts Buxton Jr. of Littleton, Colo., in an afternoon ceremony at St. John's Episcopal Church in Ross.

A reception followed at the Ross home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Blaskower.

Mrs. Michael Roake of Quantico, Va., was matron of honor, and the bride's sisters, Patricia Blaskower of San Anselmo and Cynthia Blaskower of Ross, were bridesmaids.

Richard Buxton of Littleton was his brother's best man. The bride's brother, Richard Brooks Blaskower Jr., Richard Millard of Pebble Beach and C. John Freisman of Colorado Springs, Colo., ushered guests to their seats.

The bride is a graduate of Katharine Branson School. She attended Colorado College and is in her senior year at the University of California. Mrs. Brooks Blaskower of San Francisco is her local grandmother.

Charles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roberts Buxton of Littleton. A graduate of Colorado College, he is a teacher in the Oakland High School District. His sisters are Mrs. Philip Wilcox Jr. of Thailand and Janet Anne Buxton of Littleton.

Following a wedding trip to Carmel the couple will live in Berkeley.

Non-Smoker Helps Kick Habit

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS
Associated Press

Thousands of heavy smokers who have successfully kicked the tobacco habit through their membership in Smoke-Stoppers Inc. may be surprised to learn that Mrs. Edith Roberts, the founder and developer of the Smoke-Stopper program, has been a nonsmoker all her life.

But Mrs. Roberts considers the fact that she has never been a smoker important to the success of her program.

"Too many former smokers are reformers," said the former volunteer psychiatric social worker and head of a New York City trade vocational school. "Because they stopped smoking, they can't see why anybody can't." She claims reforming smokers is the furthest thing from her mind — "I just want to help those who want to be helped.

"SINCE I had no frame of reference or personal experience to draw on," continues the middle-aged, youthful-looking blonde, "I had to research all the methods and the psychology behind the problem. Perhaps that's why 90 per cent of the people who have completed my program have succeeded in becoming permanent nonsmokers."

Mrs. Roberts says she first realized the drawbacks of smoking some 20 years ago, when she and her husband Louis, a high school teacher and now dean of the Roberts Vocational School, were counseling underprivileged people in psychology and child guidance at New York community houses. "I saw the menace of tobacco, not only from a health point of view, but from a financial and social outlook," she comments.

AN INTEREST in people combined with a curiosity as to why so many people tried so many methods of stopping smoking, only to return to the habit and to try yet another miracle cure, led her to various smoke-stopping clinics, to consultations with many members of the medical profession and psychologists, and to the U.S. Surgeon General's Office. Three years ago, the former teacher came up with a program which teaches students in a series of 12 seminars (sometimes more, sometimes less) literally, not to smoke, through reinforcement, self-analysis and group therapy, similar to the tecnhiques of Alcoholics Anonymous. The method was tested over a two year period with private groups before being opened to the public. Now the techniques of Smoke-Stoppers Inc. are being franchised on a nationwide basis.

COLD TURKEY . . . That's what's in store for these members of Smoke-Stoppers, Inc. According to Edith Roberts, the organization's founder, "availability is half the problem." Hence the organization doesn't advocate any tapering off the smoking habit.

"MOST SMOKERS have false ideas and associations about smoking," claims Mrs. Roberts. "We have to destroy the fallacies and get them to assume the attitudes of the non-smokers."

For example, she points out that most people claim they smoke to relieve tension. They further claim that if they were to stop they would immediately gain weight.

"Research shows that the only tension that smoking relieves is the nervousness produced by smoking," says Mrs. Roberts, the mother of a graduate psychologist-attorney. "The habit itself produces the urge to smoke."

As for the weight issue, Mrs. Roberts explains that just because a person stops smoking, it doesn't mean that his body requires any additional fuel. "Of course, your taste buds may be clearer but you don't need to eat more.

"Just ask yourself, 'What is smoking doing for me?' " she challenges. "Once you analyze all the myths, you'll see that aside from so-called pleasure, which is nothing more than manual and oral gratification which can be achieved in other ways, smoking isn't worth risking your life over."

MRS. ROBERTS doesn't believe in tapering off the smoking habit. At the first class, all students are asked to discard any cigarettes they have on their person. Then they are told to get rid of any cigarettes at home. "Availability is half the problem," she says.

"The only thing between you and the end of your smoking habit is the ability to take the first step — empty your pockets of cigarettes and keep them empty. Smoking isn't an addiction; it's a deeply ingrained habit. If you stop suddenly, you won't suffer any severe physical pains or withdrawal symptoms.

"Of course you need a sincere desire to stop. That's why we (and all clincs) charge a fee. You'd be surprised at how many people, particularly men, stop smoking because stopping is costing them something."

But, she adds, her blue eyes twinkling, "What the program costs in dollars is immeasurable in terms of years added to your life."

A TEACHER, not a crusader is Mrs. Edith Roberts, founder of Smoke-Stoppers, Inc.

Princess Margaret Regains Limelight With Asia Tour

By MARGARET SAVILLE

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Margaret regains some limelight this fall with an exotic tour of Japan, Cambodia and Iran.

But it is a telling sign that the fashions which her husband, Lord Snowdon, wears on the tour are more likely to create interest than the wardrobe she takes with her.

For Queen Elizabeth's sister, who just turned 39, this has been the year when the new generation of the royal family consumed the newspaper space once devoted to her.

Prince Charles, 20, the heir to the throne, held the stage as newly invested Prince of Wales. Princess Margaret's husband took the fringe of publicity for stage-managing the investiture ceremony at Caernarvon Castle.

TWO LESS immediate but very popular members of the royal family, Princess Alexandra and the Duchess of Kent, already perform more public duties than Princess Margaret does.

Now Princess Anne, 19, the queen's daughter, has blossomed and organizers are vying to get her to launch their ship or visit their building.

As public attention moves elsewhere, Princess Margaret gets more time to relax. In the winter, she went on a Caribbean vacation with friends while Snowdon was working on his latest television project, a documentary about pet owners and their pets. Before the Far Eastern trip, she and Snowdon flew to Sardinia for a summer vacation as the guests of the Aga Khan.

THEY LEAVE for Tokyo Sept. 19, and while there will help publicize British export week. From Japan, they go to Cambodia Sept. 30-Oct. 4 and on to Iran at the invitation of the Shah.

Princess Margaret has the same tendency to plumpness that her mother developed in her 30's but she does not appear to have worried about dieting off the extra weight before the trip. She has, however, ordered a large new wardrobe in her favorite colors of brilliant pink, jade green, yellow and white. One of her new evening gowns has a modernistic design of scrolls, flowers and leaves in many different colors.

SNOWDON HAS been making more fashion news than his wife recently because he disigned his own uniform for the investiture of Prince Charles. He abandoned the medieval costume worn by previous constables of Caernarvon Castle — his official title—and took to a bottle green suit with a plain fronted tunic coat rounded off by a Nehru collar.

His liking for bright colors and the latest fashion trends had a sequel in court when a private motorist, Gordon Bennett, sued him for causing an obstruction by parking his Aston Martin car so Bennett could not move his own.

Bennett said, "I did not recognize him at the time. He was wearing a bright array of clothes. To be quite honest, I thought he may have been a member of a 'pop' group coming from the British Broadcasting Corporation studios nearby. Someone with him was carrying a guitar."

Snowdon was fined five pounds ($12) on the parking charge.

HE PLANS to do a considerable amount of photography on the Asian trip and has said he may incorporate the best of the pictures in a book. He already has published several large illustrated books about previous overseas travel trips, including Malta and Italy. Before his marriage to the princess in 1960, he was one of the official court photographers.

The Snowdons will be traveling with quite an entourage. The princess will be accompanied by a lady-in-waiting and a male secretary who will act as equerry, escorting her when necessary. She also takes her personal maid and her own hairdresser. Snowdon takes his secretary, a valet, and also a photography assistant.

While they are away from their Kefington Palace home, their two children, Viscount Linley, 8, and Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones, 5, will be in the charge of their grandmother, Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother.

The booklet, "Getting News Into Your Newspaper," is issued as a service of the Independent-Journal Women's Section to assist press chairmen for women's organizations.

This is a purple passion.

We have a passion for purple, too. In fact, we love it almost to pieces. We love dresses and pants and shirts of it. We love part purple things and all purple things. And in new fabrics, like shiny vibrating nylon, we think it's like a brand new color. And another thing. We can't think of a color that looks so well with so many other colors. We love purple with reds. And silver. And white. And black. And all those funny greens. And we're really hung up on the way it looks under furs. Like to put a little passion in your life? It could start with just one something purple.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

College Student's Declaration Of Independence Scares Parents

DEAR HELEN:

I am sending you two lengthy letters which have two very different viewpoints. One is from me, representing the parental attitude, the other from our daughter. We'd like your opinion. First, my letter:

Dear Helen: We are the parents of a wonderful, bright, sensible and well-adjusted 18-year-old girl. Our relationship has been very gratifying. Raising her has been a joy. Our home has always been filled with love and mutual respect, faith and trust.

Our first serious difference is with us now. Sandy had a fine freshman year at college, helped along by a lovely roommate. But this year she has chosen for her replacement (the other girl transferred) a wild type who has tried pot and, as they say, "sleeps around."

This girl is doing everything we have taught our daughter is morally and physically wrong. Our Sandy admits she may be a "Hedonist," but feels she can help her and, at any rate, her lack of morals won't rub off, she says. I get the impression that Sandy almost admires these idiots for their independence.

We have never tried to run our daughter's life, only to guide her, but on this issue we feel we must be adamant. We do not want her in such close association with immorality. Are we — OVER-PROTECTIVE PARENTS?

Next, our daughter's letter:

Dear Helen: I respect and admire my parents, and I sympathize for they are in a common situation. Their daughter came home from a year at college not exactly the same person she was at age 17.

My nature didn't change except that I became more self-reliant. But I was made aware of viewpoints and experiences that were different from those which 13 years of Catholic school — plus a very close-knit family life — taught me.

The college I attend is one of the best in the country. My folks have sacrificed a lot to send me there, and I appreciate it greatly.

Last year they were very proud of me, but now they are having second thoughts. Why? Because I have chosen as my roommate a girl whose moral ideas are different from theirs — and mine. My mother condemns her for this while I do not. She and Dad live by an absolute moral code, but I prefer to judge individuals, and individual situations. I do not consider necessarily immoral every girl who may sleep with a man she does not intend to marry. Even though I am still a virgin and have no plans or inclination to change my status, this attitude of mine they consider blasphemy. They are sure that if I live with a lost soul I, too, will seal my fate, which to them still appears almost a fate worse than death.

Perhaps this roommate controversy isn't the real issue, but has only brought it to a head. I maintain that something must be lacking here, in me, in them, in both of us: If I have grown up to be the person they have tried (I think very successfully) to make me, they should not worry. I will do only what I feel is right to do. They know this, but they fear that I will come to consider right what they believe to be wrong. They tell me they sent me away to school because they had faith and trust in me.

I think they should exercise this trust and allow me to make my own decisions and judgments — even to making my own mistakes. With this taken away, my education is useless. Do these feelings make me an — UNREASONABLE DAUGHTER?

DEAR MOTHER AND DAUGHTER:

You are neither an overprotective mother, nor an unreasonable daughter because you're both reacting in totally normal and predictable ways. What parent isn't frightened when a child declares independence — and what young adult worth her salt wants to stay under the parental thumb, no matter how lovely and safe it is down there?

You have raised your daughter well, "Mother," and now it's time to let go. Because you've given her firm standards you can expect her to continue living in a way that will make her feel proud of herself — and you proud of her! Those 18 years of happy, close-knit family life won't be washed away. Rather, I'd guess, this rebellion-based friendship may be washed up in a few months. You'll see. — H.

Unisex Life In 2000 A.D.

EXETER, England (AP) — Father will be washing dishes and changing diapers by the year 2000 while mother washes the car and mows the lawn, a sociologist predicted Tuesday.

Peter Wilmott, director of the London Institute of Community Studies, calls it "unisex" marriage. The switch in roles already is happening in the United States, he told delegates to the annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of science.

The sexes are becoming more alike in the United States, boys and girls are being given ambivalent names, and male and female styles of hair and dress are making it increasingly difficult to tell the sexes apart, he said.

"Men spend more than women on perfumed preparations," Wilmott said, adding that a similar trend is beginning in Britain.

"The unisex family, as Wilmott described it, would introduce a system in which husband and wife would pursue their jobs and share their household chores.

Children would withdraw into their own world with their own personal television and telephones and leave home to live elsewhere earlier than they do today, the sociologist said.

Labor Trouble Shuts Two Weeks Of Met

NEW YORK (UPI)—The third and fourth weeks of the New York Metropolitan Opera's fall season were postponed yesterday after union and management negotiations were suspended.

The Met and representatives of dancers, musicians, and choristers unions called for a "cooling off period" and Special Mediator David Cole said negotiations would only resume when he feels progress can be made.

The Sept. 15 opening night performance had already been canceled, and Oct. 13 remains the first night performances could resume if a wage settlement is reached, according to the Met.

Dancers and choristers have been offered a $3,500 annual salary increase spread over three years. Dancers have averaged $6,500 and singers $10,500 under the old contract.

The Met musicians were offered a raise from $260 a week to $315 over the same three year period, according to the Met.

Playwrights Ban Together Over Nudism

LONDON (AP) — Playwrights Harold Pinter and David Mercer have formed a theatrical management company with a built-in bias against nudism.

Pinter said he will not present nude plays "unless somebody writes one about Adam and Eve."

Mercer, who has worked for the Royal Shakespeare Company, commented: "Plays are written to be performed, not to be some kind of improvised arrangement with the audience.

"I am old fashioned enough to believe that the current trend of nudity is not necessary."

The company aims to have writers and directors working together in all aspects of theatrical production.

Movie Theater Suing BART

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The owners of a Market Street movie house filed suit against the Bay Area Rapid Transit District yesterday, claiming construction was driving away customers.

The $2.2 million suit by the owners of the Orpheum Theater said work on the BART Civic Center station had resulted in "offensive noises, odors, vibrations, and the dissemination of dust and dirt."

The theater said it suffered an inability to get good pictures, the disruption of showings, and the discouragement of patrons.

Japan Week Picketing Competes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Chants of "Death to the (U.S.-Japan) Security Pact" mingled with "Ho Chi Minh is gone away, but Jesus is here to stay" during a demonstration yesterday at the Japan Trade Fair.

The Asian Coalition had scheduled a picket line as the second in a series of protests to Japan Week. The 30 young leftist demonstrators, however, were met by a dozen young "Right On Christians" with their own picket line.

Several young members of the Christian group were bearded and barefoot and the unwary could be excused for becoming confused—particularly when they handed out a newspaper called Right On.

At first glance, it looked like an underground sheet. But the main article began: "Rumor has it that one of our people died for our sins, was buried and rose again three days later . . ."

When the coalition formed its picket line, with such signs as "Off Every Pig" and "800 Million Chinese Can't Be Wrong," the Right On group got in step.

The groovy Christian's signs read "Liberate Christians in Russia" and "A God is a God is a God until you've Trusted Jesus."

"They're pigs, provocateurs," one militant complained.

"We're just Christians," said John C. Glennen, 24, as he strummed his guitar.

Teen-Ager Is Cut In Accident

Gary Dennis Diego, 14, of 23 Blossom Drive, San Rafael, suffered multiple facial cuts yesterday when the car he was driving went over an embankment on Shoreline Highway between Muir and Stinson Beaches, the California Highway Patrol said today.

The Marin Catholic High School student was treated for his cuts at Marin General Hospital. A passenger in the car, Joseph Jay Cresalia, 16, of 180 Montecito Road, also San Rafael, apparently did not require hospital treatment.

The patrol's report on the late afternoon mishap was incomplete and further details were unavailable today.

Chairman Named For Nominating Panel

Wayne Bulette was named chairman of a nominating committee to select a slate of officers for next year for the San Marin Improvement Association at a board meeting Tuesday night, according to Guthrie R. Greene, president.

The preliminary slate of officers will be presented at the Oct. 8 meeting, the time and place to be announced later, Greene said. The election will be held in January with write-in votes possible, he said.

Brothers Held Equally To Blame In Slaying

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Two brothers, who each blamed the other for the murder of Ramon Novarro, are equally guilty of killing the silent screen actor, the prosecution contended in its summation at their trial.

It appeared today as attorneys for Paul and Thomas Ferguson began their closing arguments that the defense lawyers would be pitted against each other as well as the prosecution.

Deputy Dist. Atty. James M. Ideman told the jury of seven men and five women yesterday:

"You have to decide both are guilty...you'll never know who struck what blow. But it doesn't matter if you find they acted together for torture of robbery."

The prosecution contends the Chicago brothers went to the 69-year-old actor's home in the Hollywood Hills last October with the intent of torturing him to reveal the whereabouts of $5,000 the brothers believed hidden in the home.

"These two young men," Ideman said, "wanted to make a big score—but they went too far."

Ideman said Novarro did not keep large amounts of money in his home. "The problem was that the aggressive one—Paul—wouldn't take no for an answer," the prosecutor said.

At another point in his summation, Ideman said the actor was "trussed up like an animal and beaten to death-...this was deliberate torture. I recommend a verdict as to both defendants of murder in the first degree."

Cletus J. Hanifin, who continued his summation on behalf of Paul, 23, today, began his argument by indicating Thomas, 18, is prone to fantasy.

The attorney said that in a telephone call from Novarro's home to an old girl friend in Chicago the night of the murder, Thomas said the actor's home had 32 rooms, 700 pictures and an upstairs solarium.

Hanifin asserted the home actually had only nine rooms, 20 to 25 pictures and no solarium.

Hanifin was expected to conclude his presentation today and then Richard A. Walton will make his summation for Thomas.

School District Gets A Library

The Bolinas-Stinson Beach School District will reach another milestone next week in its modernization program with the opening of the district's first library separate from a classroom, Supt. Clarence B. Larison said today.

The library will house about 3,000 volumes, is located at the Bolinas School and will be located in a former classroom freed by installation of a new portable classroom at the school.

Formerly, Larison said, the library had to share a room with classes "to the detriment of both the library and the classroom."

The library will open for student use Monday.

Volunteers Sought To Aid Seal Work

An appeal for volunteer typists to help ready Christmas seals for mailing was issued today by the Marin Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Also needed are numerous individuals or groups to perform premailing tasks, which require no skills or experience. Information may be obtained from the association office at 206 Bon Air Center, Greenbrae.

Forestry Chief Sees Timber Lack

PORTLAND (UPI)—The head of the U.S. Forest Service said yesterday timber production will have to be "substantially increased" to meet the nation's housing goals for the next 30 years.

"Our current timber supplies," said Edward P. Cliff, "are not sufficient to last us, to meet the nation's need, over the long term. We can meet the needs of the next 10 years and perhaps the following two decades, but it will take intensive, accelerated forest management with a considerable investment in improved practices ranging from insect control to access roads to thinning and research."

Miller Creek School Fire Called Act Of Arsonist

The $50,000 fire that gutted the Miller Creek School administration building Tuesday night was the work of an arsonist, Marinwood Fire Chief Gaylord E. Bonfield declared today.

An arson specialist from the San Francisco office of the American Insurance Association will be called in to inspect the charred remains at 2255 Las Galinas Avenue, Bonfield said.

"It's just about certain it was arson," he said. "There were at least three sets. One was on a couch in the faculty lounge. Another had to be in the principal's office, although it is too badly charred to tell exactly where. And the third was in the front counter of the reception desk where fluid had been poured over some papers."

The chief said ditto fluid kept in the office is missing, and this could have been used to set the blaze.

"There is also evidence that the medicine cabinet in the nurse's office had been broken into, but school authorities say there were no drugs kept there."

The same school area was the scene of several other spot fires set yesterday afternoon by teen-agers playing with matches.

About 3:30 p.m. firemen raced to a grassy slope behind the school and doused flames that scorched an area about 10 by 20 feet. "There were about 20 other small spot fires around the area as if somebody had thrown book matches," said Bonfield. "Witnesses said they saw three kids about 13 setting the fires. Fortunately, the grass had been mowed. If there had been a wind, flames could have raced up the hillside."

"We are going to be just as tough as laws allow in any future fires set by juveniles," Bonfield warned.

There are about 1.8 million railroad freight cars in the United States.

Four Marinites On U.S. Jury

Four Marin County residents were selected by Judge Albert C. Wollenberg yesterday for the new Federal Grand Jury in San Francisco.

Antone J. Ivicevich of San Francisco was named foreman of the 23-member jury and Gordon T. Kono of Alameda was chosen as deputy foreman.

The Marinites, who will serve until January are: William Brannan of 21 Hillcrest Drive, San Rafael; Sue J. Clark of 750 Idylberry Road, San Rafael; William G. George of 266 Adele Street, Novato, and Thomas A. Guerin of Ames Avenue, Ross.

Egyptians Fly Three Raids In Retaliation

TEL AVIV (AP) — Egyptian planes carried out repeated strikes against Israeli forces in the occupied Sinai Desert today in retaliation for Israel's attacks against the Egyptian coastline south of Suez.

The Israelis claimed they shot down seven of the raiders and probably bagged an eighth one in two raids against its positions.

Egypt reported downing four Israeli planes and destroying Israeli artillery, naval installations, antiaircraft batteries ammunition dumps and an administrative headquarters in three successive attacks.

There was no word from Israeli headquarters on the third reported attack.

The Egyptian attacks were in retaliation for the Israeli amphibious raid on Egypt's Gulf of Suez coast Tuesday, in which Israeli troops reported killing 100-150 Egyptians, and an air attack in the same area Wednesday.

Earlier, Israeli planes struck across the Jordan River into Jordan.

The army said two Israeli planes flew across the Jordan to knock out an Arab guerrilla position south of the Sea of Galilee. The Israelis said the guerrillas had fired on three Israeli patrols. The military spokesman said both planes returned safely.

The army also reported four Arab saboteurs were killed in a clash with Israeli troops near the Damiya Bridge across the Jordan north of the Dead Sea.

In the northern Jordan Valley, the Israelis said Jordanian forces blew up a water pump turbine today, threatening the water supply to an Israeli kibbutz.

The San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge opened to traffic Nov. 12, 1936.

Vietnam Lull Ends; Fierce Encounter North Of Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. forces returned to the offensive today at the end of a three-day truce called by the Viet Cong to mourn the death of President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam. Fierce fighting broke out north of Saigon.

"We're back to normal," said one U.S. field officer, referring to the defensive posture American units assumed during the cease-fire. "We're after the enemy again. We're going into areas where we've had reports of movements or bunkers."

The truce ended at 1 a.m. today, and enemy forces followed it up with 39 attacks on bases and towns, mostly with barrages of rockets and mortars.

The U.S. Command responded by sending B52s to dump a million pounds of explosives on enemy positions. The big bombers were not used during the cease-fire.

Most of the fighting was in the Third Corps military zone north of Saigon, the scene of many battles since the Communist command launched an autumn campaign last month.

About 20 miles to the south, other elements of the 25th Division discovered the bodies of 23 North Vietnamese soldiers killed by artillery shortly after the cease-fire ended.

In the north, 31 enemy soldiers were reported killed in an attack on an element of the U.S. 196th Light Infantry Brigade southwest of Da Nang. Four Americans were killed and 12 wounded.

Allied spokesmen announced that during the cease-fire period, the enemy initiated at least 67 actions, about two-thirds of them against South Vietnamese troops.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Command reported 137 Americans were killed in action and 1,449 were wounded last week, compared with 185 killed and 1,057 wounded the week before.

Kent Lake Spillway Swimmers Draw Fines

Two nude sunbathers were fined and six others were placed on 90 days probation yesterday in West Marin Justice Court after they pleaded guilty to charges of disturbing the peace.

Nancy E. Burgard, 20, of 108 Carson Road, Woodacre, was fined $25 and Stephen L. Watkins, 22, of 641 Magnolia Avenue, San Anselmo, was fined $35 for swimming naked in the Kent Lake Spillway last Firday.

Placed on 90 days probation for being nude near Stinson Beach Sunday were Bruce Gordon, 26 and Joy Angela Gordon, 23, both of 142 Park Street, San Rafael; Roger J. Kase, 22, Anella Kase, 20, and Stephen V. Gregg, 24, all of San Francisco and James R. Nicoll, 24, of 59 Lovell Avenue, Mill Valley.

Judge David R. Baty said the differences in sentences were because swimmers at the Kent Lake Spillway have been repeatedly warned about public nudity, whereas those getting probation were in a secluded cove near Stinson Beach where no previous arrests or warnings have occurred.

The judge said, however, that he told the six to "spread the word" to other nude sunbathers who reportedly use the cove that other arrests will bring stiffer penalties.

Fire Board Sells Surplus Ignacio Land

The Novato Fire District board last night sold a surplus piece of property for $100,000 to the Ralston Purina Co. for a Jack-in-the-Box restaurant, Fire Chief Jack Kidder reported today.

This was the only bid received by the district for the property and was higher than the $95,000 minimum set by the board.

The district originally received the property from the state Division of Highways as surplus property after the construction of the Ignacio overpass.

The district retained 26,775 square feet of the property for a fire station, Kidder said. It offered the remaining land for sale twice before with minimum bids set at $175,000 and $100,000.

The vote last night was 3-0 with Chairman Peter Ferrarese absent from the four-man board.

The Novato Fire District Board also:

TRUCK — Authorized the staff to prepare specifications for a new tanker truck.

TRAINING — Appointed Asst. Chief Alvin Butti as special training officer effective next Monday.

FIRE-RAMA — Approved taking the snorkel truck to the annual Marin County Fire Departments Fire-rama at Redwood High School on Oct. 5.

Woman Robbed, Bound To Auto

A Novato woman reported that she was robbed of the night's receipts from the San Rafael restaurnat where she worked, by a bearded hippie who tied her to her car, police reported today.

Patriciann G. Camporeale, 22, of 20 Santa Maria Drive, said she was leaving Anjo s Restaurant at 535 Fourth Street at 10 p.m. yesterday when a young man walked up to her with a gun. Placing the muzzle against her chin he demanded she hand over her purse, taking $15 from her purse and $168 in restuarant receipts from her dress pocket. He then tied her hands to the door handle with wire, she said.

After the robber left she called for help and was heard and untied by Mrs. Edith E. Andrews, who had been in her bedroom at 527 Fourth Street, next to the restaurant parking lot.

Peacock Gap Show Attracts 1,800 Dogs

Enough dogs to give every cat in the Bay Area the jitters will descend on Marin County this weekend, in a canine convention featuring eight separate dog shows and fun matches.

The feature event will be the annual Sir Francis Drake Kennel Club's championship show at Peacock Gap Sunday, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nearly 1,800 dogs in 97 breeds will compete in conformation and obedience in 16 judging rings.

NATIONWIDE COMPETITION

Dogs from all over the U.S., Canada and other nations have been entered for the event, according to Mrs. Jan Hampton of Tiburon, president of SFDKC. An added attraction at the show will be the second annual running of the whippet races, to choose the 10 fastest West Coast specimens of the coursing breed. First heat of the daylong racing card will be at 11 a.m.

Another feature of the show will be a display of pet portraits by Corte Madera artist Stanley Ferguson, whose works were featured on the cover and inside last week's Marin Magazine of the Independent-Journal.

One of the most popular events of the day will be the junior handling competition, in which scores of youngsters from 8 to 16 years old are judged on their skill in showing dogs in the ring.

ONE-BREED SHOWS

Preliminaries to the big all-breed show Sunday will be five one-breed, specialty shows in Marin on Saturday, plus two fun matches.

The 20-acre Peacock Gap showgrounds will be the scene beginning at 9 a.m. of the national specialties for Kerry blue terrier and Gordon setter owners, as well as regional specialties the Poodle Club of Central California and the Golden Gate Dachshund Club.

At Rancho Rafael in Novato will be a Dobermann Pinscher fun match, and the Northern California English Bulldog fanciers will again have their specialty at the Lodge north of Novato. Great Danes will have a match at Corte Madera Park.

County Orders Fire Walls At Apartment Unit

Paul Sade, developer of Crest Marin apartments on the six-acre hill behind Chateau restaurant north of San Rafael, must install several fire resistant walls to meet code standards. from the Marin County Building

This decision came yesterday from the Marin County Building Code Board of Appeals, headed by Ray W. Foreaker Jr., chairman.

Hans J. Berge, county building inspector, reported that seven or eight fire resistant walls are required in various parts of the 104-unit project, largely in the carport areas.

Sade appealed to the board of appeals to be exempted from installing the one-hour and two-hour fire resistant walls.

The board decided unanimously that the fire walls must be added as required by the building inspector.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

THIRD SECTION SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1969 21

TAKE A RIDE—Marin County business and civic leaders watched yesterday as a group of their conferees took a demonstration ride in a Golden West Airlines DeHavilland Twin Otter. The airline wants to start a feeder service from the Smith Brothers Ranch airport to San Francisco International Airport and the Marinites were unanimous in their approval of the proposal. (Independent-Journal photograph by Bob Hax)

Feeder Pitch At Smith 'Airport'

By FRANK CHESLEY

The Smith Brothers Ranch airport — which does not legally exist — took a big step toward respectability yesterday when 30 Marin business and civic leaders listened to a proposal from Golden West Airlines for a feeder service from the strip to San Francisco International Airport.

David B. Vail, chairman of the Marin County Aviation Commission, and Melvin S. Halpern, Golden West's director of planning and research, agreed that the service could start within 60 days, if the approval of several governmental bodies can be obtained.

That "if" looms large. The service must have the approval of the county, the California Department of Aeronautics and the Federal Aviation Agency. Then there are the questions of annexation of the area by the City of San Rafael, zoning problems and possible opposition from Hamilton Air Force Base.

But the Marin leaders, who also were given a fast turn around the San Rafael area in a DeHavilland Twin Otter, were unanimous in their desire to see such a service get off the ground.

Eugene R. Trombley, a member of the Marin County Planning Commission, one of the local bodies which must approve the service, said he was hopeful that a feeder service could begin soon.

"We're in a position to go ahead as soon as the money is available," he said.

Richard Duncan, president of the Quail Hill Development Corp., said, "All of us have been interested in commercial aviation for Marin for a long time."

Also on hand were three FAA observers: John Zenter, manager of the local office at Oakland; his assistant, Charles Panos, and Les Hopkins, an airport planner headquartered in Burlingame.

Halpern told the group that Golden West probably would start out with two or three flights a day to the San Francisco airport, with flights to other Bay Area cities coming later.

Golden West was formed through a merger of Skymark, Aero Commuter, Cable Commuter, Catalina and Golden West airlines. It provides feeder service from Santa Rosa and Sacramento to Southern California.

At present, Robert de Young leases the airport property on a short-term basis from DSI Corp., but said the lessor approves of the use of the land for an airport.

The Marin group was lavish in its praise of the Twin Otter, a short-take-off-and-landing (STOL) craft which coped with the airport's primitive facilities with ease.

Halpern said the craft could make the trip to San Francisco International in 20 minutes. He said no fare structure had been set, but that it probably would be comparable to current helicopter fares from Waldo Point or less.

Golden West prefers Smith Ranch to Novato's Gnoss Field because of its proximity to the county's center of population.

De Young said, "If the county wants the airport, we're willing to put in the facilities at no public cost."

He emphasized that the field would remain private, with no other commercial facilities.

Sausalito Sets $220,000 Bond Vote For Nov. 4

Sausalito City Council last night set an election for Nov. 4 on a $220,000 bond issue to pay for new construction on the city's fire house and police station and Tiffany Beach.

The council introduced the date-setting ordinance, which it will give final approval next Tuesday. The city now has no bonded indebtedness.

If approved by two-thirds of the registered voters the election would authorize $85,000 for work on the fire station, $80,000 for the police station and $65,000 for Tiffany Beach.

City Mgr. George M. Patterson said that the bonds will not increase the city tax rate of $1.315 per $100 assessed valuation.

The council set a 20-year limit for repayment of the bonds, after discussion of the merits of a 25-year period.

Councilman Robin Sweeny said a 25-year period would enable more people to participate in the repayment but noted that the city would have other unknown costs in 20 years. The five-year difference equals three-quarters of a cent in the tax rate.

The bonds would pay for the construction of additions and reconstruction of sections of the main fire station at 20 Caledonia Street to provide dormitory space, a combination day room and kitchen, more equipment storage room and other improvements.

Police headquarters at Johnson and Caledonia Streets, now leased by the city, would be purchased and construction of additional office space, site improvements and other improvements would be accomplished.

Tiffany Beach reconstruction would include a rock revetment on the bay side of Bridgeway Boulevard with sand filling behind it to create a public beach.

In related action the council set 8 p.m. Wednesday for a meeting for all persons interested in forming a bond issue committee to sell the election to voters. It will be held in the council chambers at 729 Bridgeway Boulevard.

The council agreed that the committee had to be established quickly, and last night Mrs. Sweeny and other councilmen gave the names of organizations and individuals they thought would help the city clerk. Letters will be sent inviting them to the meeting.

The council also noted that today was the last day to register for the election for persons who have not previously done so or have moved since the last election.

Harbor Carriers Claims Strikers Not Allowed To Vote On Contract

Officials of Harbor Carriers, operator of the Tiburon commute ferry, today claimed that ferry and tour boat employees, striking for higher wages, have not been allowed to vote on three wage increase proposals made during the past three-and-a-half months.

Albert C. Elledge, president of Harbor Carriers and Golden Gate Scenic Steamship Lines, said officials of the Marin Engineers Beneficial Association have reneged on a promise to the 16 marine engineers who run the tour boats and commuter ferry that they could settle their own contract separately from that of tug boat operators.

Union officials were not available today for comment.

Elledge said the latest offer by his company to end the strike which started June 4 would raise wages from $690 now paid to $900 a month the first year, a 29.7 per cent increase, $975 the second year and $1,050 the third year.

"If the members vote to reject a wage offer, that is one thing," Elledge said. "But when the members actually concerned do not even get the right to vote, then that is something else, and not in the best interest of the general public," he said.

He claimed that at a union meeting Monday, presumably called to allow operators to vote on wage offers, the general membership "rushed through" a motion to prevent the 16 operators from separately negotiating their own contract, in violation of a previous promise.

Elledge said his company is receiving an increasing number of telephone calls complaining about the strike.

Hearings Planned On Shore Sewers

The Bolinas Community Public Utility District board last night agreed to hold public hearings within a month on the proposed new sewer district for Bolinas and Stinson Beach, board secretary Jane Phillips reported today.

The board also said it would set a joint meeting soon with Stinson Beach officials to discuss the proposed sewer district which would clear the way for an estimated $2.3 million sewage system for the two shore communities.

District officials were authorized by the board to begin stockpiling pipeline for the sewer district by purchasing 400 feet of four-inch pipe and 500 feet of six-inch pipe. Mrs. Phillips said the cost of the pipe has not been determined.

In other action, the board set a special meeting for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday to award a contract for laying new pipeline on Wharf Road. Five bids have been submitted.

Innocent Plea On Perjury Charge

San Quentin inmate Clarence Morris pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to committing perjury in statements he made in a petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

A jury trial was set for the week of Jan. 5.

In his petition Morris claimed that he had made a deal with a Los Angeles prosecutor and then was double-crossed. He said that his attorney said a promise had been made by a deputy district attorney for a six-month jail sentence instead of the prison terms he received.

He is serving three concurrent terms for two counts of possessing marijuana for sale and one of possessing a dangerous drug.

Named To Board

The Mariner Cove Improvement Association board last night appointed Virgil Hammock Jr. to the board of directors.

Burglar Gets Nothing In Medical Offices

The offices of a doctor and dentist were broken into Monday night by a burglar who took nothing but may have been looking for narcotics, San Rafael police said yesterday.

Dr. Edward P. Borlo, whose dental practice is at 908 B Street, and the Planned Parenthood Association, which operates a medical office at 710 C Street, reported that their offices were ransacked. The thief had pried open rear windows at both sites and gone through drawers and cabinets. Nothing was noticed missing, police said.

Today is Thursday, Sept. 11, the 254th day of 1969 with 111 to follow.

The moon is new. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1777 Gen. George Washington's troops were badly defeated by the British at the Battle of Brandywine.

In 1841 all members of President John Tyler's cabinet resigned except Secretary of State Daniel Webster, in protest over the veto of a banking bill.

In 1940 Buckingham Palace in London was damaged by German bombers.

In 1963 all 18 aboard an Indian airlines Viscount died when the plane crashed near New Delhi.

A thought for the day: Washington Irving said, "A woman's whole life is a history of affections."

Larkspur To Get Yule Lights Again

Larkspur will get its Christmas street lights back again this year.

The Larkspur Chamber of Commerce directors yesterday authorized paying Pacific Gas and Electric Company $1,337 to install weatherproof electric sockets on utility poles on Magnolia Avenue between Doherty Drive and King Street.

The directors also named a committee to raise the $1,337, president Neil R. Brixon reported. Brixon said Larkspur has had no holiday lighting for the past two seasons since a safety ruling against temporary outdoor electrical connections.

Always Lay The Groundwork Before Attempting A Finesse

"That was an unlucky hand, but I am used to bad luck," South said bravely after going down one on today's hand. "Finesses work for other people, but never for me. The last time I succeeded with a finesse was in 1964, but that doesn't count because I was just filling in for somebody else after the cards had already been dealt." We all managed to look sympathetic, but it was quite a struggle; we had heard South's hard luck stories many times before.

KING OF HEARTS

West opened the king of hearts, and then shifted to the jack of diamonds. South took the king of diamonds, drew three rounds of trumps, ending in the dummy and then tried a finesse with the ten of clubs.

West won with the king of clubs and led another diamond. South won in dummy with the ace of diamonds and tried a finesse with the jack of clubs.

CLUB TAKES

West won with the queen of clubs and cashed the ace of hearts to defeat the contract. This was when South made his brave little speech.

Do you see why the rest of us were so unsympathetic to South? Can you find a way to make the contract despite the bad luck in clubs? Look for the right line of play before you read on.

BEGAN WELL

South began well when he took the king of diamonds and drew three rounds of trumps. But it was then too early to try a club finesse.

Instead, South should cash the ace of diamonds and ruff a diamond. Then South must lead a heart.

West takes the ace of hearts and gets out safely with a heart to dummy's queen. Only now can South afford to try a finesse with the ten of clubs.

NO SAFE RETURN

West can win with the king of clubs (or the queen), but he cannot make a safe return If West returns a club, South gets a free finesse. If West returns anything else, declarer ruffs in dummy and discards a club from his hand.

The right preparation makes the contract unbeatable, despite the bad luck.

Talk Of New Look For Legislature In '70

SACRAMENTO (UPI)--Senate and Assembly leaders, after adjourning a special veto override session they considered a waste of time and money, announced plans today to streamline the Legislature in 1970.

Assembly Speaker Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, indicated he will propose that the Legislature begin doing things more the way congress does by moving toward two-year sessions.

Monagan is preparing a constitutional amendment which could go on next year's statewide ballot. It would provide that the Legislature would remain in session, except for recesses, for a two-year period. Bills could stay alive for the duration.

Now, the Legislature adjourns each year and starts all over again with new bills in January. Specific details still are being worked out, the speaker's office said.

Sen. President Pro Tem Howard Way, R-Exeter, said the Monagan plan has "possibilities" and he wants to study it. He questioned, however, whether the legislature would be prepared to take such a bold step next year. It has only been since 1967 that lawmakers have been meeting in annual general sessions.

Way did disclose some other things he plans to put into effect.

The new Senate leader wants his house in 1970 to concentrate more on rapid transit as a solution to transportation problems.

"More and more freeways is not the answer," he said.

Way said a professor at the University of California at Davis is studying the Senate's workload and will recommend how to restructure committees to make better use of members' time—particularly in a session's early months.

Monagan and Way both plan to push for an end to the special veto override sessions, which were voted in along with constitutional revision in 1966.

There hasn't been an override since 1946 and nobody even came close this year. Most Republicans remained loyal to Gov. Ronald Reagan and beat down Democratic attempts to overturn vetoes of their pet bills.

The only Republican in either house who dared asked that one of his vetoed bills be resurrected was Sen. Fred W. Marler of Redding. The senator complained the legislature had fallen into a pattern of not opposing governors on vetoes and was dangeroulsy close to abdicating its responsibilities.

"If we continue to follow this policy we'll never take on the governor," Marler said. "We can't say the legislature is co-equal with the governor."

Marler asked the Senate yesterday to overturn a veto of a bill that would have exempted the East Nicholaus and the Wheatland Union High School districts in the Sacramento Valley from an area-wide tax requirement in school aid computations. He fell five votes short of the 27 needed.

The Senate also refused to override Reagan's veto for the second straight year of a bill which would have established an open presidential primary system in California.

The author, Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, said Reagan vetoed the bill because of his "own personal political ambitions." Reagan ran as a favorite son candidate last year and, in effect, discouraged other presidential aspirants from entering the GOP primary.

Other vetoed measures which the Senate refused to resurrect would have earmarked $4.5 million for a school lunch program, appropriated surplus remedial reading funds for special summer reading programs, restored $1.1 million for the Modesto State Mental Hospital which Reagan wants to phase out, and spent $160,000 for planning of a new medical prison at Otay Mesa in San Diego County.

The Assembly, which refused Tuesday to override nine Reagan vetoes, didn't have enough members on hand Wednesday even for a quorum.

Gov. Ronald Reagan was absent the entire three-day session, representing President Nixon at dedication of a cultural center in the Philippines.

Unless Reagan calls a special session—which he isn't expected to—the legislature won't convene again until noon Jan. 5.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Mustard Gas, 30 Other Drugs Used To Cut Spread Of Cancer

VAN DELLEN

Several weeks ago one of our readers wanted to know whether mustard gas is used after an operation for cancer to prevent the spread of malignant cells. Yes, and others might be interested in know that there are 30 other useful drugs for this purpose.

Nitrogen mustard is a by-product of chemical warfare — mustard gas. Although the drug causes considerable toxicity, it induces a regression of leukemia and tumors of the lymph glands.

Drugs have produced few cancer cures but they have prolonged the lives of many and provided relief of symptoms and improved the sense of well-being. The cures have occurred mainly in a few types of leukemia and rare malignancies such as choriocarcinoma, Burkitt's lymphoma and Wilm's tumor.

Aminopterin, introduced more than 20 years ago as a treatment for leukemia, was soon replaced by methotrexate, a closely related, but less toxic product. The latter is one of the main drugs used today to treat leukemia and several other types of cancer. It is an antagonist of folic acid, one of the B vitamins, with a specific action in stimulating the development of red and white blood cells.

Hormones also are used to keep certain cancers under control. Dr. Charles B. Huggins, of the University of Chicago, found that female sex hormones reduced the size of prostatic cancers including malignant cells that had spread throughout the body. The corticosteroids such as ACTH and cortisone also are effective against acute and chronic leukemia, lymphosarcoma, and Hodgkin's disease.

Other drugs that are temporarily active against certain cancers are TEM, TEPA, thiotepa, and busulfan. Fluorouracil is of value in tumors of the colon, stomach and breat. Vincristine is now one of the main drugs for acute leukemia. Choriocarcinoma, a rare, but highly malignant tumor of the placenta and uterus, responds well to methotrexate, dactinomycin, or vinblastine.

We can expect many more of these drugs, and when the right one is discovered — we may have a cure.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

RAMPANT RED CELLS

K. C. writes: What causes too many red blood cells?

REPLY

Known causes include certain types of heart and lung diseases, high altitudes, and dehydration. In primary polycythemia, the cause is not known. The bone marrow works overtime and manufactures red blood corpuscles faster than they are destroyed normally.

SUN AND INFANT'S EYES

A reader writes: Does staring directly into a bright light injure a baby's eyes in any way?

REPLY

It could except that many babies close the lids when exposed to a bright light. Too much exposure tends to burn the delicate structures of the eye.

NAVEL AND PREGNANCY

A reader writes: My lady friend had a hernia operation and the doctor also removed her navel. Will this prevent her from becoming pregnant?

REPLY

The navel plays no role in sex or getting pregnant. It represents the sole remnant of a person's fetal connection with his mother.

WART ON EYELID

J. T. writes: Can a wart on an eyelid be burned off?

REPLY

Yes, but the job is too tricky for amateurs.

FLIGHT FOR YOUNGSTERS

Mrs. B. B. writes: Will flying harm the ears of a 2-year-old boy?

REPLY

Not if his ears are otherwise normal and he doesn't have a cold. I assume your flight will be in a pressurized cabin.

SIGNS OF TB

A reader writes: Do any specific signs point to tuberculosis?

REPLY

Not specifically. Cough, unexplained weight loss, fever, and bloody sputum are likely to be late manifestations. So many persons with tuberculosis do not have symptoms, that an annual chest X-ray and tuberculin skin tests are the best means of detecting the disease in its early stages.

PLUSH CAPITOL PLANS

Twin-Tower Idea Quietly Dropped

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Legislature has quietly dropped talk of a new $65 million twin tower Capitol that had been planned in secret and would have given each lawmaker an office as big as a three-bedroom home.

And Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, who traveled to capitals as far away as Brazil to get ideas for the project, has been replaced as a member of the planning committee, of which he was chairman.

It all was done this week by the Legislature's two Republican leaders, Senate President pro tem Howard Way of Exeter and Assembly Speaker Robert T. Monagan of Tracy — a pair of economy minded lawmakers.

As Way told it, the twin tower with toilets in each office and a 2,000-car garage might be too grandiose of a project in a day when the voters pocketbooks are strained by inflation and high taxes. Committee chairmen would have had 2,707 square-foot offices and rank and file lawmakers 1,693 square feet in space, as much as a middle-class three-bedroom house.

Legislative planners now are thinking of something more modest.

IDEA SHELVED

"At least for the time being, the tower approach to the problem has been shelved," Way told a reporter.

He noted Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan has promised the state work force will be no greater next year than it was when he was inaugurated in 1967.

"Perhaps our space needs will not be what some people projected," he said. "There is no doubt the state will grow, but there is no reason why government has to grow if we approve its efficiency."

The twin tower Capitol, rising 24 stories high, had been designed, in preliminary form, by the state architect at the request of the Joint Committee on Legislative Space Needs.

Collier said the present building was too small for a legislative branch that has grown in recent years. The Capitol was built in 1869 and an office building annex finished in 1954.

SECRET WORK?

As chairman of the committee, Collier did not announce its meetings on the Capitol bulletin board where notice is given of joint committee sessions. Nor was the public informed in other ways of the meetings.

Collier and some committee members traveled to Brasilia, Hawaii, Michigan, New York, New Mexico, Georgia and North Carolina looking at new capitols.

The trips and plans for the twin towers cost $40,545.

The legislators haven't yet turned in a report on their travels and plans, but Collier said it will be ready in a few days.

"I've got two versions in front of me and I haven't read them yet," he said.

Way said Collier was replaced as committee chairman as part of a reshuffling and reorganization of joint committees.

Collier, a Democrat, opposed Way's election as president pro tem. Next year, Collier is expected to be dumped as chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee.

Collier said he's not unhappy about leaving the committee and promised to help the new chairman, Assemblyman Eugene Chappie, R-Cool.

Chappie is known as a legislative economizer. But he said he also believes the legislature needs more space. "If the leadership wants me to continue," he said "I'm going to ask for permission to make a rough estimate of space needs for 15 years ahead and relate it to costs and needs."

Drive Opened For Buyer Of Expo Grounds

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Buyers and developers wanted: "Properties . . . strategically located in the City of Sacramento and ideally suited for large imaginative development."

In other words, they're trying to get someone to take over Cal Expo, originally envisioned as a $34 million "showcase of the Golden State." Expo was a financial flop its first year in 1968.

The state ran an advertisement in major West Coast newspapers yesterday — the day after the 1969 version of the State Fair ended—seeking "expressions of interest in the development and operation" of Cal Expo.

TALK SUCCESS

Meanwhile, officials of the fair were confident this year's 19-day fair was more successful financially than last year's entire 72-day season, which many called a failure.

Gen. Mgr. Thomas Bair said, "I think we will look very good financially" mainly because of changes in prices and attractions.

Attendance this year came to 857,426, compared with a total of 682,414 last year.

Bair said final figures may be available Friday on how the finances fared.

Assemblyman Walter Powers, D-Sacramento, whose proposal to streamline the management of Cal Expo was vetoed by Gov. Ronald Reagan, said he was encouraged by this year's performance.

He said the difference was in a return to the old State Fair concept. "If they'd gone to a Cal Expo concept I don't think it would have been successful," he said.

ADVERTISE BIDS

The Cal Expo development subcommittee, headed by Denis Babson, started the $2,000 advertising campaign to be sure all possible bidders were aware of the fact that the state wants private enterprise to take over.

The ads solicit interest in the Cal Expo site, surplus property next to it, and the old State Fair site east of downtown Sacramento.

A spokesman for the Department of General Services, which oversees Cal Expo, said the solicitations doesn't mean the project will be opened to competitive bidding.

At least two developers have submitted proposals to the Expo executive committee to take over the operation next year. Both insist the ads do not mean their offers have been rejected.

The department already has tried once to sell the 169-acre old fair site. Not a single bid was received.

Business Chiefs To Advise On Spending

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—California business leaders will be asked tomorrow to advise the Reagan administration on the economic impact of cutting back the state's $1 billion construction program.

"We will ask them what kind of cutbacks we could make in California that wouldn't harm the economy too much," Business and Transportation Secretary Gordon C. Luce reported.

Luce heads a task force of state officials who will recommend to Gov. Ronald Reagan which state construction programs can be cut back in line with President Richard M. Nixon's order to federal agencies to reduce new building starts by 75 per cent.

ASKS FOLLOWERS

The presidential order applied to work financed solely by the federal government. But he urged state and local governments to follow suit under warning that if they failed to do so, federal construction funds might be restricted.

The administration task force will catalogue all proposed state construction programs and suggest to Reagan which can be cut back in compliance with Nixon's anti-inflation measure. Gov. Ronald Reagan is expected to act next week.

Luce estimated the state construction program covering the next 20 months totals about $1 billion. This includes highways, state buildings, parks, water, college and other construction.

He disclosed yesterday after a task force meeting that economists from such firms as the Bank of America, TRW, Pacific Telephone, and Pacific Gas and Electric will advise the state officials on the economic impact on California of cutbacks.

"GOOD ECONOMY"

"We don't want to disturb the good economy of California," Luce said.

Earlier, he announced a freeze on award of any new construction contracts along with an indefinite delay in the advertising for bids on new projects. The freeze will remain in effect until Regan decides which projects can be postponed.

In highway projects alone, Luce reported, frozen contracts totaled $78.5 million. But he said contracts for repair of roads damaged by last winter's storms and flooding are being let.

"Most of these should go ahead," he said.

But he said a barrier to the task force's work was learning from the U.S. Budget Bureau what federal projects in California will be affected by the presidential order.

Such information must be known, he said, before the Reagan Administration can project the effects on unemployment.

He said construction executives have told him of their "concern" and that the general attitude seemed to be "if you let us go ahead with our contracts, maybe we'll find some other ways to cut costs."

Luce said he had received no reaction from labor leaders.

But earlier in the day an official of the California Building and Construction Trades Council warned that its 250,000 members may stage a one-day strike.

James Lee, council lobbyist, announced he will poll the major locals to determine whether they would support such a walkout. His warning followed defeat by the state Senate Rules Committee of a measure urging Nixon to minimize cutbacks in federal construction.

Black Power Leader Wins Home Flight

LONDON (AP) — American Negro revolutionary Robert F. Williams today won his fight to return to the United States on the airline he bought a ticket from.

Trans World Airlines, which had refused previously to take Williams across the Atlantic, announced it would take him on a special flight. It said the only passengers would be the 44-year-old black power leader's lawyer and an airline security guard.

TWA said it would transport Williams "in response to a request from the U.S. government."

Milton Henry, a Detroit lawyer who came here to assist Williams, said Williams was in complete accord with the arrangement.

A TWA spokesman in New York said the flight would cost "as much as $20,000" and the airline was paying for it. Williams had accused TWA of breach of contract for not honoring the London-to-New York ticket he had bought, and the American Civil Liberties Union announced yesterday it was considering legal action against the airline on behalf of Williams.

Informed sources said Williams would leave London tomorrow.

Williams is returning to his home in Detroit. He will face a kidnaping charge in North Carolina from which he fled eight years ago. Since then he has lived in Cuba, Red China and Tanzania.

Egypt's United Arab Airlines flew him from Tanzania to London last Saturday, but TWA and all other airlines flying the Atlantic refused to take him to the United States.

Rumors Have Lolli, Weinberger Quitting

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Reagan administration today was reported to be losing two top aides, General Services Director Andrew R. Lolli and Finance Director Caspar W. Weinberger.

Lolli was reported by sources to be planning to leave the $24,675 post about Oct. 1. The report was neither confirmed nor denied by the 57-year-old retired Army major general, former commander of the Western North American Air Defense Command at Hamilton Air Force Base.

"I don't want to reveal my plans at this time," he said. "I'm not commenting at this time."

Reagan administration spokesmen said they did not know what plans the two officials had made.

Lolli was appointed to the post shortly after Gov. Ronald Reagan was inaugurated in January 1967 succeeding Robert L. Harkness. Lolli formerly was an assistant to the vice president of Hughes Aircraft in Fullerton.

Weinberger, 52, was vacationing in Europe and could not comment on reports he was offered and would accept a post with the Nixon administration on the Federal Trade Commission.

Last week Reagan confirmed Weinberger had a "decision to make" when he returned to the capitol.

Weinberger, a Republican and former GOP state chairman, replaced Gordon P. Smith in 1968.

Senator Lashes Latin Failures

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Despite $8 billion in Alliance for Progress appropriations, "the image of the United States in Latin America has gone from bad to worse," Sen. Frank Church, D.-Idaho said last night.

Speaking at a seminar on Latin America sponsored by the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, Church said:

"When (the alliance) was conceived, the growth of democratic government was considered at least as important as economic advances. The fact that seven years later 140 million more people are under military dictatorship underscores its failure."

Alliance funds have been used to benefit the elite, Church continued, saying evidence showed that the real purpose of the United States is to support the established order instead of change.

Deputies Probe Commune Death

BLYTHE (AP)—Dove hunters found a desert commune's caretaker dead about a mile from the camp where 11 members earlier were arrested in the 56-day detention of a 6-year-old boy in a large packing crate.

Sheriff's Capt. Ronald Bickmore said the body of Christopher Hartwell, 21, of Orange was found yesterday.

Bickmore said the circumstances of Hartnell's death were "suspicious" and the cause hasn't yet been established.

The commune members were arrested on felony child abuse charges after Anthony Gibbons said he was chained inside a topless packing crate at the camp, 35 miles north of Blythe.

Hartwell, who was employed by owners of the land where the commune is located, was reported missing last Sunday. Bickmore said the cause of death hasn't been established, and declined further comment.

One of the persons awaiting trial on the abuse charges is Beverly Gibbons, 36, Anthony's mother. The boy has been made a ward of Riverside County.

Starvation Kills Wealthy Man

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Lawrence Slocum died yesterday of malnutrition, a week after police found $40,000 hidden in his home.

Officers were called to the suburban Maple Heights house by neighbors who reported Slocum and his wife, both believed to be in their 80s, were neglecting their meals and that the house was filthy.

Using gas masks against the foul odor, patrolmen searched and found about $30,000 in bills and coins hidden in jars, boxes and dresser drawers.

An additional $10,000 in unredeemed stock dividend checks was found in various hiding places.

Slocum and his wife were taken to a hospital following the search last Friday. His wife was reported in fair condition, also suffering from malnutrition.

Narcotics Case Referred To Juvenile Court

The case of Paul Edward LeClair, 18, of San Anselmo who faces narcotics charges, was referred yesterday to the probation department for possible transferral to Marin Juvenile Court.

He was told to appear in municipal court on Sept. 24 to learn if he had been accepted by the juvenile authorities.

The case of a co-defendant, Herbert Travis Martin, 21, of Mill Valley, was continued to the same date for entry of plea.

Both are charged with possession of phenobarbital and hypodermic needles, and LeClair is also accused of having marijuana.

They were arrested in Sorich Ranch Park in San Anselmo Aug. 20.

KTVU (2), 8 p.m. — The story of football star O. J. Simpson, his life on the field, as well as his family life, and his dedication to helping youngsters in underprivileged communities, is the subject of a one hour sports special, "O. J." Tom Harmon narrates.

KRON (4), KCRA (3), 8:30 p.m. — "Male of the Species," winner of two Emmy Awards and critical accolades on its first presentation, will open the five-program series of "Prudential's On Stage." KPIX (5), 9 p.m. — Dana Andrews, Eleanor Parker, Jeanne Crain and Eddie Albert star in "Madison Avenue," a romantic drama to be presented as "The CBS Thursday Night Movies."

Los Angeles Eyes Battlewagon As Tourist Lure

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Now that Queen Mary is tooting her horn at tourist trade in nearby Long Beach, Los Angeles is harboring nautical ambitions.

It wants the Navy to send back the battleship New Jersey.

"A very interesting idea," Harbor Commission President Robert A. Day said yesterday, and ordered it explored "with urgency."

Then the commission voted unanimously to wire the Navy, offering $1 a year to lease the New Jersey as a tourist attraction.

The 56,000-ton battlewagon, returned from duty in Vietnam, its third war, left Los Angeles last weekend heading toward retirement in Bremerton, Wash.

Innocent Plea To Counts Of Forgery

Peter E. Stuckslager, 33, of Santa Monica yesterday pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court to four counts of forgery. A jury trial was set for the week of Jan. 5.

Stuckslager is accused of taking checks belonging to a Sausalito woman, forging her signature and cashing them at the Two Turtle Bar and Del Monte liquors.

TELEVISION REVIEW

The New Series: Who'll Win Out?

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The matchups of key television shows in the new season starting next week will be watched with keen interest by the industry.

For example, how will Leslie Uggams' new variety series, which replaces the Smothers Brothers on CBS-TV, do against NBC-TV's "Bonanza"?

On the same night, Sunday, how will NBC-TV's new Bill Cosby series, predicted to be a hot one, do against the long-running Ed Sullivan show and "The FBI"?

Mondays, as has been widely noted, ABC-TV's new pop recording series, "The Music Scene," will try to put a dent in "Laugh-In," and maybe even "Gunsmoke" too.

Also Mondays, Harold Robbins' new serial about the jet set, "The Survivors," with Lana Turner and George Hamilton, will go up against "Mayberry R.F.D." and the Doris Day show.

Tuesdays, NBC-TV's new Debbie Reynolds situation comedy will face "The Mod Squad" and "Lancer," a western.

The same night, ABC-TV's new 90-minute "Movie of the Week" series, an anthology of video originals, will take on such powerhouses as "Julia" and Red Skelton.

Also on Tuesdays, the CBS-TV news hour will face the new competition of an ABC-TV medical series, "Marcus Welby, M.D.," starring Robert Young. Both of these programs will be underdogs in the ratings, of course, to the Tuesday movies.

On Wednesdays, another new sawbones series, "Medical Center" (CBS-TV), will be hard-put to beat out the weekly movies of that night. But since those movies are on ABC-TV, which generally has ratings troubles because of its smaller affiliate lineup, the new entry might have a fair chance.

Another new Wednesday series, "The Courtship of Eddie's Father" (ABC-TV), based on the film about a widower and his son, will take on "The Virginian" and Glen Campbell.

Thursdays, CBS-TV will try to upset NBC-TV's strong lineup of "Daniel Boone," "Ironside," "Dragnet" and Dean Martin. CBS-TV will open up with the high-rated "Family Affair" (switched from Mondays) against "Daniel Boone."

Following "Family Affair," CBS-TV will offer the new Jim Nabors variety series, against the second half of "Boone" and the first half of "Ironside." Since Nabors formerly starred as "Gomer Pyle" in that top-rated series, his new show is considered a distinct threat to any and all competition.

Saturdays will also feature a heralded bit of competition between CBS-TV and NBC-TV. For that is the night that Andy Williams (NBC-TV) goes head-on against Jackie Gleason (CBS-TV), who thus far has been an almost unbeatable weekend video mainstay in terms of popularity.

Next 90 Days Major Ones In Peru

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Developments in the next three months likely will show whether radical or moderate forces will control the direction and leadership of Peru's revolution.

Although the military leadership as a whole stressed a need to reform the nation's social and economic structure, various factions differ on the methods to be used.

Moderates are striving to head off financial crisis in order to maintain the upper hand they tenuously hold now. Radicals, mostly non-Marxist nationalists, advocate a "go it alone" stance if necessary in negotiations with foreign financial interests. Some of them seem convinced that political considerations in the hemisphere will ease foreign economic pressures.

Important factors in the test for control are the outcome of efforts to reschedule heavy debt payments due next year to U.S. and other foreign creditors, and the result of negotiations with two major U.S. companies.

11 MONTHS AGO

A revolutionary movement of the Peruvian armed forces seized power 11 months ago.

On the fringes of the situation are subtle efforts by the Soviet Embassy to drive a wedge between American interests and the Peruvian government and push the military regime further left.

The radicals are known to represent a formidable bloc in the regime, but sources close to the government say they have voluntarily left policy direction —for now—in the hands of moderates. The radicals' leaders are said to be Gen. Jorge Fernandez Maldonado, minister of energy and mines, and Gen. Anibla Meza Cuadra, minister of transportation and communications.

The most pressing problem involves refinancing of a short-term public debt of $847 million due in the next five years. The government must pay an average $155 million a year until 1974. This represents slightly less than 20 per cent of Peru's anticipated earnings of more than $850 million a year over the same period— providing production and world market prices remain steady.

SERVICE RATE

This foreign debt service rate of 20 cents on each dollar earned compares with a Latin-American average closer to 30 per cent. Mexico's, the highest in the hemisphere, is 36 per cent.

Major creditors are U.S. private banks, $200 million; international banking organizations in which the United States has a large interest, $182 million, and West Germany, $157 million.

The Peruvian government and its creditors meet here next month to negotiate refinancing. Peru needs to improve its investment climate to strengthen its negotiating position. This seems likely to involve negotiations with two American concerns, Southern Peru Copper Corp. and International Telephone & Telegraph.

The government and ITT are currently negotiating compensation for the planned nationalization of Peru telephone operations in which the American company has a 67 per cent interest.

Southern Peru Copper and the government are working on terms involving the company's plans to invest $355 million in new mining operations.

Also still to be resolved is the question of compensation for Peru's seizure of the International Petroleum Co., a Standard Oil of New Jersey subsidiary. Peru says it is willing to compensate but alleges the company owes it $690 million for oil its field produced. The amount far exceeds the estimated value of the company's properties here.

Under U.S. law, a foreign country is liable to economic sanctions if it fails to provide adequate compensation for expropriated American property. The law has not been applied to Peru pending the outcome of talks now in progress. U.S. aid to Peru has been sharply cut, however.

The IPC case and the government's nationalistic policies have frightened off investors, domestic and foreign. Businessmen report a slump in construction and commercial activity. Bank credit is tight and fears of currency devaluation continue.

One bright note in the over-all picture is a favorable foreign trade performance. Exports are running well ahead of imports and gross foreign exchange reserves reached $150.1 million at the end of July, up $63.8 million over the same period a year ago. The government has effectively curbed imports but in doing so it has cut into its own revenues from import duties.

Although it registered a $236 million foreign trade surplus in 1968, Peru's gross national product increased only 1.7 per cent, a deficit in relation to the 3.1 per cent annual birth rate.

The government has failed so far in efforts to interest Russia in Peruvian investments.

But the new 14-man Russian Embassy in Lima has been busy on other fronts, especially in labor and among university students. Novosti, a Russian agency, is distributing press material to local papers.

The Russians also moved in openly to revive the nearly moribund General Confederation of Peruvian Workers, controlled by the Peruvian Communist party.

Many Peruvians and Foreigners feel that the Russians, working through leftist labor and student groups, are striving to keep nationalist "anti-imperialist" fervor at a pitch they hope will stimulate radical nationalism in the military.

Just Look Who's Leading East Division Now

NEW YORK (AP) — When Apollo 11 landed on the moon seven weeks ago, it set the pattern. Anything can happen in 1969 and now it has.

The New York Mets are in first place.

The chronicles of history will note that the Mets, lovable losers for seven long, adventure-filled seasons, made it to the top of the National League's East Division for the first time ever at precisely 8:43 p.m., EDT, last night when Ken Boswell laced a single to center, driving in Cleon Jones with the winning run in the 12-inning first game as the Mets trimmed Montreal 3-2.

That victory put the Mets one percentage point in front of the staggering Chicago Cubs, who were in the process of losing a 6-2 game to Philadelphia. When that was accomplished and Nolan Ryan had set down the Expos 7-1 on a three-hitter in the nightcap, New York had an almost unbelievable one-game lead over everybody else in the East.

"Look who's No. 1 now," the Shea Stadium scoreboard cheered, proudly displaying the N.L. standings as Mrs. Joan Payson, the club's principal owner, took a triumphant stroll in front of the Mets' dugout, smilingly acknowledging a standing ovation from the fans.

The Mets made it to the top in their 140th game—they now have 21 games to play and their magic number is 20 for clinching the pennant. In 1962, after 140 games, the Mets were last with a 35-105 record.

"Let's see . . . 1962." Boswell thought for a moment and then remembered. "Why I was in the ninth grade then. And I can tell you I wasn't dreaming of the New York Mets or first place."

But it was the second baseman who made the Met dream come true. He had five hits in the doubleheader sweep but the most important one was the single to center that brought Jones' home with the winning run in the opener.

"We came in here just like we do any other time," said catcher Jerry Grote. "We congratulated each other and we set our minds to winning the second game."

Ryan made that easy. He allowed just three hits—none until the sixth—and by then the Mets were in control with a six-run third inning.

"In 1962, I was a freshman in high school," Ryan remembered. "And I was a Houston Astro fan. I saw the Mets play once and I only went to see Casey Stengel."

Stengel was the manager of the first Met team in 1962. That was the team that finished 40-120. The first baseman on that club was Gil Hodges, who sits in the manager's office now.

"I'm just very happy," Hodges said. "I feel great. This is wonderful for all the fans, the players, the front office, everyone connected with the organization that suffered for so many years.

"Finally their patience is paying off. I just hope it can continue. We've got both feet in the door now."

New York has won six straight, seven of the last eight and 22 of the last 28 in a month-long tear that has wiped out a 9½-game deficit and vaulted them into first place.

DREAM COME TRUE—Jubilant New York Mets fans respond with enthusism after the Mets downed Montreal in Shea Stadium, 3-2, to move into first place in the Eastern Division of the National League, a spot that seemed as far away as Mars as late as last year. (AP Wirephoto)

Hockey Expansion For '70-71 Season

NHL To Go 12 To 14 Teams

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Hockey League will expand from 12 to 14 teams starting with the 1970-71 season, it was announced today.

The announcement was made at simultaneous press conferences in New York and Montreal.

APPLICATIONS

Clarence Campbell, the NHL president, said the league had received informal applications for franchises from Vancouver, Baltimore, Buffalo, Atlanta, Cleveland, Kansas City and Washington. He pointed out that Vancouver already had been assured it would be given first opportunity to obtain one of the franchises if "an acceptable applicant for a franchise complies prior to Dec. 1, 1969 with the various provisions established by the league."

The cost of each new franchise will be $6 million. When the circuit expanded from six to 12 teams three years ago, the cost was $2 million each.

Each of the 14 teams will play a 78-game schedule starting in 1970, two more than during the coming season.

In addition, the divisions will be realigned. The Chicago Black Hawks will play in another division with Los Angeles, Minnesota, Oakland, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and St. Louis. The latter six cities joined the league in 1967-68 and currently form the loop's West Division with Boston, New York, Detroit, Toronto, Montreal and Chicago playing in the East.

The league also announced plans for further realignment expected to be completed prior to the 1974-75 campaign which may include European teams.

PLAYOFFS

A new Stanley Cup playoff format will be introduced in 1971. The four top teams in each division will play the opening round in their own division. However, in the next round, the two winners in one division will meet the two survivors in the other division for the right to play in the final round. Each series will be best-of-seven.

Currently, the playoffs are intra-divisional until each division produces a winner and the two divisional titleholders meet in the Cup finals.

PREP FOOTBALL

Tempo Picking Up On Gridiron

The tempo is picking up as Marin County Athletic League football teams, most of them light and young, go into the home stretch of practice with a little more than a week to go before the 1969 season opens Sept. 19.

Things have been especially hot at Terra Linda High, where the Trojans wound up grueling two-day, run-run sessions yesterday before taking two days off from hitting prior to their scrimmage against Pinole Valley Saturday.

Head coach Don Lucas, who appears to have his Trojans primed, is down to 33 players, essentially two offensive and defensive teams.

"They're really knocking the heck out of each other," he said. "I think we have a pretty good team here. They're legweary and exhausted, but they'll be ready."

INJURIES

Three of them won't be ready any time soon.

John Hill, a junior split end, Greg Williams, a transfer from St. Louis, Mo., and tackle Jim Barker will all be out for extended periods with serious injuries.

Williams suffered a broken shoulder and will be out for six weeks while Barker will be out for two weeks with torn ligaments and Hill will be out with a broken arm.

Veteran Dewey Forry, an all-leaguer last year, has been a classic tower of strength for the Trojans.

"He's really been tremendous," Lucas said. "He's been working like a dog. He's really driving himself."

BACKUP MAN

Mike Sanderson, a transfer from Iowa City, Iowa, has been looking great as a backup to quarterback Tom Jackson, leaving Larry Kerr to a running back slot.

At Tamalpais, new head coach Mike Davlin, with only three lettermen to build on, is reporting a show of good spirit.

"It looks a lot better than last week," he said. "Our blocking up front looks tremendously improved, atlhough we may just be kidding ourselves there, since we've only scrimmaged against ourselves. But they're a great bunch of kids, with a tremendous attitude."

TWO MORE

Two more players who were nominal members of last year's varsity team have come out for action. They are Scott Palmer, and Rockney Pena.

Junior Tim McQuistin, a back, is hobbling with a bruised knee is the Indians' only important injury.

The Indians knock heads with Marin Catholic in a scrimmage Saturday.

Novato coach Al Scott, initially faced with the depressing prospect of rebuilding practically an entire team, seems a little

Michael Returns To His Studies

Master Michael Suyderhoud of San Anselmo returns to his chemistry studies at Sonoma State College this week after once again ruling the H2o skiing competition of the world.

I was hoping our astronauts would find water on the moon because I was certain Mike would become the lunar water ski champ, too. This young man of 19 summers has no peers in the sport.

In his travels this past season, Slatsy Suyderhoud visited Europe thrice and Australia, South Africa and South America once each, not to mention such other exotic places as Mira Monte Marina north of metropolitan Novato and, of course, Berkeley.

In the course of his travels Mike bagged the world overall (slalom, tricks, jumps) championship for the second time, the national title and numerous other honors.

Equals His Record Leap

In his final competition Sunday at an obscure meet in Berkeley called the "Diablo Open," Suyderhoud equalled his official world record jump of 162 feet. This didn't get much publicity, but it was an important leap because it proved Mike's world mark, set some time ago, was no fluke.

Suyderhoud will store away his aqua slats for a while now to hit the books, but he will resume international competition next season and continue for at least two more years. If water skiing becomes an official Olympic Games event as is rumored, look for Master Mike to be shooting for a gold medal.

I FORGET when the last time a Marin Countian played in the Rose Bowl, but the next time could be Jan. 1, 1970.

That is, if you believe everything Look Magazine publishes. Hm? No, I don't mean quarterback Joe Alioto of Mafia U.

Former Star At Drake

I mean, Look picks Stanford to represent the Pacific Eight Conference in Pasadena next New Year's Day and a prominent Indian is flanker Don Alvarado of San Anselmo, a sophomore who prepped honorably at Drake High School At last report Dashing Don was a second stringer at the Farm which means he'll see heap plenty action in Stanford's aerial-minded attack.

Meanwhile, I can hardly wait to see Look's basketball predictions because the publishers are going to be spending most of their time in court.

BAD NEWS COMETH from the southland: Wide receiver Paul Lee of San Rafael suffered a broken collarbone during last Saturday's U.C. Santa Barbara scrimmage and will be out from four to six weeks.

Gaucho team physician John Baumann sends word that, "If Paul's injury mends as it should, then he'll be able to return to duty later on this season."

Paul, who is also a star baseballer, is the brother of Boston Red Sox pitcher Bill Lee. The familee is very athleticlee inclined. Reallee.

A's Set Record Of Sorts

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Athletics are playing their worst baseball season, but fortunately it isn't embarassing them.

Very few people show up to see them lose.

The smallest turnout in the 12-year history of major league baseball in the Bay Area was on hand to watch the A's lose 9-4 to the Seattle Pilots last night.

Only, 1,945 fans attended. There was about as much noise in Oakland Coliseum as there was in the downtown library.

There was little chance of a fan getting hit by a foul ball, With 50,000 seats in the stadium, the odds were 25-1.

FANS GIVE UP

Since the disaster against the Minnesota Twins last weekend, in which the A's lost three of four games to tumble 8½ games behind the Twins in the American League West pennant race, only 7,098 fans have showed up for the three games played since then.

The final home stand of the season, later this month, brings in two more box office duds--the California Angels and the Chicago White Sox – which means the A's have almost no chance to draw 800,000 fans for the year.

TAILSPIN

The A's, who faced Seattle again this afternoon, have now dropped 13 of the last 16 games and five in a row.

Losing pitcher Chuck Dobson and two relief men were belted for 16 hits by Seattle last night. Steve Hovley, Wayne Comer and rookie Dan Walton each had three hits.

Dobson, who lost his 12th game of the year, gave up eight hits in six innings.

"I still can't figure this game out," he said. "I was throwing as hard as I have all year. They got a dribbler to shortstop, a blooper to the outfield and all of a sudden the score was 3-0.

BIG HITS

"When you're going bad things like that happen."

The big hits for Seattle were a two-run triple by Walton in the third inning and Comer's homer to score two more runs in the seventh inning.

Gene Brabender, the winning pitcher, gained his 12th victory against the same number of defeats.

The A's played the game without slugger Reggie Jackson, who was sent home before the game with hives.

BRAVES REMATCH

Giants Living Too Dangerously

ATLANTA (UPI)—The San Francisco Giants are living dangerously again.

They were lucky last night even though they dropped an 8-4 decision to the Atlanta Braves, whom they meet again tonight before shoving off for home and a big 10-game stand against all the contenders in the National League West.

Despite the loss the Giants remained in first place but the combination of San Diego and Houston victories over the Reds and Dodgers, respectively, left a two-game gap from first to fifth.

SITUATION

Here is the situation as of the moment: The Giants lead the Reds and Braves by a half game each, although the Reds have a two percentage point edge on Atlanta, and the Dodgers and Astros are tied, two games off the pace.

Mike McCormick (9-9) pitches for the Giants tonight against big Ron Reed (15-9). Victory would assure the Giants of first place as they make the long trek home to start a weekend series with Cincinnati.

With the opposition bunched as it is the only hope for the Giants is to keep on winning. No one can win it for them now, so after the Reds they have to face the Braves, Astros and Dodgers in that order.

In the Commissioner's office they are set up for a possible two or three team tie. The way things are going now someone who is mathematically inclined better start figuring out a five team playoff.

BRYANT BOMBED

Rookie lefthander Ron Bryant cracked in the fourth inning. Hank Aaron started him on his way out by lining his 40th homer of the season to open the frame. By the time it was over the Braves had three runs and they added two more in the next inning of Ron Herbel for a 5-0 lead.

The Giants battled back to cut the deficit to just a run, 5-4 in the sixth against Pat Jarvis but Cecil Upshaw came on to stifle their bats over the final 3 2-3 innings while the Braves were adding three more runs off Don McMahon in the seventh.

Four NBA Referees Make Jump To ABA

NEW YORK (AP) — Four top referees of the National Basketball Association and another NBA player shifted to the rival American Basketball Association today in a heating up of the pro basketball war. The ABA announced that Luke Jackson of the Philadelphia 76ers of the NBA had agreed to play out his option and join the Carolina Cougars of the ABA. Jackson is a former Olympic star.

He is the second NBA player to go from the 76ers to the Cougars. Billy Cunningham had announced such a move previously.

Dave Bing, star player of the NBA Detroit Pistons, disclosed yesterday he would join the Washington Capitals of the ABA after playing out the remaining two years of his current contract.

The officials are Earl Strom of Pottstown, Pa.; Norm Drucker of New York, Joe Gushue of Philadelphia and John Vanack of Lansford, Pa.

Reportedly the four met with Walter Kennedy of the NBA yesterday to make demands for pay raises. Kennedy said he held no conferences with officials.

Yarbrough Qualifies With World Record

TALLADEGA, Ala. (UPI) — Leroy Yarbrough qualified for Sunday's Talladega 500 Nascar race by setting a world speed record for a closed course yesterday with a speed of 199.350 miles an hour on a 2.66 mile tri-oval course. Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., set the unofficial mark in Daytona several weeks ago with a speed of 197.573 m.p.h.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Orioles Reduce Magic Number

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

When the Baltimore Orioles refer to No. 1 they mean their leadoff man Don Buford.

One of the fundamental rules of baseball is to get the leadoff man on base. Buford knows that rule and that knowledge could mean a $15,000 jackpot for each of the Orioles.

Buford scored two of the three times he got on base. His walk and two Boston errors accounted for a Baltimore run in the first inning last night and his three-run homer climaxed a six-run fourth-inning that enabled Baltimore to shade the Red Sox, 8-7. Any combination of five Oriole wins or Detroit losses will earn Baltimore the American League's Eastern Division title.

In 26 games leading off for Baltimore, Buford batted .324 and reached base 55 times. During that span he drew 18 walks, 24 singles, seven doubles, two triples, two homers and was safe on errors twice.

15½-GAME LEAD

Baltimore kept a 15½-game lead over Detroit as the Tigers beat Cleveland, 4-1. Washington topped New York, 6-1; Chicago edged Minnesota, 3-2; Seattle rapped Oakland, 9-4, and California mauled Kansas City, 11-4.

Buford's 10th homer of the season offset circuit blows by Carl Yastrzemski and Syd O'Brien. Baltimore broke a 7-7 tie in the seventh when Boog Powell doubled after Brooks Robinson singled and Dave Johnson grounded out. Al Severinsen, the Orioles' fourth pitcher, received credit for his first win.

Mickey Lolich scattered five hits, hit a triple and won his 18th game in 26 decisions. He struck out eight Indians and was helped by Jim Northrup's 21st homer. Lolich tripled in a two-run Detroit fourth and scored on Mickey Stanley's single. Dick Ellsworth was charged with his eighth loss.

TIES JACKSON

Frank Howard tied Oakland's Reggie Jackson for the major league homer lead when he hit No. 46 with two men on base against New York. Lee Maye also drove in three runs for Washington to back Dick Bosman's 12th win against five losses. Mel Stottlemyre was tagged with his 13th loss. He has 18 victories.

Don Pavletich drove in two runs for Chicago with a single and a homer and Tommy John gained his first win since July 18 as the White Sox tripped Western Division-leading Minnesota. The Twins lost a chance to tie the game in the ninth when Cesar Tovar was cut down at the plate on a perfect throw by right-fielder Walt Williams.

Andy Messersmith won his 14th game and Bubba Morton drove in five runs with a single and a double in California's rout of Kansas City. The Royals set a major league record by using 27 players in the game, two more than the 25 previously used by the Cardinals and Braves in a single contest.

Prep Footballers Get Ready For Openers

more optimistic these days, especially whenever he looks at linebacker-receiver Dave Perron.

"If he doesn't make all-league both ways, then nobody should," Scott said "He's a great all-around player. What I'd call a money player."

Scott reports that his team, which will be very, very light, is rounding into shape.

SMALL

"They've got pretty good spirit," he said. "We're real small, but they really hustle."

A pair of sophomores look to be something of an asset this year for the Hornets. That's Marty Moroski, a quarterback and Rick Reis a defensive guard.

The Hornets scrimmage against San Leandro Saturday.

A rash of injuries, major and minor, have hit fledging San Marin, where Bob Van Busked is out with head injuries, awaiting x-rays, halfback Steve Francis had a cut on his arm that required six stitches and lineman Rick Harmon last a toenail.

DEFENSE

"We've got a way to go on defense," head coach Bob Martin reported. "We'll be scrimmaging Kennedy High School of Richmond Saturday at Novato. They're considered the team to beat in the Alameda League, so we should find out what we're made of then."

At Drake, coach Bob Franceschini is very pleased with his running backs, of which he has plenty, especially Ron Biddle, and veteran Mark Silverman.

"The backfield looks very strong," Franceschini said. "They run real, hard, and we've got good depth there."

Francis is also pleased with the progress of a pair of sophomores, defensive back Rick Bozio and linebacker Jim Owens. The line, which gave Franceschini worries initially seems to be coming along.

"They surprised me," he said. "They've picked up real well, made real progress."

VS. ENCINAL

The Pirates go against Encinal in Oakland Saturday in their first scrimmage.

At Redwood, the Giants and coach Bob Troppmann are eagerly awaiting a scrimmage at Alameda, which should answer a lot of questions Saturday. Alameda was the top-ranked team in Northern California last year and has a string of 24 straight wins going for it.

Linemen Russ Gondak and Frank Pomilia are slowed down somewhat, Gondak with a bad knee and Pomilia with a bad back.

PUCCINELLI

Rick Puccinelli, brother of former baseball star Pat Puccinelli, has been the standout on defense. A senior, the 190-pounder will be at a linebacker spot, and along with 6-4, 230-pound tackle Tom Wickert, is expected to be the mainstay of a strong Giant defense.

The most inspirational guy around, however, probably isn't wearing pads. That would be new frosh coach Jess Payan, formerly of Terra Linda High School.

"He had 85 freshmen report yesterday," Troppmann said. "He's really been a help. He's the best in the county. He really knows football."

San Rafael coach Bob Muster expects to learn a little more about his Bulldogs after a scrimmage against Pacific of the Alameda League Saturday. An intra-squad scrimmage last week turned out to be just a bit inconclusive.

"It was sort of like a tug of war," Muster said. "It wasn't really satisfying."

Muster, who reports no injuries, is pleased with the linegacking work of Phil Greene, Frank Vanderbilt and Rick Sampson, as well as veteran linemen Dan Coleman and Chris Bonner.

Softballer Hurls No-Hit Victory

Perry's Delicatessen clinched at least a piece of the Class B title in the San Rafael Recreation Department's Adult Softball League yesterday while Paul Carnegie ballooned his prestige in softball circles.

Carnegie pitched a no-hitter and struck out 15 batters as Perry's ripped Foust Chevron, 15-0.

Meanwhile, Brandon Tires, which had been tied with Perry's for first place, dropped right out, coming up a loser against Sears Point Raceway, 6-1.

Game Switched

The St. Vincent of Petaluma-Justin of Napa high school football game, originally scheduled tomorrow night, has been moved up to Saturday night, it was reported today. The game will be played at Petaluma High School field starting at 8 o'clock.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Keep The Faith

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Take heart Montreal and San Diego. the New York Mets are in first place in the National League East.

Keep the faith San Diego and Montreal. The Houston Astros are just two games out of first place in the National League West.

Don't be embarrassed with your 44-99 record Montreal or with your 45-97 mark San Diego. Seven years ago today, in those pre-division days, the expansion Mets were in last place with 35-105 record and the new Astros were just a notch ahead of them with 56-87 mark.

SWEEP

But the Mets and the Astros have kept plugging, and last night New York swept Montreal 3-2 in 12 innings and 7-1 to move into first place a game ahead of Chicago, which lost 6-2 to Philadelphia, while Houston smashed Los Angeles 2-1 to tie the Dodgers for fourth, just two games back of first-place San Francisco.

In other N.L. action, San Francisco lost 8-4 to the Atlanta Braves but remained one-half game ahead of both Cincinnati, which was edged by San Diego 2-1, and the Braves, and St. Louis swept Pittsburgh 11-2 and 2-1.

Chicago, out of first place for the first time since the season started, went down to its seventh straight defeat before the three-hit pitching of Rick Wise.

TIE SCORE

The Cubs tied the game 2-2 in the sixth on Ron Santo's sacrifice fly, but the Phillies broke the tie on Johnny Briggs' run-scoring single in the seventh and wrapped it up with three more runs in the eighth.

Houston gained its tie with Los Angeles behind the hitting of Denis Menke and Jim Wynn, and the pitching of Denny Lemaster. Menke sparked a four-run first inning with a three-run double, Wynn hit his 31st homer with a man on, and Lemaster hurled a six-hitter.

Shortstop Woody Woodward's error proved to be Cincinnati's downfall. It came on Julio Morales' grounder in the eighth inning and allowed San Diego's Roberto Pena, who had tripled, to score. Morales also homered in the fourth. The Reds tied it in the sixth on Jim Stewart's RBI triple.

GIBSON WINS

The pitching and hitting of Bob Gibson and the hitting of Joe Torre keyed St. Louis' first-game victory over Pittsburgh. Gibson, 17-11, fired a seven-hitter, rapped three singles and a double and scored twice and Torre drove in five runs with a triple and single.

JACK HANLEY

Aaron Will Pass Mays On Home Run List

ATLANTA—Hank Aaron, now 35, is three years younger than Willie Mays. Aaron still will be hitting home runs after Mays retires. So it is inevitable Aaron is going to pass Mays and become the greatest right-handed home run hitter of all time.

When the 1969 season started Mays' home run total was 587, Aaron's 510. When the Giants started on this next-to-last road trip of 1969 Mays still was a couple of homers short of the 600 mark. While Mays was hitting only 11 homers, Aaron was belting 40. So the gap separating them was narrowed to less than 50.

THIS WILL BE the sixth season of his 16-year major league career in which Aaron has hit 40 or more homers. He doesn't believe he can catch the all-time mark of Babe Ruth (714) but he does believe he, not Mays, will windup No. 2 behind Ruth. Aaron expresses this belief in diplomatic language.

"I have no chance of catching Willie while he still is playing," said Aaron. "If Willie had played in some place that was a little fairer to him than Candlestick Park —a place like Atlanta or Chicago or Philadelphia — he might have had a chance to beat Ruth's record.

"WILLIE ADJUSTED to Candlestick but it still robs him of home runs. It's not like Willie McCovey (who tied Aaron at 44 for the National League home run title in 1963 and again is battling Aaron for this year's title). McCovey's so powerful anyway but he's not hitting against the wind like Willie has to most of the time."

Aaron's statement that he has no chance of catching Mays while Willie still is playing may be true. But Willie, with a two-year contract extending through the 1970 season, now is planning on only one more campaign. Willie's legs have been reminding him more and more lately that he is going to be 39 next May.

AARON WILL BE 36 next February. His legs haven't begun to protest yet. Indeed, Aaron still plays 150 games or more a season. Only twice in his 16 major league seasons has Aaron played less than 150.

Aaron might have been a teammate of Mays but $50 a month more in salary prompted him to sign with the Braves in 1952 when he was 18. The Braves had purchased his contract for $10,000 from the Indianapolis Clowns, a team that once played in the American Negro League.

AFTER TWO YEARS in the Braves' farm system at Eau Claire and Jacksonville, Aaron became a regular Brave outfielder March 13, 1954, replacing Bobby Thomson — the same Bobby Thomson who won the 1951 pennant for the Giants with his "shot heard round the world." Thomson suffered a triple fracture of the right ankle that March 13 while sliding in an exhibition game.

On April 23, 1954, Aaron hit his first major league home run in St. Louis off Vic Raschi. Since then he has come a long, long way for a fellow who batted cross-handed with the Indianapolis Clowns. Dewey Briggs, a Brave scout, suggested Aaron try the regular grip with his right hand on top. He did. He hit the first pitch out of the park.

The triumph put them in first place in the National League's East Division and their 7-1 win in the nightcap kept them there. (UPI Telephoto)

NEW PLAYOFF SYSTEM

Jets Picked To Win Title

By MIKE RATHET

NEW YORK (AP) — The new playoff wrinkle may wind up curling Joe Namath's Fu Manchu moustache but it won't keep him from unfurling the passes that will lead the New York Jets to the American Football League championship.

That, at least, is the way it looks from here in the AFL's last season before clasping hands with the National Football League in one giant league split into two 13-team conferences.

NEW SYSTEM

The AFL's new playoff system will make it just that much more difficult for the Jets to take their second consecutive AFL crown and move on to defend their Super Bowl championship at New Orleans in January.

Under the new system, the first-place team in the East will meet the second-place team in the West and vice versa in semifinal playoffs leading to the title game. Assuming the Jets qualify, they would have to defeat the West's top two teams to gain the throne room again.

But they have to be figured as the favorites in division races that should wind up like this:

Eastern Division—1, New York. 2, Houston. 3, Miami. 4, Buffalo. 5, Boston.

Western Division—1, Kansas City, 2, Oakland. 3, San Diego. 4, Denver. 5, Cincinnati.

The Jets, with Namath at the controls, should be the class of the East, although the Oilers, who rely on a stingy defense, could cause trouble as they did in annexing the division title two years ago.

REASONS

Namath, however, has all the complements he needs—effective receivers in Don Maynard and George Sauer, solid running backs in Matt Snell and Emerson Boozer and a strong defense that could be improved by the addition of sophomore tackle Steve Thompson.

The Oilers' defense, with super stars like linebacker George Webster and corner back Miller Farr, has been the moving force for the club because of a stuttering offense held back by lack of consistent quarterbacking. Houston still is waiting for Pete Beathard to be the answer.

The Dolphins, with Bob Griese an ever-improving passer at quarterback, figures to edge the Bills, despite the presence of O. J. Simpson, and the return of quarterback Jack Kemp. The Patriots have a new coach in Clive Rush but the same old problems.

In the West, the Chiefs are given the edge despite lack of depth and the fact that the Raiders and Chargers are just as explosive.

CONSISTENT

Kansas City, however, may prove just a bit more consistent with Len Dawson's passing and Mike Garrett's running providing sufficient points for the defense, led by what could be the strongest linebacking crew in the AFL—Bobby Bell, Willie Lanier and Jim Lynch.

The Raiders have been slowed by injuries but are a tough club, with Daryle Lamonica at quarterback firing to Fred Biletnikoff and Warren Wells. The defense, however, may not be strong enough.

That's the same problem that confronts the Chargers. They have, with John Hadl throwing to Lance Alworth and Gary Garrison, the potential to put the points on the board, but not enough strength to keep them off the board.

Petaluma Chances Better

(Second in a series on southern Sonoma County high school football prospects.)

North Bay League I football opponents will find something unusual in Petaluma this season.

The Petaluma Trojans finally appear ready to step out of their role as cellar-dwellers in the NBL-I, a role they have held since entering the league two years ago.

Head coach Howard Cadenhead, beginning his second year at Petaluma, is still looking for his first win as a head coach after a dismal 0-9 won-lost season last year. But he has returning lettermen at nearly every position and the potential to build an offense that should keep opponents guessing.

SCRAMBLER

Fred Klemenok, returning at quarterback, was a fine passer last season and, in early season workouts this year, appears to have picked up the ability to scramble, which he lacked last season.

Klemenok is backed by returning halfbacks Steve Hing and Dan Williams. Both are strong running backs, receivers, and they can throw the ball.

The battle for slotback draws some attention as Cadenhead rates returnee Rod Bell and Mike Swallow, up from the junior varsity, as even. "Both of them catch and block well," he said.

AT ENDS

Bob Garcia, another returning letterman, appears to have the inside tract on the split end spot but is being pressed by Mike Foster, out for the first time.

Returning in the line are John Fadelli, Marc Nelson, Dave Antognini, Chuck Barbera, Greg Gessaman, John Garretson and Joe Burgoim. Kurt Jastrow will be back in the defensive secondary and Cadenhead indicated Williams, who played there last season, will also see action at a defensive halfback post.

Benington Dies Of Heart Attack

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — John Benington, whose wit was as sharp as his eye for team errors, died of a massive heart attack last night at Michigan State University where he coached Spartan basketball teams for the past four seasons.

The lanky, 47-year-old head coach was found dead on the floor of the coaches' locker room at Jenison Gymnasium on the campus.

BY WIFE

Officials said his body was discovered by his wife, Barbra, and freshman basketball coach Bob Nordmann, a former star player under Benington, after he failed to arrive home for supper.

Dr. James Feurig, team physician, diagnosed the cause of Benington's death as a massive heart attack—his second in five months. He was a father of nine.

Benington's teams compiled a record of 56 victories and 38 losses at Michigan State. The Spartans tied for the Big Ten Conference championship under Benington in the 1966-67 season. Over-all Benington's teams won 32 games and lost 24 in the conference.

The balding, intensely competitive Benington often paced the sidelines, yelling directions at his players during basketball games.

He sometimes was seen pulling at the few hairs on his head during close contests, and once, when a friend called that to his attention, he grinned quickly and said, "That's why I don't have much hair."

Benington, popular with students and on the lecture tour, was an acknowledged expert on basketball methods. He co-authored a widely used textbook and frequently took part in basketball clinics.

195-137

In 13 years of coaching, Benington's teams racked up 195 victories and 137 losses.

His playing career, however, began with football.

He went to the University of San Francisco on a football scholarship after a tour of duty with the armed forces in World War II and after having been graduated in 1940 from high school in Findlay, Ohio, the town of his birth.

Benington played two years of varsity basketball at USF, becoming team captain and leading the Dons to the NIT championship in 1949.

Willie Davis Story: Mimic To Menace

It was the late Fresco Thompson who made the initial appraisal of William Henry Davis, the outfielder. The California Comet was coming to bat one night when Fresco cracked: "Oh-oh! Here comes our own Lon Chaney."

To Fresco, he was not Willie the Wisp. He was Willie the Actor.

"WILLIE," HE USED to say, "is one of the great impressionists of our day. He's like we used to be when we were kids. We'd see a Buck Jones movie and for a week we'd go around slapping ourselves on the backside pretending we were Buck Jones. We should have a marquee outside the ball park: 'Tonight, Dodgers vs. Cardinals, Presenting Willie Davis as Stan Musial.' "

Willie, you see, did imitations. The only way you could tell it wasn't Stan Musial was when he popped up. But Willie's repertoire included Ted Williams, Billy Williams, Babe Ruth, Babe Herman (usually it came out more like Babe Phelps). He had more shticks than a Catskill comic. He wasn't a ball player, he was a chameleon. Sometimes, he imitated three different guys the same night. None of them was Willie Davis. "Willie," Buzzie Bavasi used to ask him. "Why don't you arrange it so that somebody imitates YOU?"

HISTORY SHOWS that Willie Davis started to hit pitchers when they started to hit him. Willie was having the greatest spring of his career this year when a Claude Raymond fastball bounced off his right elbow and broke his arm at Vero Beach one night.

The front office watched for tell-tale signs that Willie D. would be afflicted with what the ballplayers call "tippy-toes" in the batter's box. But Willie was still stepping into, not away from pitches. That's how come the Expos' Dan McGinn shattered his cheekbone. It was broken in so many places that it was more like carpentry than surgery to repair it. Willie had more bolts sticking out of his skin than Frankenstein's monster. The doctor didn't need a scalpel he needed a screwdriver.

WILLIE NO SOONER returned to the lineup than Juan Marichal, whose control is so wobbly he walks a better every other week, stuck one in his ear.

Willie began to feel like Baseball's dartboard, but he decided he better hit the ball before it hit him.

Willie's career had hardly been horseshoes up to then. One of the best fielders in the history of the game, Willie nevertheless had gone into the history books for posting the most World Series errors in one game, one inning, and one Series. Willie had to endure a winter where he became a standard nightclub comic's joke. ("My luck is so bad lately that if I jumped out of a burning building, guess who would be holding the net? Willie Davis!")

THE WILLIE DAVIS story then is one of net courage. He came back from three errors in one inning to making the most sensational Series catch since Willie Mays' of 1954. He came back from three beanings to set an all-time Dodger consecutive game hitting streak. He has found it easier to hit a ball out of reach than out of sight. He is like a fighter who comes off the floor to score a knockout.

If the Dodgers win the pennant, they should vote Series shares to Marichal, McGinn and Raymond. They turned Willie Davis from a mimic to a menace. They took him out of acting school and into the record book. If he gets knocked down once more, to do an imitation of a .400 hitter, he may only need a mirror.

Tomales '11' Could Win Title Again

(Ninth in a series on Marin County high school football prospects.)

Success is a funny thing in high school football. Some year it's here, the next year it's gone.

Tomales coach Jim Kovalik seems to have found a way to bottle it, put it behind bars and glue it to the team bus.

Tomales has won the North Central II League title for the past two years and in that span has piled up a 17-2 record. The record is 22-5 over the past three years. Last year, it was 8-1. And things don't appear to be letting up at all.

NO GONDOLA

Kovalik is expecting another good year, perhaps still another conference title, despite the loss of top-notch quarterback Larry Gondola through graduation.

What he does have coming back is one of the sheer running terrors of the North Central II conference. That's halfback Ron Petroni, who scored 111 points on 18 touchdowns and three extra points last season, as well as piling up 1,001 yards rushing. He was an all-conference grid-der both ways.

Other top-drawer material is available. There's 215-pound tackle Mike Furlong, all-league defensive end Dan Thornton, the league's only sophomore to make all-conference last year, center and defensive end Bill Hendren, and all-league guard Bill Borello.

POSITION CHANGE

Stepping into Gondola's all-league quarterback shoes will be Mike Velloza, who played at a split-end spot last season.

"I think we have a pretty good chance to win the title again," Kovalik said. "We have two really tough games. One is against El Molino (Forestville), which gave us our only loss last year. The tough conference game should be against Calistoga."

Dixon May Go Against Oilers As Injury Mends

SANTA ROSA (AP) — Hewritt Dixon's shoulder is recovering and he may start at fullback Sunday when his Oakland Raiders open the American League season with a game against the Houston Oilers at Oakland.

Dixon, who pulled ligaments two weeks ago in an exhibition against the New York Jets, was running well in practice yesterday and declared: "The shoulder feels fine."

Coach John Madden noted that although Dixon hads been running well, "he doesn't run on the shoulder."

The coach also said that Dixon had "taken some pretty good hits" on the injured shoulder "and it hasn't bothered him."

Dixon averaged 4.3 yards a carry last season.

John Thomas' Grid Career Appears Over

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Big John Thomas' football career appears at an end.

The 260-pound offensive guard was one of five players cut yesterday by the San Francisco 49ers after he failed to rebound from tendon damage suffered in both knees in 1967. The 34-year-old lineman sat out last season and was trying a comeback as a tackle this year.

At the height of his career in 1966, he was one of the best blocking guards in pro football. He joined the 49ers in 1958 after playing basketball and football for the University of Pacific.

Also placed on waivers were defensive lineman Jack O'Malley, offensive guard Bob Hoskins, linebacker Dave Olerich and kick return specialist Charlie Leigh, obtained on waivers last week from Cleveland.

The cuts reduced the squad to 44. The final cut to 40 will be made next week.

The bottle of Bourbon you can't buy for love nor money.

At the Beam distillery, there's some Bourbon we bottled in 1911. Our chemist asked for a sample to compare it with the Jim Beam Bourbon we make today. Well, we gave him a drop, and he found out today's Jim Beam has the same good light taste that our 1911 Bourbon had. And our 1911 Bourbon tastes as good as it did in 1795. That's because the Beam formula has been part of our secret family art for six generations. We don't mind proving it scientifically. We just don't like using our only bottle of 1911 Bourbon to do it. "World's finest Bourbon since 1795."

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Many Corporations Take On New Combined Names

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Several times, recently, you have answered readers unable to find their stocks listed because of company name changes. I thought stockholders were notified about such changes. — L. W.

A. They are, and furthermore, their vote is usually required to make such a change effective. Corporations go to great lengths to impress their new names on the public's consciousness, as was evident in a recent full-page advertisement repeatedly stating: "Union Tank Car is now Trans Union Corp."

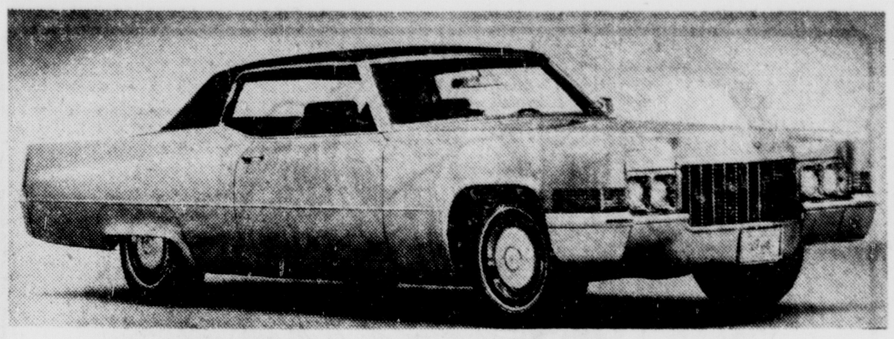
Mergers, diversifications, product identification and simplification are some of the reasons why companies alter their titles. When Montgomery Ward and Container Corp. merged, a new composite name — Marcor — was adopted. Less imaginative titles have resulted from other mergers, such as Rorer-Amchem and Amerada-Hess.

Product diversification often prompts a company to divest itself of an old image, the reason for International Silver's modification to Insilco Corp. and Interchemical's to Inmont Corp. National Dairy wished to benefit from product identification when it chose Kraftco; and Seeman Brothers likewise when it became Seabrook Farms, Inc.

Q. We're a young couple with a new baby. I carry about $75,000 life insurance and we have $8,000 in savings. Our objectives are adequate retirement income and educational funds. Should our savings now go to a stock-buying program? — M. O'N.

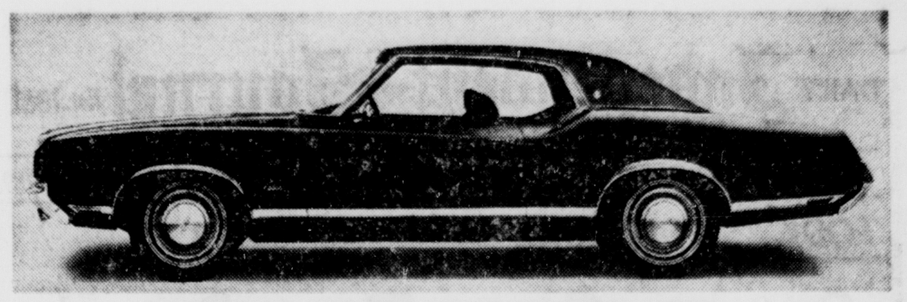
A. Because your insurance and savings backlog appears satisfactory, you are justified in placing future spare funds in common stocks. From now on, I would definitely follow a regular stock purchase program.

Since your objectives are many years away, I would concentrate on growth and buy only those issues which seem capable of moving ahead faster than the economy as a whole. In this category I include such stocks as Boise-Cascade, American Home Products and Standard Oil of Ohio.



1970 CADILLAC COUPE DE VILLE

A new longer look in this popular Cadillac model is achieved with scultpured front fenders, cornering lights with horizontal chrome trim and body colored extensions into the tail lamps. Wheel discs are new and feature radial fins. Cadillac's 11 models in three series will go on sale next Thursday at Bianco Cadillac, Inc., Corte Madera.



NEWEST OLDSMOBILE FOR 1970

This Cutlass Supreme Holiday coupe and a companion convertible represent an important added element to Oldsmobile's intermediate lineup for 1970. It is identified by its own roof line, body shape, ornamentation and interior appointments. Cars will be on sale in Marin next Thursday at Scripture Oldsmobile, Inc., San Rafael.

Computer Tax Service For Finance Company

LOS ANGELES (BW) — An agreement which will provide Californians with computerized income tax service has been reached by Beneficial Finance Co. and Tax Corp. of America (T C A), a Los Angeles-based computerized financial service company.

Beneficial Finance will offer T C A's compupterized tax service initially throughout California. The agreement allows expansion of the service nationwide by 1970.

Market Is Mixed Near Day's Close

NEW YORK (UPI) — Profit taking turned stocks mixed today after two successive winning performances. Trading was active.

Some early strength stemmed from official hints that record high interest rates may come down, and hopes that something encouraging might emerge from President Richard M. Nixon's strategy session on Vietnam tomorrow.

Among the most active issues were Gulf Oil, Texaco, Atlantic Richfield, Massey-Ferguson, Kinney National, Occidental and Texas Gulf Sulphur.

Activity in the oils reflected speculation over Wednesday's bidding for acreage in Alaska's North Slope region, believed to be one of the world's richest petroleum fields.

Much of the oil group was in full retreat, although there were a few point-sized gainers noted. There appeared to be some feeling that some of the oil concerns may have gone overboard in their bidding. "There's oil up there," commented one analyst, "but profits still are several years away."

Electronics generally backed off after climbing sharply in the previous session. Steels, chemicals and motors traded in relatively narrow ranges. So did rails, airlines and aircrafts.

The 1969 budget of Petroleos Mexicanos, the Mexican government oil monopoly, is $1,345,440,000, the agency says.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

Lester Gorsline Associates Expected To Go International

A Tiburon-based organization, little publicized but which has had projects in 36 states, employs 40 persons at its 1550 Tiburon Boulevard offices and works with a large group of outside consultants — doctors, scientists, sociologists, architects and many others — is Lester Gorsline Associates.

This firm, specializing in planning health education facilities, hospitals and medical centers, has been acquired by Arthur D. Little, Inc., international research and management consulting firm in Cambridge, Mass., in an exchange of stock and will operate as a Little subsidiary.

Actually the two companies have already been working together about a year on health care planning and related problems, with about 70 of their professional staff members jointly engaged in these projects. Now with the weight of the Little organization and its full staff of some 800 research people and consultants more readily available, it appears that Gorsline will expand its operations internationally.

Gorsline has been in this work about 22 years. The company has been in business in Tiburon since 1960 and incorporated since 1962. Recent work in the west has included planning for the Stanford School of Medicine, University of California Schools of Medicine and Veterinary Medicine at Davis, University of Colorado Medical Center, University of Hawaii Schools of Medicine and Public Health and University of Washington health sciences.

JOHN F. O'CONNELL of Kentfield has been elected executive vice president of the Bechtel Co. He is executive sponsor of Bechtel's engineering and construction in petroleum refining, chemical, petrochemical and oil field development and of the manpower services and public relations departments. He joined the company in 1942 at Sausalito as labor coordinator for Marinship. Successively he became director of all Bechtel's labor relations, vice president, director and senior vice president in 1967.

FORMER SAN RAFAEL RESIDENT Paul W. Driscoll, one-time production manager and general foreman for Fairchild Semiconductor's diode manufacturing facility here, is now plant manager of the company's integrated circuit and transistor facility on the Navajo Reservation at Shiprock, N.M., which was dedicated this month.

KARL AND ANNE UNTERMANN are celebrating an anniversary sale tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday at West End Nursery, San Rafael, but this one is not just "another anniversary." It is the 60th for this business, which has remained at the same location and in the same family all this time. Congratulations.

Newest Untermann to join the nursery staff on a full-time basis is younger son Thomas, recently married and a graduate of University of California at Davis. Qualified by both his previous part-time work at the nursery and agricultural training to carry on the family standard, he's decided this is his cup of Jasmine.

Survey Gives Tam Board Some Valuable Guides

Tamalpais High School District has been given a look at itself through the eyes of its public, its students and its teachers in an "attitude survey" by Field Research Corp. which was submitted to the district board this week.

The look may not be equally accurate as regards the three views. Of some 22,000 registered voters in the district, the survey sample included only 624, while of approximately 6,000 students it took in 704, and of the faculty it polled 224, or approximately one-half of the total teaching staff.

DESPITE THESE disparities, however, what the survey found can prove a useful guideline for the board of trustees and administration in plotting the future course of the Tam district.

It may even help the board to dispell what was the most disturbing finding by Field Research in its sampling of faculty attitudes. Said the report:

"In judging the way different groups relate to teachers' concerns, the teachers say their own principals are most understanding and the board of trustees least understanding, even less so than parents."

THIS MAY ACCOUNT in part for the fact that 77 per cent of the faculty members polled felt they should have a bigger voice in educational policy and 60 per cent wanted more voice in administrative policy.

On the other hand, this desire for more "teacher power" may be merely a natural one. Sixty-eight per cent of the students polled thought they should have more voice in running the schools.

THE SURVEY'S greatest potential value may be in its findings regarding the relative importance attached to various teaching areas and its ratings of present performance in them.

Most important to the voters sampled is teaching of English, with 84 per cent rating it "very important." Seventy-seven per cent of teachers felt there should be more emphasis on English. But only 51 per cent of the students thought it very important.

Sixty per cent of the teachers rated present teaching of English as good or excellent, as did 57 per cent of the students but only 40 per cent of the voters sampled.

At the other end of the scale of importance in view of all three — public, teachers and students — lies physical education and athletics, rated very important by only 28 per cent of voters, 21 per cent of teachers, and 33 per cent of students. Yet the coaching and "phys ed" teaching were rated good or excellent by 76 per cent of students, 72 per cent of teachers, and 59 per cent of the public sample.

Interestingly, voters and students were in agreement that fine arts is over-emphasized in the Tam district, with only 32 per cent of voters and 27 per cent of students feeling it very important. But 41 per cent of teachers thought it needs still more emphasis.

THESE AND OTHER findings of the survey regarding what is considered important by whom and how well it is being taught could prove very useful to that "least understanding" district board in charting the future course of the three high schools.

They could well make the survey worth many times the $18,500 it cost the taxpayers of the Tam district.

The Disappearing Mantids

We never actually saw them, but we did have an egg-case. It was in our garden in May and June and when we cut it open, it was empty. We assumed our garden would be crawling with mantids and we promised to keep our readers posted on the life cycle of mantids in Marin.

Months have passed and we have not seen a single one. By now they should be almost four inches long and almost tripping us in the garden path. Instead, we fear they were killed by some residual insecticide which we put out for ants in March, or provided lunch for our robbins or towhees.

Next year, maybe.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Legislature's Veto Session May Be Submitted To People

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — It's beginning to look like the people of California will get a chance next November to vote on whether they want to dispense with the "veto" session of the state legislature, which is under way in Sacramento this week.

Leadership in both the Assembly and Senate expressed a favorable attitude toward a constitutional amendment next year giving the voters a choice as to whether they want to restore authority of the governor to "pocket veto" bills passed by the legislature, or whether they want the present system continued.

BEFORE the people voted an amendment depriving the governor of this power, he was able to shelve measures he did not wish to sign without explanation, simply disregarding them after the legislature adjourned.

Under the new amendment, the governor is mandated to act upon every measure within 30 days after adjournment, either signing the bill into law or returning it to the legislatue as the veto session opens, with an explanation of why he did not sign same.

Then the legislature has five days to make up its mind as to whether it wishes to over-ride his veto, and write the measure into law. There is no provision in the constitution as to what would happen if the governor "forgot" to act — whether the bill would become law or be forgotten.

IN THEORY, the veto session has its merits. In practicality, it boils down to being nothing more than an expense to the taxpayer, productive of no results.

Since these veto sessions started several years ago, the legislature has over-ridden no executive veto, and it is not likely to in the foreseeable future.

This is because seldom are there enough votes in the legislature, as it takes a two-thirds vote in both houses to say a bill becomes law without the governor's signature.

Both Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, speaker of the Assembly, and Howard Way, president pro-tem of the upper house, have have announced the next year they will support legislation to submit the matter again to the people.

HOLDING the veto session is a costly control on the power of the governor, especially as it produces no results. Legislators get transportation to Sacramento, $25 a day expenses if they answer the roll call, plus the other emoluments of legislative office. Of course, their salaries go on anyhow.

An attempt to eliminate the session this year was made by Sen. Albert E. Rodda, D-Sacramento, but Rodda's bill got little consideration. However, with the backing of the legislative leadership such a measure may be passed.

Politics Holding Back Better Postal Service

(Reprinted from Wall Street Journal)

From all accounts Congress is likely to reject any meaningful reform of the postal service — an unfortunate but nonetheless predictable outcome.

The chief trouble with the post office, after all, is its thorough immersion in partisan politics. Congressmen enjoy playing for votes by manipulating postal rates and workers' pay, whatever the results may be in postal service.

So it can't be counted surprising that many congressmen are cool to the administration plan to turn the post office into a public corporation that would set its own rates and salaries, raise funds by selling bonds and largely balance its books. The lawmakers' rationalizations of their opposition, however, are likely to sound ingenuous to most citizens.

ONE CONTENTION is that the post office is not just a business but a government agency with major public responsibilities that might suffer if put in the hands of a public corporation. It's surely true that the post office does have large public responsibilities, but it's equally true that in recent years it has become more and more inept at handling them.

Perhaps there are reasons to quarrel about the precise mechanics of prying politics out of the postal service. Yet a sensibly constituted and widely run corporation could hardly fail to do a better job with the mails than the present setup has done.

The demands on the service are growing enormously. The post office now handles about 84 billion pieces of mail a year, more than double the figure for 1945, and the future trend is clearly upward.

DESPITE ALL of the talk of the coming wonders of zip code, the fact is that mail still is sorted manually into partitioned bins, in much the same way that Benjamin Franklin originally planned it. The speed and regularity of service steadily diminish.

The more candid congressmen may admit that they don't want to lose the campaign support of big mailers, companies that use the mails heavily for distribution of publications and advertising. If rates were set by a public corporation, these mailers no longer would find it necessary to curry favor with Congress — a development that most of the public could count as a blessing

THE POSTAL unions also play a part in the opposition to the administration's plan. The unions have grown accustomed to bargaining with legislators for higher pay, and then swinging electoral support to those lawmakers who befriend them. A postal organization that would end that sort of vote-buying surely would be in the general public's interest. . . .

Meanwhile the postal service continues to spiral downhill and rates go on rising. And there's no question at all about whom the public can blame for that.

Surplus Of Pets Leads To Cruelty

Kittens to give away — kittens free — puppies free, puppies cheap, so run the "ads" by people who do not know what to do with all the surplus kittens and puppies. They say they want to get good homes for them, but so few people wish to take them.

When people give kittens or puppies away, they should follow up and see if the people who take them really give them a good home. I am thinking of one "good" home when the kitten grew up and had her own kittens, the person who promised to give it a good home took the mother cat and the kittens and dropped them off at one of the school yards in Novato early this summer. She claims she didn't have the heart to give them to the Humane Society. How can people be so cruel?

I've seen children outside of the stores with kittens for any passerby to take. Purposely watched one girl about 10 who took a kitten and after carrying it for two blocks, put it down on the street and ran away.

If only owners of female cats and dogs would realize what a surplus of kittens and puppies there are, and have their females spayed. This is the only certain way of preventing the female from breeding. Suppose it does cost for spaying, isn't it worth it because the owners then would not be confronted every few months with a litter of kittens or puppies to dispose of? . . .

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A YOUNG beauty was watching drill at West Point one afternoon. Suddenly a rifle volley rang out, and the startled young lady shrank back directly into the arms of a cadet standing behind her. "I'm so panic-stricken by the sound of rifle fire," she apologized. Forgive me, won't you?"

"Don't mention it," smiled the cadet — obviously headed for the Pentagon. "Let's saunter over and watch the artillery."

ONLY IN California, surmises Paul Nathan, could this happen: He ran into a crestfallen Pasadena father who just had been advised that his only son, a student at Cal Tech, had flunked golf.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Death Of Ho Removes Best Hope For Vietnam Treaty

WASHINGTON — The death of Ho Chi Minh is judged in all the assessments as a grave blow to Hanoi. He was father figure who, in the ordeal of 30 years of war and occupation, stood for the independence of the Vietnamese people. However incapacitated he may have been in recent months, there is no substitute.

But it is also very likely to be a blow to the hope of peace by negotiation. Ho alone had the authority to put the stamp of approval on a compromise settlement which might have ended the bloodletting and made eventual American withdrawal possible. His heirs have nothing like his unifying force or his authoritarian voice.

For Ho, death in the midst of a still-inconclusive war, taking such a hideous toll in misery and suffering, is the final grim irony.

AT THE END of World War II, Ho entered into long and painstaking negotiation in Paris for the independence of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, which was his creation. After many months he believed he had obtained agreement insuring his role in an independent nation in which French commercial interests would be respected. Returning home, he stopped in New Delhi for a meeting with Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

He told the Indian leader he was confident the agreement was workable. As Nehru reported their conversation to me, Ho envisaged a form of socialist gradualism that would mean live-and-let-live in the developing nation.

This may have been a naive view. Nehru tended to look at communism through his own rose-colored glasses.

THE EXPERIMENT died aborning. The French colonials, backed by the military, vetoed the grant of independence, if indeed it had been that, by Paris.

The French, propping up Bao Dai, the puppet emperor who had no popular following, fought the war with foreign legionnaires, offered by the graduating classes out of St. Cyr, sacrificed in a hopeless conflict.

This was the first great error, original sin. It has been compounded again and again in the long, agonizing ordeal costing to date 38,000 American lives and at least $100 billion in American treasure.

The first compounding of the error has been for this observer the most difficult to understand. The United States set out to give the French blank-check backing for that colonial war.

IN THE FIRST years of the Eisenhower administration, Washington was pouring $800 million a year into the French treasury to underwrite the cost of the war and sustain the franc. As the French fell at Dienbienphu, armed intervention by the United States hung narrowly in the balance, with the then vice president, Richard M. Nixon, hinting at the need to send in American ground troops. President Eisenhower's cooler judgment prevailed.

The compounding of the initial error continued after the country was partitioned in 1954 between north and south. One by one the steps were taken in a Via Dolorosa leading up to the present impasse.

President Kennedy, sanctioning the sending in 1961 of 10,000 armed "advisers" authorized to fire at the enemy, took one of the critical steps. Lyndon Johnson was the grievous compounder, building up the American presence to an extent that overwhelmed Vietnam with an Americanized war.

Many 'Ifs' Surrounding U.S. Role In Thailand

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

An atmosphere of unreality surrounds the talks between the United States and Thailand over eventual withdrawal of American troops from the territory of that small U.S. ally.

The unreality springs from the fact that neither side particularly wanted the talks now, that neither foresees the immediate possibility of American withdrawal on a massive scale, and that their outcome depends on other events whose final outline still must be determined.

THE CIRCUMSTANCES arose out of Thai irrigation with American doves who feared that a contingency defense plan worked out by the United States and Thailand in 1965 could lead to U.S. involvement in "another Vietnam."

The Thais have said emphatically they do not want U.S. help in dealing with their own Communist-led guerrillas which today are not believed to number more than about 1,500 in the jungled hills of the northwest. They also say they see no particular need for the continued presence of some 48,000 American military men after the issue of Vietnam and Laos have been settled.

The contingency plan which American military planners hoped would just quietly fade away provided that, in the event of an attempted large-scale Communist invasion of Thailand through Laos, American and Thai forces would move into Laos to preserve a buffer zone.

THE PLAN would not fade away and the outcry in Congress and elsewhere led the suspicious Thais to believe it was time to declare their independence.

Hence the talks.

Whether or not this is the time for the talks, eventually major decisions must be reached.

Among these is the stance the United States is finally to assume in the Pacific.

SINCE 1950, this stance has taken a 180-degree turn and appears now to be taking still another turn.

It has ranged first from a decision to omit South Korea from the U.S. defense perimeter to a further decision that Southeast Asia could not be defended against communism. In both cases the United States reversed itself.

In Thailand the United States has spent roughly $500 million on construction of six airfields and more millions on construction of a deep water port at Sattahip.

The decision whether the United States will continue to maintain a presence there after settlement of the Vietnam and Laos issues must depend in part at least on the outcome of controversies over U.S. bases in Japan, Okinawa and the Philippines.

A further decision must be reached on how to protect the Thai economy from the devastating effect of U.S. withdrawal. American dollars have brought prosperity to Thailand but they also have changed its culture.

Commuters Can Face Challenge Of Everything But Quick Route

Marin's resourceful commuters are facing new challenges these days. Many drivers have dodged San Anselmo's Hub for years by using Center Boulevard, San Anselmo Avenue, Sycamore Avenue or all three.

With a $211,000 remodeling project now in progress at the Hub, drivers have found that bulldozers, back hoes and flagmen are periodically blocking off half the lanes on these little escape routes.

Farther along, in Kentfield, drivers still face two detours stemming from the flood control project, which by now have the feeling of permanent routes.

In Larkspur, last spring's bottleneck has been magically converted to a spacious four-lane road.

ONE GETS the feeling, watching the routes shift and change, that wer are being tested, much like laboratory animals in a maze. When one route is learned, it is blocked off and another substituted. Our quickness and adaptability are being sounded.

The commuter is notoriously spartan, and if he had a fox gnawing at his vitals he would doubtless ignore it until he reached the office aspirin supply. He can cope with the maze.

But one day in the shining future, all the road work will be done and all the streets will lie open and straight between the home and the job.

When that day comes, the commuter will venture out onto the unaccustomed new road, blink a little in the bright dawn, and freeze in dismay, longing for the comfort of his familiar old maze.

And in a little while you will find him puttering around the side streets in second gear, looking for the short cuts that no longer exist.

NOBODY ASKED, but it appears the Black Student Union still has to prove its charge that the College of Marin administration is racist and repressive.

The dispute is over an $800 bill for damages which the administration says resulted from a BSU-sponsored rock concert last month.

The only point at issue, when the rhetoric is peeled away, is whether the damage can actually be linked to the concert. If it can, the BSU should pay up — as it agreed to do when it signed up to use the college gymnasium. If it can't, the administration should pay up or find out who was responsible.

Meantime, it appears to serve little purpose but that of raising tensions to start name-calling over the case. None of us likes to pay bills, but that doesn't make us victims of racism.

Besides, if all the terms of outrage are expended in little squabbles like this, what will be left to say when a real outrage comes along?

FIRST IMPRESSIONS on a new beat:

The topiary hedge outside Larkspur City Hall spells out "City of Larkspur," and for some reason it's a homey, reassuring touch.

Corte Madera has a mammoth swath of town park that some cities in Marin would give eye teeth for. And an ample public safety building that some other cities (Sausalito fairly leaps to mind) might ransom their city managers to get.

Surprise Move By President To Sleepy Town On Potomac

WASHINGTON — President Richard Nixon has just moved the White House from San Clemente, Calif., to Washington, D.C. The President indicated he might spend part of the winter in Washington, and he has asked his chief advisers and cabinet officers if they would move there temporarily so he could confer with them.

When asked why the President had chosen D.C. for his fall headquarters, an administration spokesman said:

"The President has always had a warm spot in his heart for Washington, and with communications the way they are these days it's just as easy for him to handle the nation's business from Washington as it is from San Clemente, Calif. Besides, if anything important happens, the President can always fly back to San Clemente."

WHILE ADMINISTRATION officials, for security reasons, refuse to discuss where the President will live, it is rumored that he has taken a house located at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, overlooking the Washington Monument on one side and Lafayette Park on the other. Neighbors in the area report that they have seen Secret Service men looking over the grounds and checking the neighborhood.

When a reporter asked the Nixon spokesman if the President would live in this particular house, the spokesman replied: "We are looking at several houses in Washington and I believe it would be premature to say which one the President will live in."

THE CHOICE of Wasnington as the President's autumn White House came as a surprise to many residents of this sleepy town on the Potomac. The chamber of commerce naturally was delighted.

The man at the chamber office told me, "The fact that the President has selected Washington to live in this fall is a feather in our cap. It's going to bring in tourists and newspapermen, and we might even get to see some dignitaries from abroad. I guess you could say the President has put Washington on the map."

The manager of the town's largest department store said, "I don't know what effect the President's move here will have on business, but we do need a shot on the arm."

At the same time the chief of police said, "It could cause traffic problems, and I'm not sure I have enough men to handle it. But any time the President of the United States selects this place to live, even if it's for a short time, I think we should consider it an honor."

A NEIGHBOR of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue didnt' seem too pleased about the President moving there. "We're quiet folks around here and we don't like to be bothered by a lot of commotion. Of course, the President has a right to live anywhere he wants, but I'm checking the zoning regulations just to make sure no one's violating any of the rules."

Another neighbor said, "It won't make no difference to me. Everyone's all excited about the President coming here, but I'm not going to change my way of life just because he wants to live in Washington for a while."

On the whole the reaction to the President moving to Washington has been good.

One high school student said, "I guess this will stop people from calling us a tank town."

ONE EFFECT the news of the President's move has had is that hotel keepers and restaurant owners have already raised their prices. While there has been some bitterness about this, one hotel owner said, "Hech, with the President in town we're going to have to put on more help. The people coming here to visit him are going to demand more service. We're not gouging anyone."

The real problem the people of Washington face is that they don't know how long the President is going to stay.

One merchant said, "We'll probably spend a lot of money fixing up the town and then Mr. Nixon will decide to move on to some place else. I know the President doesn't like to stay in one spot too long, and I think it's a mistake — just because he says he wats to live in Washington today — to assume that he still wants to make his headquarters here tomorrow."

Marijuana Raid Figure In Denial

Paul Stanton Gladman, 22, of Stinson Beach, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to three drug charges stemming from a $5,000 marijuana raid at a Stinson Beach motel Dec. 15.

He is accused of selling marijuana and offering to sell LSD on Nov. 27 and selling marijuana on Dec. 15.

A jury trial was set for the week of Jan. 12.

Drug agents said they confiscated $5,000 worth of marijuana at the time of the arrest.

The case of a co-defendant, Robert Leighton Leoni, 23, of Bolinas, was continued until Monday for entry of plea.

Hearing Improvement Course Is Announced

The Marin Hearing and Speech Center and the College of Marin Adult Education Division will sponsor a six-week course in hearing improvement beginning Oct. 7.

The course will provide a program of auditory retraining for those with hearing loss of varying degrees. It will be held at Marin General Hospital 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays and is open to anyone over 16 years of age.

SUNLIGHT A CAPTIVE OF THE MOON

The moon today cast a ghostly pall across more than half the face of the sun during an eclipse that lasted from 10:35 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Independent-Journal photographer Bob Hax through multi-exposure caught these phases of the celestial event beyond the cross atop St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael. The eclipse brought a glowing dimness to the Marin landscape as Earth's satellite passed between it and sun.

FLEES INTO NIGHT

Thief, Yachtsman Exchange Shots

A San Rafael yachtsman and a would-be thief blazed away at each other with handguns behind the Disco store at 555 Francisco Boulevard at 12:45 a.m. today after the sailor interrupted a burglary, police reported.

Thomas C. Abbott, who lives aboard a boat moored at Dock 4 in the San Rafael Yacht Harbor behind the store, told police he noticed a light colored station wagon parked close to the wire mesh fence enclosing the store's rear yard and, suspecting trouble, took his .9-mm automatic pistol and walked over.

When he was about 60 feet from the car a man, who had been pushing a power lawn mower from the fenced area to the car, suddenly ran to the car and jumped into the passenger seat. The driver then leaned out his window and fired a shot at Abbott, the yachtsman said.

Abbott, unhit, dropped to the ground and fired four shots, all of which hit the car, he claimed. The car sped off on Francisco Boulevard toward Grand Avenue. Abbott returned to his boat and called police on his ship-to-shore radio but the car was not located.

The burglars had cut the wire chain link fence to enter the yard. A store official said nothing other than the mower appeared to have been moved.

Drowning Probed In Mystery Death

The mystery surrounding the death of a 21-year-old Sausalito youth deepened today as an autopsy revealed he died from drowning.

James Michael Letsos was found dead in his bed shortly before 9 a.m. yesterday. How he got there after drowning was still unexplained today.

Sheriff's officers worked most of the night trying to piece together the youth's last hours and reported today he had fought with his brother, Mathew Michael Letsos, 18, about 11 p.m. Tuesday.

The younger Letsos indicated he and his brother had had a beef about a dog outside the Eden Roc Apartments where the dead man lived, Lt. Guido Battaglia reported.

A beer can opener used in the fight was apparently responsible for a series of small cuts on the dead man's face, Battaglia said.

$5 MILLION PROPOSED

Span Panel Favors Commute Crash Plan

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

More than $5 million should be earmarked for a new transit system from the reserves of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District, a committee of district directors recommended yesterday.

The money would go a long way toward financing a $7.7 million crash program to get the district into the commuter bus business by next spring, as proposed yesterday by Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring.

But the committee split sharply on the tough question of how to divide the district's financial power among bus, ferry and rapid transit facilities — all of which are anticipated in future years.

The debate, however, was postponed to another special committee meeting at 9 a.m. next Thursday at district offices at the toll plaza. The chairman of the joint commuters' affairs and finance-auditing committee, Ben K. Lerer of San Francisco, told disputing directors, "you boys can put on your gloves and express yourself all you want then."

In one of the few displays of unanimity, committee members also recommended that the full board approve Luehring's proposal that the district seek to add enough bus and ferry service to hold congestion at the 1968 level. This would mean an additional 20,000 daily commuters would have to be attracted to public transit by 1980, Luehring said.

Luehring's transit program was reported in detail in yesterday's Independent-Journal.

District Auditor Gordon E. Dahlgren reported that reserves will total an estimated $28,770,000 on Nov. 30. Of this amount, $14,289,000 must be saved to pay bond retirement and interest, repay a state loan, and rebate taxes to counties in the district.

Of the $14,481,000 that then would be left, $9 million has been earmarked for major repairs and maintenance, a new roadway and other improvements, thus leaving $5,481,000 for transit.

However, under a new state law that restricts use of district reserves until it submits a long-range plan for its future transit operations, only half of the net reserve can be spent for buses, 30 per cent for ferries. Twenty per cent must be kept to carry out the recommendations of the long-range plan. The plan is due before the 1971 Legislature.

This all boiled down to $2,740,5000 for buses, $1,644,300 for ferries, and $1,096,200 for the long-range transit facilities. These amounts from existing funds would be increased, of course, as the district has an excess of revenue over expenses of more than $3 million a year.

Luehring explained that the figures meant that the district

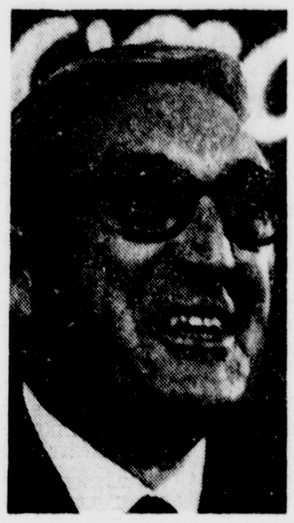
Knudsen, Ford's President, Fired



SEMON KNUDSEN
Ford honeymoon over

Surprise Action In Banner Sales Year

DETROIT (AP)—Semon Knudsen, who was lured away from General Motors to become president of the Ford Motor Co., a year and a half ago, was fired by Ford today.

Knudsen said that Henry Ford II, board chairman, told him nine days ago he was leaving because "things had not worked out as he had hoped."

Knudsen, apparently puzzled by the decision, issued a statement saying, "He (Ford) never indicated to me any dissatisfaction with my services or the direction the company was taking."

Ford has been enjoying one of its best sales years yet in the domestic auto market.

Henry Ford issued a statement saying Knudsen was leaving "with my appreciation for his services to the company these past 19 months.

"Even though things did not work out as I had hoped they might, Mr. Knudsen has my respect and my very best wishes for success in what I am sure will be the many active useful years ahead of him."

MAKES PROGRESS

Ford said Knudsen would be replaced by three presidents reporting directly to him.

"In the past 19 months that I have been with Ford Motor Co.," Knudsen said in his statement, "the company has made substantial progress.

"The company's record in recent months has been the best in the industry.

"In making me president of the company Mr. Ford informed me that his organization needed a man with intimate knowledge of all phases of the automobile business.

"He also said he wished to be relieved of the daily operating responsibilities.

"He asked me to act as chief executive officer during his absences.

10 YEARS

"On both sides the relationship was planned to last 10 years.

"On Tuesday morning, Sept. 2, Mr. Ford walked into my office and informed me I would be leaving. His explanation was that things had not worked out as he had hoped."

Knudsen quit General Motors and joined Ford as president early in 1968.

The financial loss was apparently of little concern to Knudsen who inherited millions from his father William S. Knudsen, who rose to the post of president of G.M. Ironically the elder Knudsen switched from Ford to G.M. in a dispute with Henry Ford, but it was early in his career.

SOVIET, CHINA LEADERS HAVE SURPRISE SESSION

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin made a surprise visit to Peking today and had what was described as useful talks with Premier Chou En-lai of Red China, Tass news agency reported.

Kosygin then flew back to Moscow.

Kosygin was returning from Hanoi where he attended the funeral of President Ho Chi Minh. Chou had made a flying visit to Hanoi last Thursday, then returned to Peking, supposedly to avoid meeting the Soviet premier.

The Tass announcement, however, said the meeting in Peking was arranged by mutual agreement. There were no details as to what the Soviet and Chinese premiers discussed.

Point Reyes Purchase Stumbling Block Falls

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — A possible stumbling block to a $38 million appropriation to complete the purchase of Point Reyes National Seashore evaporated yesterday.

The powerful Bureau of the Budget, which apparently was opposed to the appropriation last May, yesterday advised Congress that it "has no objection to enactment of HR 3786 increasing the authorization ceiling at Point Reyes National Seashore."

Word of the bureau's position came in a letter to the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs from bureau director Robert P. Mayo, reported Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District. Clausen and Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, co-authored the bill.

The bureau, at a May hearing on the bill, said it would express "its concern with the implication of the legislation" in a later letter.

Clausen gave "much of the credit" for the bureau's announcement to Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., and President Richard M. Nixon. They recently flew over the seashore en route to the Redwood National Park, and discussed "early completion of the seashore," Clausen said.

The bureau's announcement came only hours after Murphy issued a letter asking the bureau to issue a favorable report immediately on the bill.

When originally authorized by Congress in 1962, spending for the 53-483-acre park was set at $14 million. The amount subsequently was raised by Congress to $19,135,000.

The new bill would increase the amount to $57.5 million.

The bureau's letter means the House committee will send the bill to the floor for a vote, Mailliard's office said. That vote, however, will not automatically provide the money.

After a house vote, the appropriation then would have to be sought as part of the Department of the Interior's 1969-70 budget, which is before the House Appropriations Committee.

Alaska's Coffers Brimming With $900 Million In Rich Oil Leases

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The world's giant petroleum firms have put up more than $900 million in bids for leases on Alaska's North Slope oil fields, and the money goes to work today drawing almost $45,000 daily interest for the state.

Alaska piled up in the one hour of sealed bidding yesterday $100 million more than it had spent in the 10 years since it entered the union. Gov. Keith Miller and other state officials said the windfall would put Alaska on the road to financing many needs.

Giant combines involving such billionaires as J. Paul Getty and H. L. Hunt submitted apparent high bids on the choice tracts close to three discovery wells on the coast of the Arctic Ocean—where temperatures hit freezing on the day of the biggest oil lease sale in U.S. history.

The state had the winning checks flown by chartered jet to banks in New York, Chicago and San Francisco so no time would be lost in drawing interest.

The state opened bids on 179 tracts totaling 450,858 acres of land in the Prudhoe Bay area where the biggest oil field on the North American continent was discovered last year, about 380 miles north of Fairbanks.

Unofficially, the top bids averaged $1,965 per acre.

Alaska still has 800,000 acres of oil land to lease, but the governor indicated it is in no hurry to dispose of it now.

State officials put off until today decisions on which, if any, of the bids to reject. Rejections were not expected to alter the total money figure significantly.

Getty and Hunt, two of the richest men in the world, combined with three other oil interests to post the largest single bid—$72.2 million for one 2,560-acre lease. That was $28,233 per acre, the largest per-acre bid ever offered for U.S. oil land.

The Getty and Hunt interests combined with Amerada-Hess Oil Co., Louisiana Land and Exploration Co. and Marathon Oil Co. on the record single bid. Getty lives in London, Hunt in Dallas.

The successful bidders had to put up 20 per cent of their bids in cash and must come through

Nixon Will Address U.N., May Talk With Gromyko

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon will fly to New York next Thursday to address the United Nations General Assembly — and perhaps confer informally with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The White House announced sketchy plans for the trip today, saying it was not known yet how long Nixon would remain in New York or what he would talk about in his appearance before the U.N. delegates.

Nixon has been anxious to promote discussions with the Soviets on possible limitation of strategic arms, the search for a Middle East peace and, if there were any prospect of success, on ways and means to advance the Vietnam peace talks.

Ziegler said he would advise against advance speculation that Vietnam would be the focal point of Nixon's U.N. address. He said he had no idea what the President would talk about.

Nixon will convene his principal advisers at the White House tomorrow for a broad review of the Veitnam situation.

In late afternoon, Nixon plans to fly by helicopter to Camp David for an overnight stay.

The press secretary announced thrae added starters for the Vietnam review conference: Vice Preeident Spiro T. Agnew, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and Philip Habib, a member of the U.S. delegation at the Paris peace talks.

"There will be no announcement directly following this meeting," Ziegler emphasized. He said fruits of the conference would be revealed over a period of time "as our policy proceeds."

Asked when Nixon might announce a decision on expected further withdrawals of U.S. troops from South Vietnam, Ziegler said that would come "within days or weeks."

Hanoi Plans Special Monument For Leader

TOKYO (AP) — The remains of President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam will be preserved in a mausoleum to be erected in Hanoi, a Japanese report from Hanoi said today.

The newspaper Yomiuri said Ho's body has been removed to another place from a hall at Da Binh Square where funeral activities took place.

Olompali Dope Charges Dropped

By MARY LEYDECKER

Narcotics charges were dismissed today in Marin Superior Court against former hippie leader Donald C. McCoy Jr. and 10 of his erstwhile followers when Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales refused to reveal the name of the informant in the case.

"I have reason to believe that his safety might be imperiled if his identity is disclosed," Bales said, adding that a verbal committment had been made to the person who led to drug raids at Rancho Olompali.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson had ruled at an earlier hearing that the informant must be identified to the defense because his testimony conceivably could help the defendants.

"I am not ruling on the guilt or innocence of the defendants," Judge Wilson said today. "I agree with you that there is sufficient evidence in the case," he told Bales after reading portions of a Grand Jury hearing transcript aloud in court.

The judge ruled that any defendants upon whose persons contraband had been found could be held for trial. Bales said that this had not been the case with any of the arrested Rancho Olompali residents.

McCoy, who was not in court today, had marijuana in a jacket pocket, according to testimony before the Grand Jury, but was not wearing the jacket at the time of his arrest.

When Shelia McKendrick, former wife of the one of the defendants, attempted to thank Judge Wilson for his decision, he crisply pointed out to her that "I was just carrying out the law."

Bales said today he would review the case before deciding whether to appeal the judge's decision to a higher court.

The charges had included possession of marijuana, LSD, methamphetamine and heroin.

The group was arrested after two raids at the ranch last January.

Since that time the ranch has been sold and the hippie colony "scattered to the winds," in the words of one of the six defense

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Kidnap Probe

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Authorities are distributing photographs of three persons suspected of kidnaping U.S. Ambassador C. Burke Elbrick. Police said one of the three, Helena Bocayuva Khair, rented the house where Elbrick was held for 78 hours before being released Sunday.

The other suspects were identified as Fernando Goldfard and Carlos Eduardo Fayal de Lyra. Police said they had made "some arrests" in the case, but unofficial sources said as many as 2,000 persons had been arrested or picked up for questioning.

Sanctuary Plea

HONOLULU (UPI) — A Navy seaman from California asked the longshoremen's union yesterday to support 30 AWOL servicemen in sanctuary at two Honolulu churches.

Mike Waters, 19, of Anaheim, told 700 delegates attending the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union convention the 30 serviceman at Church of the Crossroads and the Unitarian Church are "on strike."

The latest man to join the ranks in the sanctuary, which began about six weeks ago, was Tom Brown, 19, of Detroit a Navy steward in the USS Barb, a nuclear submarine stationed at Pearl Harbor.

Mayor Delayed

BERLIN (AP) — East German border police forced Mayor Klaus Schuetz of West Berlin to get off a train passing through East Germany early today and held him for 20 minutes.

A spokesman said the incident occurred while the mayor was returning to West Berlin after making a speech in the West German city of Duesseldorf.

Test Is Set

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A large underground nuclear test will be conducted next Tuesday at the Nevada Test Site, the Atomic Energy Commission said yesterday.

The blast, 100 miles northwest of Las Vegas, will have the force of "somewhat less than a megaton," a spokesman said.

38 Cholera Deaths?

SEOUL (AP) — Thirty-eight persons have died of a disease believed to be cholera in South Korea's port city of Kunsan, the Health Ministry announced today. The epidemic is spreading, but no cases have been reported among American military forces, a U.S. Spokesman said.

The spokesman said the U.S. Air Force has instructed troops at its Kunsan air base to restrict their movements in the city, not to visit civilian homes, and to stay in military quarters unless on official business.

More Troop Talks

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman and U.S. Ambassador Leonard Unger held the second of a series of meetings today on the gradual withdrawal of some of the 49,000 U.S. troops in Thailand.

The meeting, held at the Foreign Ministry, lasted an hour.

A joint statement issued by Unger and Thanat said they had reviewed the results presented by a military working group of Thai and American officers.

The working group has suggested a figure for the cutbacks, which is expected to be released later this month.

Bucher To School

MONTEREY (AP) — Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, former skipper of the captured spy ship Pueblo, arrived yesterday to study for a master's degree in management science at the Navy postgraduate school

In a news conference, Bucher said of his ship's capture and the imprisonment of himself and his crew: "I regret the whole damn thing happened. I regret that North Korea was not made to pay for this madness."

Out On Links

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Richard M. Nixon played a few holes of golf with his son-in-law, David Eisenhower, at Burning Tree Club in Maryland yesterday.

It was the first time he had golfed in the environs of the capital since becoming President. He spent quite a bit of time on the links during his stay at the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif., this summer.

Arrives In Bern

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. Army chief of staff, arrived today for a four-day visit and left-wing groups urged the population of the neutral country to give a "proper welcome" to the former commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam.

The general is to tour various military installations and to make courtesy calls here in the capital.

Seek Shorter Week

ROME (UPI) — More than 1.3 million metal workers throughout Italy began a 24-hour strike today to launch organized labor's big push for a shorter work week and equal pay in poor and prosperous regions.

The metal workers' walkout was the first of a series in key industries which will keep nearly three million persons off the job during the current week.

Cooley Out; Fuss Over Transplants

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Dr. Denton A. Cooley, who has performed more heart transplants than any other surgeon, says a disagreement over research with artificial hearts led to his resignation from the Baylor College of Medicine.

In a statement issued yesterday, Cooley said his appointment as unpaid clinical professor of surgery at Baylor was contingent on his acceptance of control of his research activities at the Baylor research committee.

"Subsequent refusal of the committee to accept my proposal for continuation of research at the Texas Heart Institute in the field of cardiac replacement then followed," Cooley said.

The resignation does not affect his relations with St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital, where his team has performed 20 heart transplants. Two patients survive.

Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, president of Baylor Medical College, heads a team which has performed 11 heart transplants at nearby Methodist Hospital.

Cooley said he resigned from Baylor "so that I could continue with clinical research, which is vital to the future conquest of cardiovascular disease."

Cooley and his team implanted a man-made heart in Haskell Karp, 47, last April 4. Karp died April 8, after the mechanical device was replaced with a donor heart.

Following the implantation, DeBakey said the artificial heart Cooley used had been developed by a federally funded heart program. This program was subject to federal research guidelines.

Cooley claimed the heart was developed with private funds.

Meanwhile, DeBakey told a Los Angeles news conference yesterday that the future of heart transplants is limited and federal cutbacks in research funds threaten development of mechanical hearts.

DeBakey said, "Transplants will never be a major treatment of heart disease."

Probe Centers On Radar In Plane Crash

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Investigation of an aerial smashup which brought death to 83 persons centered today on how an Allegheny Airlines DC9 jetliner and a small private plane got on a collision course within radar range of the city's airport.

"The big plane showed on the radar screen but not the small plane," said Jack H. Frets of the Indianapolis Air Route Control Center.

"This is not uncommon when a plane does not have a transponder or beacon, a device which reflects the radar beams."

IGNORING OTHERS

The light plane, a Piper Cherokee, did not carry this equipment.

In Washington, Max Karant, vice president of the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, said one question it wanted answered was: "Why did the radar see the DC9 and not the Cherokee? Was the radar looking only at, or mainly at, transponder-equipped aircraft? Was it ignoring all other aircraft on the primary radar?"

Duane Jennings, Indianapolis airport chief, said all aircraft within a 25-mile radius of the Weir Cook field normally are kept under radar surveillance. The collision occurred 23 miles from the terminal.

Jennings said both craft were on visual flight rules, there were scattered or broken clouds at 3,000 feet and visibility was 15 miles.

Ground witnesses said both planes were below the clouds and clearly visible.

Jennings said that under visual flight rules, avoiding air collision is the responsibility of the pilots.

RECORDING DEVICE

The National Transportation Safety Board, part of the investigative team, said it recovered two recording devices which were aboard the jetliner.

Edward E. Slattery Jr., the board's director of public affairs, said he heard a voice tape and there was "nothing indicative of any knowledge of the crew of other air traffic."

Slattery said it has not been determined whether the private plane hit the airliner or vice-versa but that "through coordination of eyewitness reports and an analysis of paint smears it should be possible to determine who hit who."

Witnesses said the private plane appeared to knife into the jetliner's tail section, tearing it from the fuselage.

The private plane was flown by a student pilot, Robert W. Carey, 35, an Indianapolis plumber and father of six.

Alioto Stumps State In Ire; Magazine Plans Broadcast

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Embattled Mayor Joseph L. Alioto of San Francisco, believing the best defense is a good offense, is campaigning the length of California to counter charges against him published in Look magazine.

Alioto again denied the assertions in the article, "The Web That Links San Francisco's Mayor Alioto And The Mafia," and claimed it falsely stated he was "enmeshed with minute television show originat-Nostra leaders.

Look magazine tonight will defend its article on Alioto in a 15-minute television show oroginating in San Francisco at 7 p.m.

The program will consist of a statement by William B. Arthur, editor of the magazine, and also comments by the two authors of the article which linked Mayor Alioto to a half-dozen members of the Mafia.

The Look issue with the cover story on Alioto went on sale Tuesday, but the mayor learned about the article last Friday and promptly filed a $12.5 million libel suit against the magazine and its publisher.

Alioto said yesterday that Look printed the story written by two free lance writers only after another major publication turned it down. The mayor did not name the other publication, however.

Alioto continued his attack on Gov. Ronald Reagan, charging that his office distributed copies of the article last Friday. But Alioto emphasized that only the magazine and the publisher were named as defendants in the suit.

"Publication is an essential part of any libel," Alioto said. "And publication of this article was first made by the office of the Governor of California."

He said Reagan's office admitted having an advance copy as early as Thursday, a copy was circulated at a Friday breakfast at which the governor spoke and aides to the governor have not denied giving a copy to the San Francisco Examiner, which broke the story Friday.

"The inference is irresistible," Alioto said, that the paper "got it from the governor's office. This article was published to the world by the Governor of California."

A REAL SNARL

Takes 36 Hours To Get Out Of Libya

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — The first American civilian permitted to leave Libya since the Sept. 1 coup said today he had to stand in line for a day and a half to get the necessary stamp in his passport.

Ronald D. Richard, 29, Torrington, Conn., North African area manager for the Goodyear Tire Co., arrived in Tripoli Aug. 31, hours before the army coup. He reached Tunis early today in a taxi.

"I stood in line for a day and a half," he said. "All that time, the line didn' move forward. Hundreds of foreigners were standing in line with me, mostly Italians and British, but also a number of Americans.

"At the head of the line outside a Tripoli police station, nothing was happening because the procedure was snarled in red tape. Finally I ran into an army officer, who put a stamp saying' Revolutionary Command Council' in my passport. That was all I needed."

Richard said he and many other Americans stranded in Tripoli complained they got little or no help or advice from the American Embassy.

"At first we all went to the embassy," he said. "But all they told us was to go and see the local officials. They gave us absolutely no help or direction. People walked around in circles not knowing what to do."

Richard said most of the stranded tourists ran out of money after a few days, since all banks remained closed. Many hotels accepted IOU's from those who had no credit cards.

He said he walked out of his hotel, the Libya Palace, early on the morning of the coup without realizing that anything had happened.

As I turned around a corner, I was confronted by a soldier who fired his pistol in the air to stop me. Not knowing what was going on, I was quite shaken. He made me put my hands up in the air, searched me and then marched me back to the hotel."

Later in the day, armed guards were posted at the hotel entrance to prevent others leaving. Richard said he saw numerous policemen being arrested and marched off by troops.

Woman Heads USC Law School

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dorothy W. Nelson, the new dean of the University of Southern California Law Center, says legal resources should be used to solve social problems like urban blight and pollution.

Mrs. Nelson, 40, wife of Municipal Court Judge James F. Nelson and mother of two, was named yesterday to the post, making her the first woman to hold such a position in a fully accredited U.S. law school.

Mrs. Nelson has been a member of the USC law faculty since 1956 and will continue to teach a course in judicial administration. She was admitted to the California Bar in 1954.

Kopechne Inquest Road Clear

BOSTON (AP) — The road was clear today for the Massachusetts Supreme Court to set a date for hearing arguments on the constitutional questions which have blocked the inquest into the death of Mary Jo Kopechne, but when the high court would act was uncertain.

The development came with the filing late yesterday of all the pre-inquest orders and rulings made in the case by Edgartown District Court Judges James A. Boyle, before whom the inquest ultimately is to be held.

The inquest was supposed to have started Sept. 3, but Associate Supreme Court Justice Paul C. Reardon ordered it delayed until the high court's full bench could hear the arguments dealing with the constitutional questions. He also sought Boyle's records.

Reardon acted on a petition from attorneys for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, in whose car Miss Kopechne died July 18.

Kennedy's attorneys are challenging a ruling by Boyle that denies them the privilege of cross-examination during the inquest.

They seek the privilege on the contention that the inquest will be of an "accusatory nature," similar to a trial, and say Boyle's denial is unconstitutional.

Belvedere Tree Law Draft Is Challenged

Belvedere residents dont' take too kindly to having neighbor's trees block their views.

Belvedere City Council got the message last night in the form of a petition from 50 residents backing a proposed law for topping, trimming or removing trees on private property if they block a neighbor's view.

The proposed ordinance was drafted by Haskell Titchell of 30 Eucalyptus Road, who stressed the view from Belvedere as a basic part of the value of property.

City Atty. Robert F. McKay said it would be unconstitutional and would put the city in the position of "enforcing the view rights of property owners."

Belvedere properties have "magnificent vistas" and "I think it's a crime they can be impinged upon," Titchell asserted.

He proposed that "no shrub, tree or natural growth shall be planted, maintained or permitted to grow upon any private or public property" in the city "in such manner as to interfere unreasonably with the view of any other residential parcel in the city.

MacKay contended the proposed ordinance wouldn't be a regulation for the general welfare, but "to prevent one land owner from obstructing the view of another landowner."

Titchell said it would be in the general welfare because it would maintain the value of property, and consequently property tax revenue to the city.

Theodore Eliot of 401 Golden Gate Avenue said when it came to blocking views, "the biggest offender is the City of Belvedere" with many eucalyptus and pine trees on city property along roads.

Lloyd M. Tweedt of 32 Eucalyptus Road stressed the fire hazards created by eucalyptus trees, and the call for tree removal wasn't entirely based on view.

"Someday eucalyptus trees could own this island if something isn't done," Tweedt said.

MacKay said the proposed ordinance didn't mention hazards, and esthetics alone wouldn't be sufficient basis.

To remove a tree under the proposed ordinance would "be taking private property without just compensation to the property owner," MacKay said.

Besides, he said, any tree planted prior to adoption of the ordinance would be "nonconforming, . pre-existing," and the ordinance wouldn't apply.

Titchell said property owners would get a full hearing before any topping, trimming or removal were done, and the complaining party must agree "to pay all costs" of any work done.

The council referred the proposed ordinance to the city planning commission, and suggested that an informal public hearing be held.

Houseboats Crackdown Is Proposed

Belvedere City Council last night introduced an ordinance regulating watercraft, which will put houseboats under strict controls.

As proposed, houseboats would have to be connected to the city sanitary sewage system, and the owners would have to provide two off-street parking spaces, near the mooring, with access to public roads.

Houseboats also would be barred from areas where they are not permitted by the city's zoning ordinance "or where such use would be in violation of any provisions" of the city code.

The proposed ordinance also bars dumping of refuse into waters within the city limits, dangerous mooring or anchorage, obstruction of navigation and the storage of petroleum products or inflammables on floats, wharves or piers.

It calls for persons to operate vessels, boats or other watercraft at a reasonable speed.

The council also adopted a resolution to annex a portion of Richardson Bay, which will greatly increase the city's water area.

The city is set to annex bay waters between its existing city limits and the city limits of Sausalito. The State Lands Commission has approved the annexation, and City Atty. Robert F. MacKay explained that annexation will become effective when it is filed with the California secretary of state.

The Belvedere City Council Also:

CORPORATION YARD — Heard renewed complaints from Lagoon Road residents about debris from eucalyptus trees at the city corporation yard, and authorized City Mgr. William L. Cavalli to get bids on removal of the trees.

LAND COMPANY — Gave warning to the Belvedere Land Co., granted use of a portion of the corporation yard site for storage of equipment, that it must cease storing building materials there.

CAR STICKERS — Referred to Cavalli for study a suggestion by a resident that the city issue car stickers to city residents at $10 a sticker, for identification and as a source of revenue.

CATV — Heard a report from Robert Lewis of Cable Television of Marin that the firm is concentrating on reaching areas of the city that have poorest reception, but couldn't give an estimate on a completion date.

PARK PLANS — Heard a report from Roger Felton, chairman of the parks and recreation commission, that plans for parks, paths and landscaping have been completed, and viewed sketches of the plans.

VARIANCE — Granted Charles Page a variance from a requirement that he provide two-off-street parking spaces on property across from his home at 410 Bella Vista Avenue, on the condition there be no building on the lot.

CONFERENCES — Named Cavalli as the city's delegate to a League of California Cities conference in San Francisco starting Sept. 28, and authorized him to attend the International City Manager's Association conference in New York City, Oct. 12-16.

LAGOON ROAD TREES — Received a report from Cavalli that the pine trees on Lagoon Road, afflicted with an infestation of ants and pine scale, have been sprayed.

Councilmen Edwin J. Drechsel and Merritt K. Ruddock were absent.

Juvenile Court Gets Pot Cases

The cases of two teen-age Peacock Gap youths have been accepted by Marin Juvenile Court, it was reported yesterday in municipal court.

To be tried on marijuana possession charges are Robert Dudley Deane, 18, of 235 Riviera Drive and Eugene Fredrick Schenk, 19, of 231 Riviera Drive.

They were arrested when police broke up a noisy party near Peacock Gap Country Club on Aug. 23.

Third-Quarter Tax Deadline Is Monday

Monday is the deadline for paying the third-quarter installment for individual taxpayers who filed declarations of estimated federal income tax, Joseph M. Cullen, district director of the San Francisco District Office, Internal Revenue Service, reminded yesterday.

Declarations of estimated tax and the payments are generally required if the taxpayer's total estimated tax for 1969 exceeds his withholding by $40 or more, he said.

Direct Communication With Pike, Wife Says

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Diane Pike, the widow of former Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike, says her dead husband will continue to communicate to her "because we are not separated by death."

Memorial services will be held at noon tomorrow at Grace Cathedral in San Francisco.

She told newsmen yesterday that any further communication between her and her husband will come directly, and not through the use of a medium.

Mrs. Pike spoke at St. Francis Episcopal Church where she and Pike were married last December. She arrived in San Jose, where her family lives, after seeing her husband buried in Israel.

Pike fell to his death last weekend after the couple had become stranded in the Judean desert. The couple was doing research in preparation for a book on the life of Jesus. They lost their way, Mrs. Pike went for help and the bishop then looked for her, thinking she had become lost. Pike's body was found Sunday after a lengthy search.

The 31-year-old Mrs. Pike said her husband would be alive today if he had not tried to look for her during their ordeal.

"There is no question Jim would be alive today had he stayed at that well where there was water, shade and the certainly that he would be found and rescued," she said.

Mrs. Pike said she and her brother, Scott Kennedy, plan to visit the Holy Land again and write the book Pike had planned about the life of Jesus. Mrs. Pike said her husband had disclosed plans for the manuscript before his death.

GENT, Belgium (AP) — A 24-year-old Belgian metal worker died yesterday after living 300 days with a transplanted lung, Gent University reported.

A spokesman said that clinically several factors seemed to indicate the prime cause of death was rejection.

Murphy Bemoans Navy Pollution In Bay Area

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., yesterday sent a telegram to Secretary of the Navy John Chaffee requesting the Navy "to stop this pollution of the (San Francisco) Bay."

Murphy, in a press statement, said his telegram promised help in getting Congress to appropriate money for pollution control by the Navy.

The federal government "should set an example for the nation in our battle against pollution," Murphy declared.

He said he had learned of the Navy pollution while on a recent tour of the Bay Area. The San Francisco Bay Regional Water Quality Control Board has listed Navy installations as major polluters.

Belvedere Fire Whistle Debated

Some Belvedere children might not know when it's time to go home, if the city cuts out it's 4:30 p.m. fire whistle.

City Mgr. William L. Cavalli told council members last night the whistle, once blown at noon, is now blown at 4:30 because some mothers felt it would be a good signal to let children know it was time to go home.

Now, the city is investigating the possibility of a fire alarm system that doesn't require a daily blast on the siren as a check.

Lone Parent Outgunned In Rafferty Books Ban Attempt

By FRANK CHESLEY

Two Marin attorneys and two educators today ripped into State Supt. of Public Instruction Max Rafferty's attempt to ban two controversial books from schools while an outgunned Mill Valley father of three defended the excision of the books from high school classes.

The father, William Henderscheid, said the book-banning issue had been clouded and really boiled down "to the question, 'Does he (Rafferty) have the duty to enforce the law'?"

Henderson's appearance on the KTIM Sounding Board was prefaced by a statement from program moderator Kitty Oppenheimer that she had experienced great trouble in finding a Marin parent who would publicly defend Rafferty's stand.

The other panel members were Richard Godino, assistant county counsel and legal adviser to the county superintendent of schools; James L. Pierce, curriculum director in the Tamalpais High School District, Theodore C. Lachelt, San Rafael attorney and a member of the American Civil Liberties Union, and Jack H. Feller Jr., a former staff member of the San Rafael Military Academy.

Rafferty triggered the imbroglio last week when he said that Eldridge Cleaver's "Soul On Ice" and Leroi Jones's "The Dutchman" were unfit for use in black studies programs and threatened to lift the teaching credentials of teachers who used them.

San Francisco is preparing a suit to challenge Rafferty's authority.

Godino — prefacing his remarks by saying that "this is obviously another political year" — said the flap involved two issues: "black vs. antiblack and the rights of teachers to control their own destinies in the use of books."

Pierce maintained that the use of the books in Marin County was justified because they were selected "in accord with the state code and our own policy."

He explained that instructors recommend texts and supplementary materials, but that responsibility for their approval rested with the board of trustees.

Hendersheid tried unsuccessfully to read portions of "The Dutchman" over the air, a move which prompted Fuller to say: "That's the kind of tactic used by people who want to ban ideas . . . Reading a few colorful words wouldn't prove anything."

The burden of Henderscheid's argument was that Rafferty was justified in upholding the state education code by calling the materials questionable and that children should not be exposed to four-letter words.

That the controversy has no simple solution was underlined by the number of issues raised during the hour-long program.

The panel members mentioned, at various times, freedom of speech, local vs. central control, who can or cannot lift teacher credentials, who should be — or who is — responsible for selection of texts, the obscenity statutes, what "social significance" means, whether teen-agers should read four-letter words and the problem of the black in society.

Pierce, who said he didn't particularly like "Soul On Ice," nevertheless defended its use by saying, "The status of the black society is a problem. Students want to understand why the black man is angry, why he feels emasculated in our society. These books are an expression of that."

Godino, who also was lukewarm about Cleaver's book, sliced through the controversy to say, "If they want to read on that problem, I'd rather have them read the "Autobiography of Malcolm X."

The program will be rebroadcast at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

OIL

with the rest in 10 days.

The money on the table at the municipal auditorium was in the form of bonus bids. The state is allowed under its own laws to collect only $1 per acre per year for oil lands, but the law doesn't prohibit oil companies from sweetening the pot with as much one-time "bonus" money per acre as they wish.

The actual $1 per acre per year leases will bring in $4.5 million over 10 years. The bonanza comes from the bonuses, and state officials were jubilant, despite the total having failed to reach the $1 billion they hoped for.

State executives expressed caution in handling the windfall.

Republican Miller said it is important "that we wisely use the money from nonrenewable resources to assure the continuing success of renewable resources — timber, fishing and tourism."

Shoreline School Food Plan Set

The Shoreline Unified School District board last night passed a resolution approving the food service program, according to Supt. Charles E. McCully.

This will give the district the right to purchase surplus government food for the cafeteria at Tomales High School. The board set the price of meals at 35 cents for students and 45 cents for teachers.

The board approved an agreement to pay 10 cents per average daily attendance for use of the Louise A. Boyd Museum.

It authorized the staff to purchase a mini bus for the Bodega Bay Elementary School.

It raised Prudence Wise from half time to full-time language and remedial reading teacher at a $8,630 salary per year.

G.M. Boosts Price Tags For 1970

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp., today announced the price of its average car would be increased by $119 from $3,070 to $3,189.

The firm said $38 of the average increase would come in converting previously optional equipment to standard features.

The increase varies with the model but the firm said the average hike was 3.9 per cent.

The $119 increase would come to $125 if federal excise tax were included.

James M. Roche, G.M. board chairman, cited increased costs in labor and materials and taxes as the principal reasons for the boost.

The price of the two-door, four-cylinder Chevrolet Nova was hiked from $2,237 for 1969 to $2,335 for 1970. G.M. said $26 of the increase came in converting previously optional items to standard equipment.

The Cadillac Fleetwood's tag moved up from $10,979 for 1969 to $11,178 for 1970 with $37 of the boost coming in optional items being made standard.

The price of the popular two-door Chevrolet Impala with an eight-cylinder engine was jumped from $3,085 to $3,266 with $101 of the hike coming in newly standardized equipment.

G.M. cited as examples of equipment now made standard larger engines on some Pontiac models and power seats and windows on some Oldsmobiles.

"Our payroll costs account for about one-third of the cost of manufacturing a car," Roche said. "In the past year these have increased more than 6 per cent and beginning next month they will rise another 6 per cent."

"The materials and components we buy account for approximately half our cost.

"In the past year steel has gone up 6 per cent, copper 24 per cent, zinc 11 per cent, lead 24 per cent, nickel 10 per cent and aluminum 4 per cent."

This was the first year in four years that General Motors has announced its prices before Ford and Chrysler, who normally pattern their prices after the auto giant.

The past three years Chrysler announced its price increases first and had to roll them back after G.M. came out with a lower list.

General Motors will provide the same new car warranty it had in its 1969 cars, thus breaking with Ford which cut its 1970 warranty sharply.

Battaglia said pathology tests are being conducted to determine what kind of water caused the drowning. Other tests are also underway and results are expected by Monday or Tuesday, Battaglia said.

The coroner's office reported the elder Letsos was a "known narcotics user" and preliminary examination disclosed a "reasonably fresh" needle mark on his inner left arm.

Meanwhile, Mathew Letsos, of 61-A Broadway, Fairfax was arrested by state narcotics agents in San Francisco last night on two counts of selling narcotics in that city and on one count of selling narcotics in Marin.

A state narcotics agent said his office became interested in Letsos in April and since then an undercover agent had made three heroin purchases from the youth.

The first buy was said to have been in Sausalito, the second in San Francisco. Yesterday, the agent attempted the third buy, for an ounce of heroin, the state spokesman said.

During that buy, agents learned the youth was wanted in Marin in connection with his brother's death. He was booked first in San Francisco and then transferred to Marin where he was again booked.

The youth was held to appear today in Marin Municipal Court and on the two San Francisco counts.

TRANSIT

could afford his proposed transit program, but that the high cost of borrowing money to buy buses probably would oblige the district to hike toll rates. Higher toll revenue then would enable the district to avoid financing costs of new buses.

Leading criticism of Luehring's program was director Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco, long a strong advocate of ferries. Starting bus service now, and ferry service in 1972 after its feasibility is tested further, would be "unfair to the water side," he insisted.

A demonstration project to test the feasibility of buses also should be tried before a full system is operated, Leonoudakis argued. His suggestion brought a blast from director Dean N. Meyer, mayor of Mill Valley, that "we need to test buses like we need to test autos."

Meyer argued unsuccessfully for a blanket endorsement by the committee of Luehring's program. Delaying to next week, he said, "is tantamount to just plain stalling."

Lerer cautioned the warring factions that "where we have had a commuters crisis, we're going to have a commuters panic," unless the district does something about congestion.

In related action, the committee endorsed Luehring's recommendation that a "technical design team" be established to prepare the long-range plan asked by the Legislature. Left unresolved was whether the work will be done by hiring new employees or consultants.

San Francisco Supervisor William C. Blake, a member of the committee, said the bridge district's staff was biased in favor of buses, while he favored rail rapid transit. The long-range plan therefore should be drawn by outside consultants, he said.

Blake also objected that San Francisco will not permit district buses to run on Market Street. "You people are dreamers — I don't think you've been over to San Francisco," he said. "We're spending $25 million to beautify Market Street and take off street cars."

He did not mention that San Francisco's Municipal Railway will continue to run buses on Market Street after the beautification project is completed.

In other business, the committee asked Luehring to review a suggestion by Blake that the district hire 50 special policemen to stand in the toll plaza and wave traffic faster through the toll gates.

A proposal that the District spend $5,000 to study the destinations of weekend motorists was referred to the full board for committee assignment.

SOME CHIEF TARGETS

Nazism Hurled Into W. German Election

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Charges and countercharges of past and reborn Nazism are being hurled in the campaign for West German elections Sept. 28.

The chief targets:

Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger, a Nazi party member in 1933-45 and deputy head of the radio propaganda section of Adolf Hitler's foreign ministry during World War II.

Economics Minister Karl Schiller, a onetime member of Hitler's Brown Shirts and of the Nazi League of University Professors.

Adolf von Thadden, chairman of the ultranationalist National Democratic party (NPD) whose sharpest critics contend he is the spiritual heir of Hitler's party.

Kiesinger and Von Thadden are continuously beset by leftist demonstrators shouting the Hitlerian "Sieg Heil" and "Nazi."

Kiesinger, chairman of the christian Democratic party, also has come under fire from within his own cabinet.

Schiller, a member of foreign Minister Willy Brandt's Social Democratic party, broke a truce between the government coalition parties.

"The chancellor, or better yet, the CDU chairman, has a disturbed view of freedom of speech and the press," he said. "Kurt Georg Kiesinger should reflect and consider if he has his personal and occupational background to thank for this disturbed view."

The spark for this attack was strong objection by Kiesinger's party to a nationally televised program that accused it of vying with Von Thadden's party for the rightist vote.

The counterattack on Schiller was led by Finance Minister Franz Josef Strauss, head of the Bavarian wing of Kiesinger's party.

Strauss' party organ, Bayern-Kurier (Bavarian Courier), said in an editorial: "Schiller, through his tasteless and hypocritical attack on the federal chancellor, has forfeited every right to be spared. That Karl Schiller of all people should dare to remind another politician about his stand during National Socialist (Nazi) times is to tax the German people in an unbearable manner."

Beate Klarsfeld, a fiery 30-year-old mother, has issued a book picturing Kiesinger as an important and willing tool of Nazism. She was sentenced to a year in prison for striking Kiesinger at a political rally last November, but an appeals court lowered the term to four months and suspended the sentence.

The book contains documents it says are from the files of Hitler's foreign and propaganda ministries. A number are addressed to or signed by the name Kiesinger, including one that ends: "Heil Hitler! Kiesinger."

Mrs. Klarsfeld's father-in-law died in an Auschwitz gas chamber. She is running for parliament against Kiesinger in the South German constitutency of Waldshut as a member of the new leftist party calling itself Action for Democratic Progress.

This party has issued a documentation similar to that in the Klarsfeld book.

Kiesinger's spokesman, Guenter Diehl, has called the material "a lot of unbearable trash." Kiesinger dismissed the material as "a disgraceful lie."

New cries are being raised for the banning of Von Thadden's party as undemocratic although Kiesinger's government has decided against such an action.

The state government of Hesse, where the NPD is represented in the state parliament, has resolved to press the federal government to ban it. The resolution was supported by Heinz Kuehn, minister-president of North-Rhine Westphalia, the most populous state. Kuehn labeled the party an "afterbirth of the Nazi party."

Point Reyes Condemnation Suit Finally Commences

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A long-deferred legal battle is expected to get under way tomorrow in U. S. District Court here as a jury hears opening statements in a suit to determine how much the National Park Service must pay Drakes' Beach Estates for the Limantour Spit.

Jury selection began Tuesday and was expected to be completed today, court officials said.

The involved court fight began in 1961 when Benjamine P. Bonelli, owner of Drake's Beach Estates, subdivided the area. The National Parks Service immediately filed for possession of the land. A suit to determine the rightful owner of Drake's Beach Estates was settled in 1963 with Bonelli being granted possession.

The latest court action will determine how much Bonelli will receive for the property, a spit of land that serves as a gateway to the Limanatour Estuary in the Point Reyes National Seashore. The suit was filed by Bonelli, who rejected the park service's offer. Although neither side will reveal the park service's offer nor Bonelli's counter valuation of the land, it has been reported there is a difference of about $1.5 million.

No matter what settlement the jury decides, the National Park Service has agreed to pay 7 per cent per annum interest from 1963 to date.

Attorneys Jess Jackson of Burlingame and Robert Weber of San Bruno are representing Bonelli. Rodney Hamblin of the U.S. attorney's office is representing the National Park Service.

Each side has indicated it expects the case to run about five weeks.

WALL OF WIRE—British troops unwind barbed wire in Belfast that separated a "peace wall" from a Catholic enclave in Belfast. The Catholics would have liked it to remain since they believe it will keep the peace between them and the Protestants. (AP Wirephoto)

'Free Belfast' Is A Place Where Many Catholics Feel Free, Safer

BELFAST, Northeren Ireland (AP) — If the barricades come down in "Free Belfast," a whole new way of life will vanish.

Life behind the barriers is not so bad, say the Roman Catholics of the Falls Road area.

Women picking their way along the unpaved sidewalks, unpaved because the stone slabs have been the raw material of riot, seem unanimous in wanting the barriers to stay.

A 64-year-old grandmother expressed the general feeling, "All we want peace and quiet and freedom to sleep at night. That's all anybody wants anywhere. While the barricades are here we have peace and we intend to keep it. I can still shop. The schools are open. Men can get to their jobs. We feel safe. So why change it."

The barricades went up four weeks ago when Northern Ireland's ancient feud between Protestants and Catholics erupted into riots that left eight dead and hundreds injured.

Now the barriers form an iron wall around the red brick streets of the Falls Road area, commonly known as "the Falls." There 2,000 Catholic families make their own rules and want to keep things that way. They call the barricaded area "Free Belfast."

Protestants have put up their own barricades elsewhere in Belfast to protest the Catholic ramparts. But the scattered Protestant barricades do not form an isolated enclave like Free Belfast.

Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark has warned that the barricades, both Catholic and Protestant, must be torn down or the British army will do it. As a first step, the troops began putting up a "peace wall" of wire between the Falls Road area and the Protestant Shankill area Wednesday after pushing a Protestant barricade out of the way.

The great majority of the Falls Road Catholics believe they are in danger of attack from Protestant firebombs if the barricades come down.

That is why the flag of Irish Republic, officially banned in Northern Ireland, flies from the lamp posts and second story windows inside the Falls.

This is a kind of insurrection, even an insurrection subsidized by the government. Mothers still squeeze past the small gap at the side of each street barricade on Tuesdays to collect their family allowances at the post office. Men who are not working —almost half are unemployed— still collect their weekly dole at the labor office.

Rings Missing

Seven rings and a necklace, valued at a total of $80, were taken from the home of Robert James Cole, 267 Tamalpais Road, Fairfax he, he reported yesterday. Police said entry was gained through an unlocked window.

Saving The Wildlife —Peripheral Canal

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The State Fish and Game Department is asking the state Water Resources Control Board to "endorse the concept" of the Peripheral Canal to save the fish and wildlife resources of the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta.

Cross-examination of Fish and Game Department witnesses continued today as the board resumed its hearings, which began last July, on salinity standards for the delta.

The department recommended yesterday that the board "endorse the concept of the Peripheral Canal . . . as the best means of preservation and development of the fish and wildlife resources dependent upon delta water conditions."

The proposed $178 million Peripheral Canal would carry surplus Northern California water around the delta for delivery to Southern California.

The department also recommended that the board "declare its intent to preserve fish and migratory fowl resources at now less than present levels and impose terms and conditions in the permits of the Bureau of Reclamation and the Department of Water Resources to require that the facilities of the Federal Central Valley Project and the State Water Project be operated to preserve these resources."

Under questioning, Harold Chadwick, senior fisheries biologist for the department, estimated that if present pumping practices continue in the delta as scheduled for 50 years it would cause a $100 million loss in the striped bass fishery.

The board scheduled the hearings to determine what salinity standards to maintain delta water quality should be imposed on the water rights permits held by the federal and state governments.

Delta interests fear that diversion of too much water from the delta would result in an infusion of salt water from San Francisco Bay, raising the salinity of delta waters.

The department recommendations included tentative guidelines to maintain striped bass, salmon and Suisun marsh waterfowl at their present level.

The department recommended that the Department of Water Resources and Bureau of Reclamation finance studies to establish definite criteria for maintaining the fish and waterfowl resources.

Chemical War Proposal Denied

NEW YORK (AP) — A Nobel laureate says the Army asked him to help develop a chemical blinding agent. The Army research laboratory he named denies the charge.

Dr. George Wald, a Harvard University professor who in 1967 won the Nobel Prize for work on the chemistry and physiology of vision, told the American Chemical Society yesterday that the Army had approached him a year ago.

Wald said the director of medical research at the Edgewood Arsenal in Edgewood, Md., asked him, "Wouldn't you rather blind them than kill them?"

Could Be Class's Happiest Assignment

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (UPI) —Police kept careful watch yesterday while the ornamental horticulture class at Kirkwood College burned weeds off the site where they are going to put in a flower laboratory.

The "weeds" were marijuana, and the police wanted to make sure it all went up in smoke.

Legislators Go Down The Tube

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Nine senators and assemblymen bicycled through the world's longest underwater tube yesterday on a leisurely inspection trip in anticipation of formal dedication ceremonies scheduled Saturday.

The tunnel is the transbay link of the Bay Area Rapid Transit System.

The lawmakers reported the surface was rough with a lot of steel girders sticking out and a trench along the middle which required careful steering, but they said accompanying engineers told them the passage will be smoothed long before the first trains roll some time in 1972.

The party pedaled into the tube at the foot of Seventh St. in Oakland and emerged on the south side of the Ferry Building in San Francisco.

Construction of the tube was under way three years and one month when the first walk-through was made last May 19.

Other BART links will include subways now under construction under Market and Mission streets in San Francisco and extensive rail lines in the East Bay.

A LEGAL NUDE BEACH?

Recreation Chairman Pays Heed To Skinnydipper Fad

Nude swimming is getting to be such a fad, especially among the young, that the county should look for solutions other than merely arresting the skinnydippers.

This novel suggestion came late yesterday from Lothar Salin, chairman of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission, at a commission meeting at the Civic Center.

Receiving cautious support from several commissioners and no outright dissent, Chairman Salin asked Recreation Director Pierre W. Joske to approach the problem "gingerly" and look around for beaches in the county, perhaps private ranches, which could be set aside for those who prefer swimming in the nude.

"We are in an age when 20 per cent of people under 25 prefer swimming without bathing suits," declared Salon. He said advertisements in the press indicate that resort areas exist where nude swimming is allowed.

"I think this is a sign of the times," said Salin. "It seems to me we are inadequately dealing with the problem because more and more are inclined to do so (swim in the nude). The day may come when three thousand people at Stinson Beach may take their clothes off. You can't arrest all of them."

Salin suggested that if the recreation commission expresses an interest in at least exploring the possibility of a beach for nude swimmers, interested people may come up with suggestions. "I'm sure they'll come in with suggestions if they know they won't be laughed out of the office."

"Are you suggesting that Mr. Joske informally investigate?" asked Commissioner Melton Ferris.

"Informal recreation — is that what you mean?" joked Commissioner Herber C. Leney.

"Maybe some rancher may come up and offer a place," added Salin. "At least it's worth looking at."

"I'm looking already," offered Joske. In a more serious vein, the recreation director asked the commissioners what priority the study should receive.

Since the swimming season is just about over, Salin said the study need not get high priority.

"I concur with Mr. Salin's idea," said Ferris. "It's a problem that we'll have to face sooner or later."

Other commissioners agreed that Joske should survey available beaches and look for an alternative to mass police arrest.

Name Changes Eyed For Old St. Hilary's

Various parcels of land acquired for public use at Old St. Hilary's Church in Tiburon should get the overall designation, "Old St. Hilary's Historic Preserve," the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commissioners decided yesterday.

Beverly Bastian, honorary president of the Belvedere-Tiburon Landmarks Society, suggested that the present name,"Old St. Hilary's Nature Preserve" be changed to "Historic Preserve" since the church site is an official state historic landmark.

Mrs. Bastian also suggested that the 1.19-acre parcel bought by the county upslope of the church be designated "Caroline S. Livermore Vista Point."

Recreation Director Pierre W. Joske said he has no objection to names being attached to parts of the historic preserve, just so the overall name of Old St. Hilary's Historic Preserve is retained.

An area below the church is known as the John Thomas Howell Botanical Garden, which will also be retained.

Marin Parks-Recreation Commission Also:

SENIOR CITIZENS — Heard from Joske that the Senior Coordinating Council Inc. has contacted various cities for reaction on the county's policy to reduce county financial support of senior citizen programs after the first three years.

PARK ADVISORY — Decided that the commission should be represented on any advisory committee that is formed to make recommendations to the state on how Muir Beach and Tamalpais state parks should be developed.

BOLINAS LAGOON — Heard from Joske that The Conservation Foundation, a nationwide research and education organization, is using Ford Foundation money to make an overall study of ecology and development potential in Bolinas Lagoon. Commissioner Melton Ferris said the purpose is fine, but the county planning staff should have notified the planning and the parks and recreation commissions before The Conservation Foundation entered the picture.

TOM'S POINT — Got a report from Joske that Nature Conservancy is negotiating for purhase of 55 acres at Tom's Point, on the east side of Tomales Bay, for a future public park. The property is owned by Mrs. Mary Voight.

Another Crisis Is Boiling On New Guinea Island

By ANGUS SMALES
Toronto News Service

BOUGAINVILLE, (New Guinea) -- Another crisis is at the boiling point on this unhappy island where the good intentions of black and white have led to violence.

The compulsory leasing of native land to provide a port for the Conzinc Rio Tinto — $300 million copper project has resulted in pitched battles with police.

The village of Rorvana tried to prevent bulldozers working on the site and police used tear gas and batons to clear the way.

The villagers have asked the Australian High Court to nullify the agreement giving the copper company their land. This agreement was made by the local authorities who need the dollars from the new industrial giant to create a viable economy.

The earnings are doubly important as they will come as Papau-New Guinea stands on the threshold of political independence.

But despite the best intentions of all groups — the island officials, the Australian government and the copper company — the bitterness grows since each group has a different idea of what is best.

Despite a huge program of negotiation and consultation, there is mounting opposition on Bougainville to some land take-overs and to the terms of local participation.

I went to the village and talked with the tribesmen.

While we talked, children played marbles on the grass and the women quietly went about their work round thatched houses fronting a sandy beach.

One man said : "Australia has taught us much and we are grateful for what we have learned. But we are black and the Australians are white and that makes us very different.

"And because we are different, the things which are important to Australians are not always important to us."

The villagers gave three main objections to the mining project:

They wanted to keep their land undisturbed because of the traditional and almost supernatural links they have with the soil;

Prosperity in the Western sense was not necessarily what they wanted for themselves; and

The urban development and disruption associated with mining would eventually engulf all Bougainville.

Their objections touched very little on the argument of adequate compensation and equity in the mining project.

Clearly the Rorvana people don't want the copper project at any price.

There is an obvious disagreement in the village about whether the people will use further physical force to prevent work on the port site.

Some indeed, want to fight but others, and perhaps most, fear that fighting would create nothing but trouble for the people themselves.

The good intentions of everyone are slowly pushing the island along one of the most disruptive courses ever experienced in Papua-New Guinea.

Commissioners Request Pay Via Split Vote

Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission members voted 5 to 2 yesterday to ask the county board of supervisors for $25 per meeting to meet expenses incurred by each commissioner.

The decision came on a motion by Albert J. Bore and a second by Herber C. Leney.

Two dissenters were Melton Ferris and Chairman Lothar Salin.

Ferris said he agrees that any expenses incurred such as attending conferences should be reimbursed, "but I refuse to discuss wage or salary as a member of this commission. It's a humiliating and undignified motion in the first place. I cannot accept it in any shape or form. I'm astounded!"

Salin suggested that the $25 request be deleted and a request be made for "an adequate per diem payment."

Albert J. Boro pointed out that this same motion for $25 per meeting had been approved by the commission in July on a 4 to 1 vote. Salin was the lone dissenter at that time, and Raymond Bresnan and Ferris were absent.

Boro said this motion should go forward to the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Boro and other commissioners stressed that the $25 is not for pay but in lieu of various expenses incurred by commissioners such as all-day field trips, telephone calls and attending night meetings and conferences.

Marin City Woman Faces Check Trial

A jury trial has been set for the week of Jan. 5 in Marin Superior Court for Alice Fay Grinner, 20, of Marin City, who is accused of having a check with intent to defraud, acquiring someone else's credit card and keeping property which she found.

Miss Grinner was arrested June 13 in Sausalito, when she attempted to buy clothing at a Sausalito shop with someone else's credit card.

Lynch Tells State Bar Weed's 'Frightening'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The use of marijuana is a "frightening social problem" and "leads inexorably to involvement with the hard stuff," California's attorney general contends.

Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch, speaking yesterday before the State Bar convention, disputed contentions that the weed is neither habit-forming nor a step towards narcotics addiction.

After noting that a crackdown against Mexican sources of marijuana had reduced the supply in this nation to a "comparative trickle," Lynch asked:

What are the pot users doing to slake their taste for this near-harmless, nonhabit-forming drug?"

"I can tell you, as can any narcotics agent in the United States," he answered. "They're turning to narcotics and the hard drugs and in ever increasing numbers."

The attorney general also declared that youth should be instructed in laws concerning drugs.

"Only the jurists and lawyers who have been involved are truly aware that there are thousands of young people who honestly but erroneously believe that there is a Constitutional right to smoke marijuana," he said.

At a panel meeting yesterday, U.S. Solicitor Gen. Erwin N. Griswold, former Sen. Joseph Clark and Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-11th District, called for the repeal of the Connally Amendment by which this nation reserves the right to determine what would come within the International Court of Justice's jurisdiction.

Griswold asserted, "we should understand we must yield up some of our sovereignty and take some risks to bring together the greatest good for the greatest number."

"The only sovereignty anyone is being asked to give up is the sovereignty to wage war," Clark declared.

Discussing the peace making efforts of the court, McCloskey said, "one interesting aspect is multi-national business agreements, wherein you can buy stock in a corporation in other nations."

"Why bomb a country where you own 40 per cent of the assets," he asked.

Handicapped Win Elevators For BART Stations

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Elevators for the handicapped should be installed in all of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District's 38 stations, the organization's engineering committee decided yesterday.

A previous vote by the BART board's committee had called for the elevators at only 28 stations.

Berkeley Mayor Wallace Johnson, a board member, called for the additions and general counsel Malcolm Barrett said that if BART did not comply with a 1968 state law governing facilities for the handicapped in public buildings, it might lose a legal suit.

Johnson questioned staff estimates that elevators in 38 stations would cost $9.5 million, saying by his computations the figure should range from $5 million to $6 million.

Flashing Signs Inside Stores Frowned Upon

Flashing, moving signs inside store windows are just as bad as those outside buildings, the San Rafael Planning Commission decided last night.

Commissioners unanimously agreed that inside signs would fall under a sign ordinance progibition of animated signs.

The question had arisen, according to Hebert G. Hotchner, city planner, because a company which manufactures such signs has asked if they were permitted in San Rafael.

In other action last night, the commission quickly gave architectural approval to a building proposed for the top of Quail Hill which would house the west coast headquarters of Commerce Clearing House.

Most parking spaces for the offices would be provided inside the building, according to plans presented. A scale model showed a large skylight in the center of the structure giving light to a planted area and pool.

The San Rafael Planning Commission also:

CHURCH — Approved administrative-professional zoning for a .367 acre portion of the Faith Lutheran Church property in Northgate Drive, which will be combined with property to the west for a proposed Traveler's Life Insurance Co. site.

SETBACK — Allowed Edwin O. Brown of 193 Bret Harte Road to construct a swimming pool and fence in the front setback of his property within 11 feet of the property line.

CRABS — Approved for Puerto Suello Co. a use permit and plans for a fresh crab and sourdough bread outdoor sales building at Northgate Shopping Center.

SIGN — Turned down a request by Edward Simas for an addition to a freestanding sign as a service station at 1103 Third Street which would have shown gasoline price.

SHOE STORE — Approved plans for a Kinney shoe store at 2102-2110 Fourth Street with the condition that a freestanding sign not be taller than the building.

WAREHOUSE — Gave approval to plans for a warehouse building at 46 Mark Drive.

DENIAL — Turned down the request of J. Dillman for a sign on top of a building at 115-A Bellam Boulevard but told him he could have a sign projecting from the building.

CHILD CARE — Denied a request by Kathryn Cardoza of 260 Clorinda Avenue to care for six children at her home after protests by neighbors.

The United States regained the world record for payload-carrying July 30, 1939, when Maj. C. V. Haynes and Capt. W. D. Old flew a Boeing B-15 to 8,200 feet with a payload of 15 and one-half tons, at Wright Field, Ohio.

Federal Court Handed Issue Of GI Refusal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—An attorney told a federal court yesterday a young Bakersfield soldier had a right to refuse to fight in Vietnam because he was a Roman Catholic.

Attorney Richard Harrington said Louis Negre, 22, "is backed in his choice by the Catholic Church."

Negre, a Roman Catholic educated in Catholic schools, sat quietly as Harrington said "the Catholic doctrine teaches that a man must follow his conscience. It is his belief that the war in Vietnam is wrong and he must refuse."

The lawyer asked the court to determine if Negre's action was dictated by his religion.

Negre was shipped to Vietnam last April after the U.S. Supreme Court turned down a plea to halt his transfer.

Inverness Water Bills Will Jump

1-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Inverness Water Co. customers will pay 42 per cent higher rates under a temporary order issued yesterday by the California Public Utilities Commission.

The rate hike, effective Sept. 25, is temporary until the commission makes its final decision on the utility's application for an 87 per cent rate hike.

A commission spokesman said the final decision was expected in about two months.

The parent company of the utility, Citizens Utilities Co. of Connecticut, originally applied for the hike in October 1966. The commission's order yesterday blamed the protracted delay in a final decision on "dilatory and obstructionist" tactics by the parent company.

The temporary rate hike means the average customer, who gets 543 cubic feet of water a month, will pay $7.74 a month instead of the current $5.45. The utility seeks to raise the average monthly rate to $10.41.

The application argued that the company was not receiving an adequate return on its investment, and asked for a return of 8.5 to 10 per cent. The PUC staff, in public hearings on the application, recommended a return of 6.9 to 7.2 per cent.

The temporary rate was based on a 6 per cent return. The PUC spokesman did not know what present return the utility earned.

The temporary order was subject to the usual condition that the company will have to refund the higher rate payments, with 7 per cent interest, if the final PUC decision imposes lower rates. This rarely happens, the spokesman said.

Commissioner A. W. Gatov of Kentfield dissented from the temporary order, arguing temporary rate increases should be granted only in emergencies.

Civic Center Annexation Is Opposed

The Las Gallinas Valley Council is opposed to the annexation of the Civic Center property and Smith Brothers Ranch to the City of San Rafael because the unincorporated area will have no voice in the future development of the annexed area.

This was the concensus reached last night at a meeting of the council at the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District office on Smith Ranch Road.

Members of the council authorized president Neal D. Harding to write letters to newspapers, expressing concern over the proposed annexation.

The county is in the process of having a thousand acres from Civic Center to Smith Ranch Road annexed to San Rafael.

"If this property goes into the city, those in the unincorporated areas will have no say on how it is developed," said Harding. "We have about 31,000 residents in the valley. We'll be shut out of any voice in future development. We'd like to have a chance to share in that development."

Traffic Check Leads To Marijuana Suspects

Two Santa Cruz men were arrested on suspicion of possessing marijuana yesterday after the California Highway Patrol stopped their car for a traffic violation on northbound Highway 101 near the Marin City exit, the patrol said today.

Booked into Marin County Jail to appear in Marin Municipal Court this afternoon were Kent Allie Fishburn, 22, and Jeffrey Raymond Bates, 21.

The patrol said the two were stopped for speeding but as their car was stopping, Bates, also known as Jeffrey Raymond Conti and Bill Thompson, crawled into the back seat of the car and pretended to read a book.

Fishburn got out of the car and approached the patrolmen but when he was asked for a driver's license, he returned to the car and said he had left it at home. The patrolmen then searched the car and a bag containing what was thought to be LSD was found in the glove compartment.

Fishburn then made an unsuccessful attempt to hide a box in the rear of the station wagon, the patrol said. The box contained marijuana and reefer butts, officers said.

The patrol said Bates had been cited for speeding and having no valid driver's license by Santa Cruz police earlier yesterday but had given them his name as Bill Thomspon. The patrol cited him for giving false information and making a false signature on a promise to appear.

Viaduct Will Not Be Effected

Structural support work on the Lincoln Avenue and Linden Lane overpasses will have no effect on the San Rafael viaduct project as indicated in Independent-Journal headlines Tuesday.

The overpass work is on a separate contract, a state Division of Highways spokesman explained.

The spokesman said the work on the overpasses which will include excavation on the freeway surface will be done during non-commute hours so that by the end of October three lanes will be open in each direction during the peak hours.

The overpass work is part of a widening project from the north end of the San Rafael viaduct to San Pedro Road.

Hub Rec Panel To Elect New Slate

New officers for 1969-70 will be elected when the San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Commission meets at 7:45 p.m. Monday at Robson-Harrington Park, 237 Crescent Road.

The commission also will hear a report by director Frank Quinn on summer programs.

Federal Hearing Concludes On Unasked Credit Cards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission ended today a public hearing on its proposed regulation to stop the mailing of credit cards to persons who have not asked for them.

Several months may elapse before the FTC decides on what action, if any, to take.

The regulation would prohibit mailing cards to anyone without the written request or consent of that person.

The American Retail Federation challenged the proposed regulation on the ground it would be discriminatory because it would not cover banks, airlines, and common carriers not under FTC jurisdiction.

A spokesman from the Kerr-McGee Oil Corp. objected that it would prevent the company from sending credit cards to its stockholders and customers who have shown an interest in buying its products on credit.

Michael B. Silva of the oil company said it was sound business practice for a company to send cards to such interested persons.

Bernard J. Duffy, president of the credit bureau of St. Paul, Minn., said the procedure used today in extending credit "is a help rather than a hindrance to consumers generally and should not be regulated or changed."

Ivy Leaguer On Pot Probation

A Columbia University senior yesterday was given a 30-day suspended jail sentence and placed on six months probation for marijuana possession.

Richard Stephen Headlee of Cheyenne, Wyo., 20, who peered nearsightedly in court yesterday because he lost his glasses on the day he was arrested, Aug. 31, had earlier admitted having the weed.

A probation officer said that Headlee met an acquaintance, David Jay Tenenbaum, also 20, of Great Neck, N.Y., after losing his glasses at Stinson Beach. Tenenbaum offered to drive Headlee's car, and the pair was arrested by officers for a traffic violation. Marijuana was found in the car in a bed roll and on the front seat, officers said.

Tenenbaum is scheduled for a preliminary hearing on Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

Assault Booking In Knife Case

A Napa State Hospital escapee who allegedly knifed an old friend on his Waldo Point houseboat Monday was booked yesterday at Marin County Jail on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder.

Robert Charles Cohen, 35, of no known address, is being held at San Quentin for security reasons and was booked in absentia.

Last Monday Cohen, according to sheriff's deputies, attacked Paul Harkless, 30, stabbing him several times with a five-inch hunting knife. Harkless was reported in fair condition this morning at Marin General Hospital, where he remains in the intensive care unit.

Nuclear Test Jolts Colorado Rockies

GRAND VALLEY, Colo. (AP) — An underground nuclear explosion equal in force to 40,000 tons of TNT jarred western Colorado yesterday. But whether it shook a billion dollars worth of natural gas free from buried rock formations remains to be seen next spring.

The Atomic Energy Commission said no radioactivity escaped into the atmosphere.

After six days of weather-caused delay, the blast went off at the scheduled hour despite about 60 objectors who marched into the observation tent while predetonation ceremonies were in progress.

The protesters, mostly from the resort community of Aspen and the town of Cedaredge, said they feared the blast and a possible flurry of contaminated gas later would release a radioactive form of hydrogen called tritium into the atmosphere and then into the food chain.

The ground at the observation site, six miles from the blast, surged upward enough to shake spectators when the charge went off, then jiggled for several seconds. Dust clouds rose along the crest of the mountains for 10 miles or more. One big cloud marked a landslide high up on one mountain.

A few rocks tumbled down on highways which had been blocked to prevent any mishaps.

Bricks were knocked off chimneys in evacuated houses near the blast and in Grand Valley and Rifle, the closest towns. Several bricks fell from an old cornice on the Grand Valley post office.

Colorado School of Mines at Golden recorded the blast on a seismograph and listed it at 5.5 on the Richter scale, an earthquake intensity capable of inflicting damage when centered on an inhabited area.

The explosion, named Project Rulison for a long-vanished village, was part of the government's Plowshare program to find peaceful uses for atomic energy.

The $6.5 million blast was touched off to determine whether underground fission can free gas in commercial volume from sandstone.

Evans' Deck Officer Gets A Reprimand

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (AP) — The officer in control of the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans when she collided with the Australian aircraft carrier Melbourne was given a reprimand and a reduction in seniority today by a one-man court-martial.

The officer of the deck at the time of the collision, Lt. (j.g.) Ronald C. Ramsey, 24, pleaded guilty to three charges of negligence and dereliction of duty. The Navy dropped four similar charges against him.

In the collison during nighttime maneuvers in the South China Sea on June 3, the carrier cut the destroyer in two, the bow half sank and 74 Americans were lost.

Ramsey's court-martial lasted one day. Other officers here at the U.S. Navy's Subic Bay base considered his sentence quite light. The maximum penalty on the charges to which he pleaded guilty was dismissal from the service, two years imprisonment at hard labor and forfeiture of pay.

A key witness, the executive officer of the Evans, testified he would be "pleased to have Ramsey under his command and would trust him again as officer of the deck."

Ramsey's chief defense counsel, Capt. Lazar Benrubi, at one point in the trial asked Ramsey: "Had the carrier Melbourne not turned when it did, would you have avoided the collision?"

"Quite easily," Ramsey replied.

They were referring to the final seconds before the collision when the carrier veered left in an attempt to avoid the destroyer.

Ramsey, son of a retired Navy machinist's mate, remained expressionless as the sentence was pronounced.

The collision occurred as the destroyer was shifting from a position ahead of the carrier to one astern. Lt. (j.g.) James A. Hopson, 28, the junior officer of the deck, was directing the ship's movement at the start of the maneuver and was the first witness today.

The skipper of the Evans, Cmdr. Albert S. McLemore, 40, of San Pedro, Calif., was asleep at the time of the collision and will face a courtmartial, probably next week.

Hopson was punished earlier by a letter of reprimand from the commander of the U.S. 7th Fleet, and an Australian courtmartial exonerated the captain of the carrier.

Discipline Is Promised At Cornell

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — A special trustees report on the student disorders at Cornell University last spring blames the disruptions in part on the lack of disciplinary action.

Cornell, the trustees said yesterday, "has failed to employ such (disciplinary) procedures available to it, and has thus threatened materially the usefulness of these procedures for the future."

The trustees also issued a stern warning to campus activists and said the preservation of order would be paramount at the university because of a minority of students who seek to replace reason with power.

Cornell must not in the future "negotiate under duress. There can be no amnesty for infractions of the student code," said the trustees who appointed a special eight-member committee to investigate the disorders.

Members of the school's Afro-American Society seized the Student Union building last April, emerging 36 hours later armed with rifles, shotguns and knife-tipped stocks.

The specter of armed students caused a national uproar and resulted in a state law banning guns from college campuses.

Major problems leading to the disorders, according to the trustees, were the handling of discipline and the judicial system; the committee on special education projects and the Afro-American studies program, and academic freedom and communications.

When the black students occupied the Student Union the faculty Senate first declined to yield to their demands, but later reversed itself and granted amnesty.

This agreement, the trustees said, "extracted an enormous price from Cornell."

Fire Equipment

The Inverness Public Utility District board discussed the purchase of about $700 worth of equipment for its fire department last night but delayed action until its October meeting to see if the list could be cut down, William H. Thompson, district director, said today.

Burglars Loot Five Southern Marin Homes

Five homes in Southern Marin were broken into yesterday, and $460 worth of items was taken from a Homestead Valley home, sheriff's deputies at the Marin City substation and Mill Valley police reported today.

Deputies said a tape recorder, transistor radio and camera worth $460 were taken from the Decross residence at 4 Madrone Park Circle sometime yesterday.

Two of the burglaries were of neighboring houses on Paradise Drive. Deputies said the burglars in those cases apparently were "very young" juveniles. A bottle of champagne and $4 in loose change were taken from the E. R. Plappert residence at 4810 Paradise Drive after thieves pried open a window. The home of Arnt Tjensvold at 4800 Paradise Drive also was entered but it was not known whether anything was taken.

A 35-millimeter camera of unknown value was taken from the George E. Johnson residence at 715 View Point Road, Mill Valley, deputies said, but the camera was later recovered by Mill Valley police.

They said the Gerald F. Nowell residence at 209 Julia Avenue, Mill Valley, was also burglarized but it was not known what was taken.

Deputies also said a window was broken at the George V. Canby home at 4126 Paradise Drive but apparently the house was not entered.

Equipment Change Plan Wins Approval

An equipment exchange plan among Marin and Sonoma water districts was approved yesterday by the Marin Municipal Water District board.

The agreement specifies that any piece of equipment loaned will be operated by an employee of the loaning district. The employee will be paid by the district using the equipment, Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger explained.

North Marin County Water District and the Sonoma County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, the other jurisdictions involved, have already approved the agreement.

The Marin Municipal Water District board also:

HUB — Awarded a contract to Soiland Company, Inc. of Novato for relocation of water facilities at the Hub intersection in San Anselmo. Soiland was lowest of three bidders at $4,395, a price which does not include materials.

WATER — Learned August water consumption set a record and was 18 per cent above August of last year.

PIPELINES — Authorized pipeline extensions along Marlin Avenue, Mill Valley, with applicant J. T. Cutter to pay the full cost of $3,010; and on Picnic Avenue, San Rafael, with Picnic Hill Properties to pay the full cost of $8,833.

FIRELINE — Approved a fireline extension on Ross Avenue in San Anselmo with that city and the district sharing the cost of $6,313.

DUES — Authorized payment of the district share, $3,300, of the county dues of $5,500 in the Eel River Association.

ORDINANCE — Approved an employer-employee relations ordinance which requires conferences on all matters affecting employees.

PERSONNEL — Hired William Bradley and Edward Burke as laborers at $558 per month.

MEETING — Adjourned to 1:30 p.m. Sept. 30 at the district office because board members and Seeger will be attending an American Waterworks Association meeting in Santa Barbara on the regular date, Sept. 24.

School, Church Camp Give Views On Muir Woods Bill

Representatives of Hillwood Academic Day School and Cameron House today issued a joint statement supporting a bill to enlarge Muir Woods National Monument but urging that lands of the two organizations not be included in the expansion.

Reps. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District; Don H. Clausen, R-First District, and Phillip Burton, D-Fifth District, have jointly sponsored a bill (HR 12320) proposing to add 50 acres to the national monument, with cost estimated at $400,000.

The 50 acres under consideration would include holdings of Hillwood School and Cameron House.

"Because we have been told that severe budgetary restrictions may prevent the bill's passage, our church and school group will continue to do everything possible to facilitate the purchase of any uncommitted and available lands in the Muir Woods area," said Mrs. Anita Curry of the joint committee yesterday after returning from Washington.

Hillwood School and Cameron House lands date back to those which comprised Camp Kent, founded by two ministers in 1890 as the Sunday School Athletic League of Marin County, on property of William Kent, later a congressman. Later, the privately owned school and the Presbyterian Church-owned Cameron House purchased additional lots. The lands are used as a camping area for the two institutions, both of which are in San Francisco.

Finland lost 10 per cent of her territory to Russia because of World War II.

Drive-Through Restaurant Gets A Use Permit

A drive-through restaurant, Jack-in-the-Box, will go up in Ignacio at the corner of Ignacio Boulevard and Entrada Drive.

A use permit for the restaurant was approved yesterday by County Zoning Administrator Thomas E. Cordill, but the approval is subject to design review on the building by the planning department.

The 21,000-square-foot lot is owned by the Novato Fire Protection District, which plans to sell the property to the developer, Ralston-Purina Co. of Hayward.

Cordill postponed a decision on a request for permission to have musical entertainment and dancing at the Houndstooth Inn, at 10 Woodland Avenue, San Rafael. Don Banks of Fairfax, owner, applied for the permit.

Nearby residents, including the owner of an adjoining apartment house, complained of the noise and congestion created by the restaurant. Cordill said he would rule on the request next week.

Tomales Water Still Polluted

A 3-month-old warning on drinking water in Tomales probably won't be lifted until a community water system is installed, the county's director of environmental health reported yesterday.

William L. Desmond said water contamination still is a problem in the community, where private wells are too close to septic tanks.

Tomales residents were advised last June to boil drinking water following an outbreak of hepatitis.

The alternative to a public water system, Desmond said, would be a community sewage collection system.

Family Hosts Party At Home In Ross

By MOLLY MARIN

The annual family cocktail party was given Saturday for some 150 friends by the Thomas Murphys of Ross, their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Parsons, and their son, C. Jay Murphy, at the Murphy home. A combo played by the pool during the party for guests, who were transported to the home from parking space at the Marin Art and Garden Center by an English bus.

Suzanne and Jerry Parsons have recently purchased a home on Lagunitas Road in Ross . . . The Murphys live on Camino Bueno.

TRAVELING IN Europe for a month's vacation are the Ray Hoffmans III of Peacock Gap, San Rafael. The couple rented a car and are sightseeing at their leisure. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Levitt Olds, are house-sitting and caring for their three-year-old daughter, Victoria, while the Hoffmans are away.

ANOTHER PARTY in Ross is set for Sept. 21. It will be the just-for-fun "Rx September Tonic" table tennis and barbecue gathering of the Planned Parenthood Auxiliary at the Webster Otis home, with Mrs. V. Neil Fulton as chairman. Princess Margaret Regains Limelight With Asia Tour

By MARGARET SAVILLE

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Margaret regains some limelight this fall with an exotic tour of Japan, Cambodia and Iran.

But it is a telling sign that the fashions which her husband, Lord Snowdon, wears on the tour are more likely to create interest than the wardrobe she takes with her.

For Queen Elizabeth's sister, who just turned 39, this has been the year when the new generation of the royal family consumed the newspaper space once devoted to her.

Prince Charles, 20, the heir to the throne, held the stage as newly invested Prince of Wales. Princess Margaret's husband took the fringe of publicity for stage-managing the investiture ceremony at Caernarvon Castle.

TWO LESS immediate but very popular members of the royal family, Princess Alexandra and the Duchess of Kent, already perform more public duties than Princess Margaret does.

Now Princess Anne, 19, the queen's daughter, has blossomed and organizers are vying to get her to launch their ship or visit their building.

As public attention moves elsewhere, Princess Margaret gets more time to relax. In the winter, she went on a Caribbean vacation with friends while Snowdon was working on his latest television project, a documentary about pet owners and their pets. Before the Far Eastern trip, she and Snowdon flew to Sardinia for a summer vacation as the guests of the Aga Khan.

THEY LEAVE for Tokyo Sept. 19, and while there will help publicize British export week. From Japan, they go to Cambodia Sept. 30-Oct. 4 and on to Iran at the invitation of the Shah.

Princess Margaret has the same tendency to plumpness that her mother developed in her 30's but she does not appear to have worried about dieting off the extra weight before the trip. She has, however, ordered a large new wardrobe in her favorite colors of brilliant pink, jade green, yellow and white. One of her new evening gowns has a modernistic design of scrolls, flowers and leaves in many different colors.

SNOWDON HAS been making more fashion news than his wife recently because he disigned his own uniform for the investiture of Prince Charles. He abandoned the medieval costume worn by previous constables of Caernarvon Castle — his official title—and took to a bottle green suit with a plain fronted tunic coat rounded off by a Nehru collar.

His liking for bright colors and the latest fashion trends had a sequel in court when a private motorist, Gordon Bennett, sued him for causing an obstruction by parking his Aston Martin car so Bennett could not move his own.

Bennett said, "I did not recognize him at the time. He was wearing a bright array of clothes. To be quite honest, I thought he may have been a member of a 'pop' group coming from the British Broadcasting Corporation studios nearby. Someone with him was carrying a guitar."

Snowdon was fined five pounds ($12) on the parking charge.

HE PLANS to do a considerable amount of photography on the Asian trip and has said he may incorporate the best of the pictures in a book. He already has published several large illustrated books about previous overseas travel trips, including Malta and Italy. Before his marriage to the princess in 1960, he was one of the official court photographers.

The Snowdons will be traveling with quite an entourage. The princess will be accompanied by a lady-in-waiting and a male secretary who will act as equerry, escorting her when necessary. She also takes her personal maid and her own hairdresser. Snowdon takes his secretary, a valet, and also a photography assistant.

While they are away from their Kefington Palace home, their two children, Viscount Linley, 8, and Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones, 5, will be in the charge of their grandmother, Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother.

Non-Smoker Helps Kick Habit

By ARLEEN ABRAHAMS
Associated Press

Thousands of heavy smokers who have successfully kicked the tobacco habit through their membership in Smoke-Stoppers Inc. may be surprised to learn that Mrs. Edith Roberts, the founder and developer of the Smoke-Stopper program, has been a nonsmoker all her life.

But Mrs. Roberts considers the fact that she has never been a smoker important to the success of her program.

"Too many former smokers are reformers," said the former volunteer psychiatric social worker and head of a New York City trade vocational school. "Because they stopped smoking, they can't see why anybody can't." She claims reforming smokers is the furthest thing from her mind — "I just want to help those who want to be helped.

"SINCE I had no frame of reference or personal experience to draw on," continues the middle-aged, youthful-looking blonde, "I had to research all the methods and the psychology behind the problem. Perhaps that's why 90 per cent of the people who have completed my program have succeeded in becoming permanent nonsmokers."

Mrs. Roberts says she first realized the drawbacks of smoking some 20 years ago, when she and her husband Louis, a high school teacher and now dean of the Roberts Vocational School, were counseling underprivileged people in psychology and child guidance at New York community houses. "I saw the menace of tobacco, not only from a health point of view, but from a financial and social outlook," she comments.

AN INTEREST in people combined with a curiosity as to why so many people tried so many methods of stopping smoking, only to return to the habit and to try yet another miracle cure, led her to various smoke-stopping clinics, to consultations with many members of the medical profession and psychologists, and to the U.S. Surgeon General's Office. Three years ago, the former teacher came up with a program which teaches students in a series of 12 seminars (sometimes more, sometimes less) literally, not to smoke, through reinforcement, self-analysis and group therapy, similar to the tecnhiques of Alcoholics Anonymous. The method was tested over a two year period with private groups before being opened to the public. Now the techniques of Smoke-Stoppers Inc. are being franchised on a nationwide basis.

COLD TURKEY . . . That's what's in store for these members of Smoke-Stoppers, Inc. According to Edith Roberts, the organization's founder, "availability is half the problem." Hence the organization doesn't advocate any tapering off the smoking habit.

A TEACHER, not a crusader is Mrs. Edith Roberts, founder of Smoke-Stoppers, Inc.

"MOST SMOKERS have false ideas and associations about smoking," claims Mrs. Roberts. "We have to destroy the fallacies and get them to assume the attitudes of the non-smokers."

For example, she points out that most people claim they smoke to relieve tension. They further claim that if they were to stop they would immediately gain weight.

"Research shows that the only tension that smoking relieves is the nervousness produced by smoking," says Mrs. Roberts, the mother of a graduate psychologist-attorney. "The habit itself produces the urge to smoke."

As for the weight issue, Mrs. Roberts explains that just because a person stops smoking, it doesn't mean that his body requires any additional fuel. "Of course, your taste buds may be clearer but you don't need to eat more.

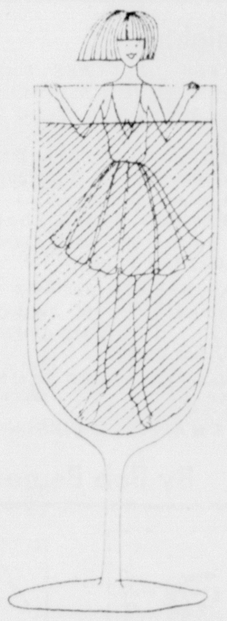
"Just ask yourself, 'What is smoking doing for me?' " she challenges. "Once you analyze all the myths, you'll see that aside from so-called pleasure, which is nothing more than manual and oral gratification which can be achieved in other ways, smoking isn't worth risking your life over."

MRS. ROBERTS doesn't believe in tapering off the smoking habit. At the first class, all students are asked to discard any cigarettes they have on their person. Then they are told to get rid of any cigarettes at home. "Availability is half the problem," she says.

"The only thing between you and the end of your smoking habit is the ability to take the first step — empty your pockets of cigarettes and keep them empty. Smoking isn't an addiction; it's a deeply ingrained habit. If you stop suddenly, you won't suffer any severe physical pains or withdrawal symptoms.

"Of course you need a sincere desire to stop. That's why we (and all clincs) charge a fee. You'd be surprised at how many people, particularly men, stop smoking because stopping is costing them something."

But, she adds, her blue eyes twinkling, "What the program costs in dollars is immeasurable in terms of years added to your life."



This is a purple passion.

We have a passion for purple, too. In fact, we love it almost to pieces. We love dresses and pants and shirts of it. We love part purple things and all purple things. And in new fabrics, like shiny vibrating nylon, we think it's like a brand new color. And another thing. We can't think of a color that looks so well with so many other colors. We love purple with reds. And silver. And white. And black. And all those funny greens. And we're really hung up on the way it looks under furs. Like to put a little passion in your life? It could start with just one something purple.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

College Student's Declaration Of Independence Scares Parents

DEAR HELEN:

I am sending you two lengthy letters which have two very different viewpoints. One is from me, representing the parental attitude, the other from our daughter. We'd like your opinion. First, my letter:

Dear Helen: We are the parents of a wonderful, bright, sensible and well-adjusted 18-year-old girl. Our relationship has been very gratifying. Raising her has been a joy. Our home has always been filled with love and mutual respect, faith and trust.

Our first serious difference is with us now. Sandy had a fine freshman year at college, helped along by a lovely roommate. But this year she has chosen for her replacement (the other girl transferred) a wild type who has tried pot and, as they say, "sleeps around."

This girl is doing everything we have taught our daughter is morally and physically wrong. Our Sandy admits she may be a "Hedonist," but feels she can help her and, at any rate, her lack of morals won't rub off, she says. I get the impression that Sandy almost admires these idiots for their independence.

We have never tried to run our daughter's life, only to guide her, but on this issue we feel we must be adamant. We do not want her in such close association with immorality. Are we — OVER-PROTECTIVE PARENTS?

Next, our daughter's letter:

Dear Helen: I respect and admire my parents, and I sympathize for they are in a common situation. Their daughter came home from a year at college not exactly the same person she was at age 17.

My nature didn't change except that I became more self-reliant. But I was made aware of viewpoints and experiences that were different from those which 13 years of Catholic school — plus a very close-knit family life — taught me.

The college I attend is one of the best in the country. My folks have sacrificed a lot to send me there, and I appreciate it greatly.

Last year they were very proud of me, but now they are having second thoughts. Why? Because I have chosen as my roommate a girl whose moral ideas are different from theirs — and mine. My mother condemns her for this while I do not. She and Dad live by an absolute moral code, but I prefer to judge individuals, and individual situations. I do not consider necessarily immoral every girl who may sleep with a man she does not intend to marry. Even though I am still a virgin and have no plans or inclination to change my status, this attitude of mine they consider blasphemy. They are sure that if I live with a lost soul I, too, will seal my fate, which to them still appears almost a fate worse than death.

Perhaps this roommate controversy isn't the real issue, but has only brought it to a head. I maintain that something must be lacking here, in me, in them, in both of us: If I have grown up to be the person they have tried (I think very successfully) to make me, they should not worry. I will do only what I feel is right to do. They know this, but they fear that I will come to consider right what they believe to be wrong. They tell me they sent me away to school because they had faith and trust in me.

I think they should exercise this trust and allow me to make my own decisions and judgments — even to making my own mistakes. With this taken away, my education is useless. Do these feelings make me an — UNREASONABLE DAUGHTER?

DEAR MOTHER AND DAUGHTER:

You are neither an overprotective mother, nor an unreasonable daughter because you're both reacting in totally normal and predictable ways. What parent isn't frightened when a child declares independence — and what young adult worth her salt wants to stay under the parental thumb, no matter how lovely and safe it is down there?

You have raised your daughter well, "Mother," and now it's time to let go. Because you've given her firm standards you can expect her to continue living in a way that will make her feel proud of herself — and you proud of her! Those 18 years of happy, close-knit family life won't be washed away. Rather, I'd guess, this rebellion-based friendship may be washed up in a few months. You'll see. — H.

Unisex Life In 2000 A.D.

EXETER, England (AP) — Father will be washing dishes and changing diapers by the year 2000 while mother washes the car and mows the lawn, a sociologist predicted Tuesday.

Peter Wilmott, director of the London Institute of Community Studies, calls it "unisex" marriage. The switch in roles already is happening in the United States, he told delegates to the annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of science.

The sexes are becoming more alike in the United States, boys and girls are being given ambivalent names, and male and female styles of hair and dress are making it increasingly difficult to tell the sexes apart, he said.

"Men spend more than women on perfumed preparations," Wilmott said, adding that a similar trend is beginning in Britain.

"The unisex family, as Wilmott described it, would introduce a system in which husband and wife would pursue their jobs and share their household chores.

Children would withdraw into their own world with their own personal television and telephones and leave home to live elsewhere earlier than they do today, the sociologist said.

Playwrights Ban Together Over Nudism

LONDON (AP) — Playwrights Harold Pinter and David Mercer have formed a theatrical management company with a built-in bias against nudism.

Pinter said he will not present nude plays "unless somebody writes one about Adam and Eve."

Mercer, who has worked for the Royal Shakespeare Company, commented: "Plays are written to be performed, not to be some kind of improvised arrangement with the audience.

"I am old fashioned enough to believe that the current trend of nudity is not necessary."

The company aims to have writers and directors working together in all aspects of theatrical production.

Movie Theater Suing BART

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The owners of a Market Street movie house filed suit against the Bay Area Rapid Transit District yesterday, claiming construction was driving away customers.

The $2.2 million suit by the owners of the Orpheum Theater said work on the BART Civic Center station had resulted in "offensive noises, odors, vibrations, and the dissemination of dust and dirt."

The theater said it suffered an inability to get good pictures, the disruption of showings, and the discouragement of patrons.

Labor Trouble Shuts Two Weeks Of Met

NEW YORK (UPI)—The third and fourth weeks of the New York Metropolitan Opera's fall season were postponed yesterday after union and management negotiations were suspended.

The Met and representatives of dancers, musicians, and choristers unions called for a "cooling off period" and Special Mediator David Cole said negotiations would only resume when he feels progress can be made.

The Sept. 15 opening night performance had already been canceled, and Oct. 13 remains the first night performances could resume if a wage settlement is reached, according to the Met.

Dancers and choristers have been offered a $3,500 annual salary increase spread over three years. Dancers have averaged $6,500 and singers $10,500 under the old contract.

The Met musicians were offered a raise from $260 a week to $315 over the same three year period, according to the Met.

Japan Week Picketing Competes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Chants of "Death to the (U.S.-Japan) Security Pact" mingled with "Ho Chi Minh is gone away, but Jesus is here to stay" during a demonstration yesterday at the Japan Trade Fair.

The Asian Coalition had scheduled a picket line as the second in a series of protests to Japan Week. The 30 young leftist demonstrators, however, were met by a dozen young "Right On Christians" with their own picket line.

Several young members of the Christian group were bearded and barefoot and the unwary could be excused for becoming confused—particularly when they handed out a newspaper called Right On.

At first glance, it looked like an underground sheet. But the main article began: "Rumor has it that one of our people died for our sins, was buried and rose again three days later . . ."

When the coalition formed its picket line, with such signs as "Off Every Pig" and "800 Million Chinese Can't Be Wrong," the Right On group got in step.

The groovy Christian's signs read "Liberate Christians in Russia" and "A God is a God is a God until you've Trusted Jesus."

"They're pigs, provocateurs," one militant complained.

"We're just Christians," said John C. Glennen, 24, as he strummed his guitar.

Teen-Ager Is Cut In Accident

Gary Dennis Diego, 14, of 23 Blossom Drive, San Rafael, suffered multiple facial cuts yesterday when the car he was driving went over an embankment on Shoreline Highway between Muir and Stinson Beaches, the California Highway Patrol said today.

The Marin Catholic High School student was treated for his cuts at Marin General Hospital. A passenger in the car, Joseph Jay Cresalia, 16, of 180 Montecito Road, also San Rafael, apparently did not require hospital treatment.

The patrol's report on the late afternoon mishap was incomplete and further details were unavailable today.

Chairman Named For Nominating Panel

Wayne Bulette was named chairman of a nominating committee to select a slate of officers for next year for the San Marin Improvement Association at a board meeting Tuesday night, according to Guthrie R. Greene, president.

The preliminary slate of officers will be presented at the Oct. 8 meeting, the time and place to be announced later, Greene said. The election will be held in January with write-in votes possible, he said.

Brothers Held Equally To Blame In Slaying

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Two brothers, who each blamed the other for the murder of Ramon Novarro, are equally guilty of killing the silent screen actor, the prosecution contended in its summation at their trial.

It appeared today as attorneys for Paul and Thomas Ferguson began their closing arguments that the defense lawyers would be pitted against each other as well as the prosecution.

Deputy Dist. Atty. James M. Ideman told the jury of seven men and five women yesterday:

"You have to decide both are guilty...you'll never know who struck what blow. But it doesn't matter if you find they acted together for torture of robbery."

The prosecution contends the Chicago brothers went to the 69-year-old actor's home in the Hollywood Hills last October with the intent of torturing him to reveal the whereabouts of $5,000 the brothers believed hidden in the home.

"These two young men," Ideman said, "wanted to make a big score—but they went too far."

Ideman said Novarro did not keep large amounts of money in his home. "The problem was that the aggressive one—Paul—wouldn't take no for an answer," the prosecutor said.

At another point in his summation, Ideman said the actor was "trussed up like an animal and beaten to death-...this was deliberate torture. I recommend a verdict as to both defendants of murder in the first degree."

Cletus J. Hanifin, who continued his summation on behalf of Paul, 23, today, began his argument by indicating Thomas, 18, is prone to fantasy.

The attorney said that in a telephone call from Novarro's home to an old girl friend in Chicago the night of the murder, Thomas said the actor's home had 32 rooms, 700 pictures and an upstairs solarium.

Hanifin asserted the home actually had only nine rooms, 20 to 25 pictures and no solarium.

Hanifin was expected to conclude his presentation today and then Richard A. Walton will make his summation for Thomas.

School District Gets A Library

The Bolinas-Stinson Beach School District will reach another milestone next week in its modernization program with the opening of the district's first library separate from a classroom, Supt. Clarence B. Larison said today.

The library will house about 3,000 volumes, is located at the Bolinas School and will be located in a former classroom freed by installation of a new portable classroom at the school.

Formerly, Larison said, the library had to share a room with classes "to the detriment of both the library and the classroom."

The library will open for student use Monday.

Volunteers Sought To Aid Seal Work

An appeal for volunteer typists to help ready Christmas seals for mailing was issued today by the Marin Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Also needed are numerous individuals or groups to perform premailing tasks, which require no skills or experience. Information may be obtained from the association office at 206 Bon Air Center, Greenbrae.

WHERE SERVICE IS A MATTER OF PRIDE

Forestry Chief Sees Timber Lack

PORTLAND (UPI)—The head of the U.S. Forest Service said yesterday timber production will have to be "substantially increased" to meet the nation's housing goals for the next 30 years.

"Our current timber supplies," said Edward P. Cliff, "are not sufficient to last us, to meet the nation's need, over the long term. We can meet the needs of the next 10 years and perhaps the following two decades, but it will take intensive, accelerated forest management with a considerable investment in improved practices ranging from insect control to access roads to thinning and research."

Miller Creek School Fire Called Act Of Arsonist

The $50,000 fire that gutted the Miller Creek School administration building Tuesday night was the work of an arsonist, Marinwood Fire Chief Gaylord E. Bonfield declared today.

An arson specialist from the San Francisco office of the American Insurance Association will be called in to inspect the charred remains at 2255 Las Galinas Avenue, Bonfield said.

"It's just about certain it was arson," he said. "There were at least three sets. One was on a couch in the faculty lounge. Another had to be in the principal's office, although it is too badly charred to tell exactly where. And the third was in the front counter of the reception desk where fluid had been poured over some papers."

The chief said ditto fluid kept in the office is missing, and this could have been used to set the blaze.

"There is also evidence that the medicine cabinet in the nurse's office had been broken into, but school authorities say there were no drugs kept there."

The same school area was the scene of several other spot fires set yesterday afternoon by teen-agers playing with matches.

About 3:30 p.m. firemen raced to a grassy slope behind the school and doused flames that scorched an area about 10 by 20 feet. "There were about 20 other small spot fires around the area as if somebody had thrown book matches," said Bonfield. "Witnesses said they saw three kids about 13 setting the fires. Fortunately, the grass had been mowed. If there had been a wind, flames could have raced up the hillside."

"We are going to be just as tough as laws allow in any future fires set by juveniles," Bonfield warned.

There are about 1.8 million railroad freight cars in the United States.

Four Marinites On U.S. Jury

Four Marin County residents were selected by Judge Albert C. Wollenberg yesterday for the new Federal Grand Jury in San Francisco.

Antone J. Ivicevich of San Francisco was named foreman of the 23-member jury and Gordon T. Kono of Alameda was chosen as deputy foreman.

The Marinites, who will serve until January are: William Brannan of 21 Hillcrest Drive, San Rafael; Sue J. Clark of 750 Idylberry Road, San Rafael; William G. George of 266 Adele Street, Novato, and Thomas A. Guerin of Ames Avenue, Ross.

Egyptians Fly Three Raids In Retaliation

TEL AVIV (AP) — Egyptian planes carried out repeated strikes against Israeli forces in the occupied Sinai Desert today in retaliation for Israel's attacks against the Egyptian coastline south of Suez.

The Israelis claimed they shot down seven of the raiders and probably bagged an eighth one in two raids against its positions.

Egypt reported downing four Israeli planes and destroying Israeli artillery, naval installations, antiaircraft batteries ammunition dumps and an administrative headquarters in three successive attacks.

There was no word from Israeli headquarters on the third reported attack.

The Egyptian attacks were in retaliation for the Israeli amphibious raid on Egypt's Gulf of Suez coast Tuesday, in which Israeli troops reported killing 100-150 Egyptians, and an air attack in the same area Wednesday.

Earlier, Israeli planes struck across the Jordan River into Jordan.

The army said two Israeli planes flew across the Jordan to knock out an Arab guerrilla position south of the Sea of Galilee. The Israelis said the guerrillas had fired on three Israeli patrols. The military spokesman said both planes returned safely.

The army also reported four Arab saboteurs were killed in a clash with Israeli troops near the Damiya Bridge across the Jordan north of the Dead Sea.

In the northern Jordan Valley, the Israelis said Jordanian forces blew up a water pump turbine today, threatening the water supply to an Israeli kibbutz.

The San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge opened to traffic Nov. 12, 1936.

Vietnam Lull Ends; Fierce Encounter North Of Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. forces returned to the offensive today at the end of a three-day truce called by the Viet Cong to mourn the death of President Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam. Fierce fighting broke out north of Saigon.

"We're back to normal," said one U.S. field officer, referring to the defensive posture American units assumed during the cease-fire. "We're after the enemy again. We're going into areas where we've had reports of movements or bunkers."

The truce ended at 1 a.m. today, and enemy forces followed it up with 39 attacks on bases and towns, mostly with barrages of rockets and mortars.

The U.S. Command responded by sending B52s to dump a million pounds of explosives on enemy positions. The big bombers were not used during the cease-fire.

Most of the fighting was in the Third Corps military zone north of Saigon, the scene of many battles since the Communist command launched an autumn campaign last month.

About 20 miles to the south, other elements of the 25th Division discovered the bodies of 23 North Vietnamese soldiers killed by artillery shortly after the cease-fire ended.

In the north, 31 enemy soldiers were reported killed in an attack on an element of the U.S. 196th Light Infantry Brigade southwest of Da Nang. Four Americans were killed and 12 wounded.

Allied spokesmen announced that during the cease-fire period, the enemy initiated at least 67 actions, about two-thirds of them against South Vietnamese troops.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Command reported 137 Americans were killed in action and 1,449 were wounded last week, compared with 185 killed and 1,057 wounded the week before.

Kent Lake Spillway Swimmers Draw Fines

Two nude sunbathers were fined and six others were placed on 90 days probation yesterday in West Marin Justice Court after they pleaded guilty to charges of disturbing the peace.

Nancy E. Burgard, 20, of 108 Carson Road, Woodacre, was fined $25 and Stephen L. Watkins, 22, of 641 Magnolia Avenue, San Anselmo, was fined $35 for swimming naked in the Kent Lake Spillway last Firday.

Placed on 90 days probation for being nude near Stinson Beach Sunday were Bruce Gordon, 26 and Joy Angela Gordon, 23, both of 142 Park Street, San Rafael; Roger J. Kase, 22, Anella Kase, 20, and Stephen V. Gregg, 24, all of San Francisco and James R. Nicoll, 24, of 59 Lovell Avenue, Mill Valley.

Judge David R. Baty said the differences in sentences were because swimmers at the Kent Lake Spillway have been repeatedly warned about public nudity, whereas those getting probation were in a secluded cove near Stinson Beach where no previous arrests or warnings have occurred.

The judge said, however, that he told the six to "spread the word" to other nude sunbathers who reportedly use the cove that other arrests will bring stiffer penalties.

Woman Robbed, Bound To Auto

A Novato woman reported that she was robbed of the night's receipts from the San Rafael restaurnat where she worked, by a bearded hippie who tied her to her car, police reported today.

Patriciann G. Camporeale, 22, of 20 Santa Maria Drive, said she was leaving Anjo s Restaurant at 535 Fourth Street at 10 p.m. yesterday when a young man walked up to her with a gun. Placing the muzzle against her chin he demanded she hand over her purse, taking $15 from her purse and $168 in restuarant receipts from her dress pocket. He then tied her hands to the door handle with wire, she said.

After the robber left she called for help and was heard and untied by Mrs. Edith E. Andrews, who had been in her bedroom at 527 Fourth Street, next to the restaurant parking lot.

Fire Board Sells Surplus Ignacio Land

The Novato Fire District board last night sold a surplus piece of property for $100,000 to the Ralston Purina Co. for a Jack-in-the-Box restaurant, Fire Chief Jack Kidder reported today.

This was the only bid received by the district for the property and was higher than the $95,000 minimum set by the board.

The district originally received the property from the state Division of Highways as surplus property after the construction of the Ignacio overpass.

The district retained 26,775 square feet of the property for a fire station, Kidder said. It offered the remaining land for sale twice before with minimum bids set at $175,000 and $100,000.

The vote last night was 3-0 with Chairman Peter Ferrarese absent from the four-man board.

The Novato Fire District Board also:

TRUCK — Authorized the staff to prepare specifications for a new tanker truck.

TRAINING — Appointed Asst. Chief Alvin Butti as special training officer effective next Monday.

FIRE-RAMA — Approved taking the snorkel truck to the annual Marin County Fire Departments Fire-rama at Redwood High School on Oct. 5.

Peacock Gap Show Attracts 1,800 Dogs

Enough dogs to give every cat in the Bay Area the jitters will descend on Marin County this weekend, in a canine convention featuring eight separate dog shows and fun matches.

The feature event will be the annual Sir Francis Drake Kennel Club's championship show at Peacock Gap Sunday, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nearly 1,800 dogs in 97 breeds will compete in conformation and obedience in 16 judging rings.

NATIONWIDE COMPETITION

Dogs from all over the U.S., Canada and other nations have been entered for the event, according to Mrs. Jan Hampton of Tiburon, president of SFDKC. An added attraction at the show will be the second annual running of the whippet races, to choose the 10 fastest West Coast specimens of the coursing breed. First heat of the daylong racing card will be at 11 a.m.

Another feature of the show will be a display of pet portraits by Corte Madera artist Stanley Ferguson, whose works were featured on the cover and inside last week's Marin Magazine of the Independent-Journal.

One of the most popular events of the day will be the junior handling competition, in which scores of youngsters from 8 to 16 years old are judged on their skill in showing dogs in the ring.

ONE-BREED SHOWS

Preliminaries to the big all-breed show Sunday will be five one-breed, specialty shows in Marin on Saturday, plus two fun matches.

The 20-acre Peacock Gap showgrounds will be the scene beginning at 9 a.m. of the national specialties for Kerry blue terrier and Gordon setter owners, as well as regional specialties the Poodle Club of Central California and the Golden Gate Dachshund Club.

At Rancho Rafael in Novato will be a Dobermann Pinscher fun match, and the Northern California English Bulldog fanciers will again have their specialty at the Lodge north of Novato. Great Danes will have a match at Corte Madera Park.

County Orders Fire Walls At Apartment Unit

Paul Sade, developer of Crest Marin apartments on the six-acre hill behind Chateau restaurant north of San Rafael, must install several fire resistant walls to meet code standards. from the Marin County Building

This decision came yesterday from the Marin County Building Code Board of Appeals, headed by Ray W. Foreaker Jr., chairman.

Hans J. Berge, county building inspector, reported that seven or eight fire resistant walls are required in various parts of the 104-unit project, largely in the carport areas.

Sade appealed to the board of appeals to be exempted from installing the one-hour and two-hour fire resistant walls.

The board decided unanimously that the fire walls must be added as required by the building inspector.

TAKE A RIDE—Marin County business and civic leaders watched yesterday as a group of their conferees took a demonstration ride in a Golden West Airlines DeHavilland Twin Otter. Sausalito Sets $220,000 Bond Vote For Nov. 4

Sausalito City Council last night set an election for Nov. 4 on a $220,000 bond issue to pay for new construction on the city's fire house and police station and Tiffany Beach.

The council introduced the date-setting ordinance, which it will give final approval next Tuesday. The city now has no bonded indebtedness.

If approved by two-thirds of the registered voters the election would authorize $85,000 for work on the fire station, $80,000 for the police station and $65,000 for Tiffany Beach.

City Mgr. George M. Patterson said that the bonds will not increase the city tax rate of $1.315 per $100 assessed valuation.

The council set a 20-year limit for repayment of the bonds, after discussion of the merits of a 25-year period.

Councilman Robin Sweeny said a 25-year period would enable more people to participate in the repayment but noted that the city would have other unknown costs in 20 years. The five-year difference equals three-quarters of a cent in the tax rate.

The bonds would pay for the construction of additions and reconstruction of sections of the main fire station at 20 Caledonia Street to provide dormitory space, a combination day room and kitchen, more equipment storage room and other improvements.

Police headquarters at Johnson and Caledonia Streets, now leased by the city, would be purchased and construction of additional office space, site improvements and other improvements would be accomplished.

Tiffany Beach reconstruction would include a rock revetment on the bay side of Bridgeway Boulevard with sand filling behind it to create a public beach.

In related action the council set 8 p.m. Wednesday for a meeting for all persons interested in forming a bond issue committee to sell the election to voters. It will be held in the council chambers at 729 Bridgeway Boulevard.

The council agreed that the committee had to be established quickly, and last night Mrs. Sweeny and other councilmen gave the names of organizations and individuals they thought would help the city clerk. Letters will be sent inviting them to the meeting.

The council also noted that today was the last day to register for the election for persons who have not previously done so or have moved since the last election.

Feeder Pitch At Smith 'Airport'

By FRANK CHESLEY

The Smith Brothers Ranch airport — which does not legally exist — took a big step toward respectability yesterday when 30 Marin business and civic leaders listened to a proposal from Golden West Airlines for a feeder service from the strip to San Francisco International Airport.

David B. Vail, chairman of the Marin County Aviation Commission, and Melvin S. Halpern, Golden West's director of planning and research, agreed that the service could start within 60 days, if the approval of several governmental bodies can be obtained.

That "if" looms large. The service must have the approval of the county, the California Department of Aeronautics and the Federal Aviation Agency. Then there are the questions of annexation of the area by the City of San Rafael, zoning problems and possible opposition from Hamilton Air Force Base.

But the Marin leaders, who also were given a fast turn around the San Rafael area in a DeHavilland Twin Otter, were unanimous in their desire to see such a service get off the ground.

Eugene R. Trombley, a member of the Marin County Planning Commission, one of the local bodies which must approve the service, said he was hopeful that a feeder service could begin soon.

"We're in a position to go ahead as soon as the money is available," he said.

Richard Duncan, president of the Quail Hill Development Corp., said, "All of us have been interested in commercial aviation for Marin for a long time."

Also on hand were three FAA observers: John Zenter, manager of the local office at Oakland; his assistant, Charles Panos, and Les Hopkins, an airport planner headquartered in Burlingame.

Halpern told the group that Golden West probably would start out with two or three flights a day to the San Francisco airport, with flights to other Bay Area cities coming later.

Golden West was formed through a merger of Skymark, Aero Commuter, Cable Commuter, Catalina and Golden West airlines. It provides feeder service from Santa Rosa and Sacramento to Southern California.

At present, Robert de Young leases the airport property on a short-term basis from DSI Corp., but said the lessor approves of the use of the land for an airport.

The Marin group was lavish in its praise of the Twin Otter, a short-take-off-and-landing (STOL) craft which coped with the airport's primitive facilities with ease.

Halpern said the craft could make the trip to San Francisco International in 20 minutes. He said no fare structure had been set, but that it probably would be comparable to current helicopter fares from Waldo Point or less.

Golden West prefers Smith Ranch to Novato's Gnoss Field because of its proximity to the county's center of population.

De Young said, "If the county wants the airport, we're willing to put in the facilities at no public cost."

He emphasized that the field would remain private, with no other commercial facilities.

Harbor Carriers Claims Strikers Not Allowed To Vote On Contract

Officials of Harbor Carriers, operator of the Tiburon commute ferry, today claimed that ferry and tour boat employees, striking for higher wages, have not been allowed to vote on three wage increase proposals made during the past three-and-a-half months.

Albert C. Elledge, president of Harbor Carriers and Golden Gate Scenic Steamship Lines, said officials of the Marin Engineers Beneficial Association have reneged on a promise to the 16 marine engineers who run the tour boats and commuter ferry that they could settle their own contract separately from that of tug boat operators.

Union officials were not available today for comment.

Elledge said the latest offer by his company to end the strike which started June 4 would raise wages from $690 now paid to $900 a month the first year, a 29.7 per cent increase, $975 the second year and $1,050 the third year.

"If the members vote to reject a wage offer, that is one thing," Elledge said. "But when the members actually concerned do not even get the right to vote, then that is something else, and not in the best interest of the general public," he said.

He claimed that at a union meeting Monday, presumably called to allow operators to vote on wage offers, the general membership "rushed through" a motion to prevent the 16 operators from separately negotiating their own contract, in violation of a previous promise.

Elledge said his company is receiving an increasing number of telephone calls complaining about the strike.

Hearings Planned On Shore Sewers

The Bolinas Community Public Utility District board last night agreed to hold public hearings within a month on the proposed new sewer district for Bolinas and Stinson Beach, board secretary Jane Phillips reported today.

The board also said it would set a joint meeting soon with Stinson Beach officials to discuss the proposed sewer district which would clear the way for an estimated $2.3 million sewage system for the two shore communities.

District officials were authorized by the board to begin stockpiling pipeline for the sewer district by purchasing 400 feet of four-inch pipe and 500 feet of six-inch pipe. Mrs. Phillips said the cost of the pipe has not been determined.

In other action, the board set a special meeting for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday to award a contract for laying new pipeline on Wharf Road. Five bids have been submitted.

Innocent Plea On Perjury Charge

San Quentin inmate Clarence Morris pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to committing perjury in statements he made in a petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

A jury trial was set for the week of Jan. 5.

In his petition Morris claimed that he had made a deal with a Los Angeles prosecutor and then was double-crossed. He said that his attorney said a promise had been made by a deputy district attorney for a six-month jail sentence instead of the prison terms he received.

He is serving three concurrent terms for two counts of possessing marijuana for sale and one of possessing a dangerous drug.

Named To Board

The Mariner Cove Improvement Association board last night appointed Virgil Hammock Jr. to the board of directors.

Burglar Gets Nothing In Medical Offices

The offices of a doctor and dentist were broken into Monday night by a burglar who took nothing but may have been looking for narcotics, San Rafael police said yesterday.

Dr. Edward P. Borlo, whose dental practice is at 908 B Street, and the Planned Parenthood Association, which operates a medical office at 710 C Street, reported that their offices were ransacked. The thief had pried open rear windows at both sites and gone through drawers and cabinets. Nothing was noticed missing, police said.

Today is Thursday, Sept. 11, the 254th day of 1969 with 111 to follow.

The moon is new. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1777 Gen. George Washington's troops were badly defeated by the British at the Battle of Brandywine.

In 1841 all members of President John Tyler's cabinet resigned except Secretary of State Daniel Webster, in protest over the veto of a banking bill.

In 1940 Buckingham Palace in London was damaged by German bombers.

In 1963 all 18 aboard an Indian airlines Viscount died when the plane crashed near New Delhi.

A thought for the day: Washington Irving said, "A woman's whole life is a history of affections."

Larkspur To Get Yule Lights Again

Larkspur will get its Christmas street lights back again this year.

The Larkspur Chamber of Commerce directors yesterday authorized paying Pacific Gas and Electric Company $1,337 to install weatherproof electric sockets on utility poles on Magnolia Avenue between Doherty Drive and King Street.

The directors also named a committee to raise the $1,337, president Neil R. Brixon reported. Brixon said Larkspur has had no holiday lighting for the past two seasons since a safety ruling against temporary outdoor electrical connections.

Always Lay The Groundwork Before Attempting A Finesse

"That was an unlucky hand, but I am used to bad luck," South said bravely after going down one on today's hand. "Finesses work for other people, but never for me. The last time I succeeded with a finesse was in 1964, but that doesn't count because I was just filling in for somebody else after the cards had already been dealt." We all managed to look sympathetic, but it was quite a struggle; we had heard South's hard luck stories many times before.

Opening lead -- ♡ K

KING OF HEARTS

West opened the king of hearts, and then shifted to the jack of diamonds. South took the king of diamonds, drew three rounds of trumps, ending in the dummy and then tried a finesse with the ten of clubs.

West won with the king of clubs and led another diamond. South won in dummy with the ace of diamonds and tried a finesse with the jack of clubs.

CLUB TAKES

West won with the queen of clubs and cashed the ace of hearts to defeat the contract. This was when South made his brave little speech.

Do you see why the rest of us were so unsympathetic to South? Can you find a way to make the contract despite the bad luck in clubs? Look for the right line of play before you read on.

BEGAN WELL

South began well when he took the king of diamonds and drew three rounds of trumps. But it was then too early to try a club finesse.

Instead, South should cash the ace of diamonds and ruff a diamond. Then South must lead a heart.

West takes the ace of hearts and gets out safely with a heart to dummy's queen. Only now can South afford to try a finesse with the ten of clubs.

NO SAFE RETURN

West can win with the king of clubs (or the queen), but he cannot make a safe return If West returns a club, South gets a free finesse. If West returns anything else, declarer ruffs in dummy and discards a club from his hand.

The right preparation makes the contract unbeatable, despite the bad luck.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ 7
♥ A K 5 4
♦ J 10 9 5 3
♣ K Q 9

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. Show the longer suit first. At your next turn you may show the hearts, and your partner will know that you probably have only four hearts.

Talk Of New Look For Legislature In '70

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Senate and Assembly leaders, after adjourning a special veto override session they considered a waste of time and money, announced plans today to streamline the Legislature in 1970.

Assembly Speaker Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, indicated he will propose that the Legislature begin doing things more the way congress does by moving toward two-year sessions.

Monagan is preparing a constitutional amendment which could go on next year's statewide ballot. It would provide that the Legislature would remain in session, except for recesses, for a two-year period. Bills could stay alive for the duration.

Now, the Legislature adjourns each year and starts all over again with new bills in January. Specific details still are being worked out, the speaker's office said.

Sen. President Pro Tem Howard Way, R-Exeter, said the Monagan plan has "possibilities" and he wants to study it. He questioned, however, whether the legislature would be prepared to take such a bold step next year. It has only been since 1967 that lawmakers have been meeting in annual general sessions.

Way did disclose some other things he plans to put into effect.

The new Senate leader wants his house in 1970 to concentrate more on rapid transit as a solution to transportation problems.

"More and more freeways is not the answer," he said.

Way said a professor at the University of California at Davis is studying the Senate's workload and will recommend how to restructure committees to make better use of members' time—particularly in a session's early months.

Monagan and Way both plan to push for an end to the special veto override sessions, which were voted in along with constitutional revision in 1966.

There hasn't been an override since 1946 and nobody even came close this year. Most Republicans remained loyal to Gov. Ronald Reagan and beat down Democratic attempts to overturn vetoes of their pet bills.

The only Republican in either house who dared asked that one of his vetoed bills be resurrected was Sen. Fred W. Marler of Redding. The senator complained the legislature had fallen into a pattern of not opposing governors on vetoes and was dangeroulsy close to abdicating its responsibilities.

"If we continue to follow this policy we'll never take on the governor," Marler said. "We can't say the legislature is coequal with the governor."

Marler asked the Senate yesterday to overturn a veto of a bill that would have exempted the East Nicholaus and the Wheatland Union High School districts in the Sacramento Valley from an area-wide tax requirement in school aid computations. He fell five votes short of the 27 needed.

The Senate also refused to override Reagan's veto for the second straight year of a bill which would have established an open presidential primary system in California.

The author, Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, said Reagan vetoed the bill because of his "own personal political ambitions." Reagan ran as a favorite son candidate last year and, in effect, discouraged other presidential aspirants from entering the GOP primary.

Other vetoed measures which the Senate refused to resurrect would have earmarked $4.5 million for a school lunch program, appropriated surplus remedial reading funds for special summer reading programs, restored $1.1 million for the Modesto State Mental Hospital which Reagan wants to phase out, and spent $160,000 for planning of a new medical prison at Otay Mesa in San Diego County.

The Assembly, which refused Tuesday to override nine Reagan vetoes, didn't have enough members on hand Wednesday even for a quorum.

Gov. Ronald Reagan was absent the entire three-day session, representing President Nixon at dedication of a cultural center in the Philippines.

Unless Reagan calls a special session—which he isn't expected to—the legislature won't convene again until noon Jan. 5.

Mustard Gas, 30 Other Drugs Used To Cut Spread Of Cancer

VAN DELLEN

Several weeks ago one of our readers wanted to know whether mustard gas is used after an operation for cancer to prevent the spread of malignant cells. Yes, and others might be interested in know that there are 30 other useful drugs for this purpose.

Nitrogen mustard is a by-product of chemical warfare — mustard gas. Although the drug causes considerable toxicity, it induces a regression of leukemia and tumors of the lymph glands.

Drugs have produced few cancer cures but they have prolonged the lives of many and provided relief of symptoms and improved the sense of well-being. The cures have occurred mainly in a few types of leukemia and rare malignancies such as choriocarcinoma, Burkitt's lymphoma and Wilm's tumor.

Aminopterin, introduced more than 20 years ago as a treatment for leukemia, was soon replaced by methotrexate, a closely related, but less toxic product. The latter is one of the main drugs used today to treat leukemia and several other types of cancer. It is an antagonist of folic acid, one of the B vitamins, with a specific action in stimulating the development of red and white blood cells.

Hormones also are used to keep certain cancers under control. Dr. Charles B. Huggins, of the University of Chicago, found that female sex hormones reduced the size of prostatic cancers including malignant cells that had spread throughout the body. The corticosteroids such as ACTH and cortisone also are effective against acute and chronic leukemia, lymphosarcoma, and Hodgkin's disease.

Other drugs that are temporarily active against certain cancers are TEM, TEPA, thiotepa, and busulfan. Fluorouracil is of value in tumors of the colon, stomach and breat. Vincristine is now one of the main drugs for acute leukemia. Choriocarcinoma, a rare, but highly malignant tumor of the placenta and uterus, responds well to methotrexate, dactinomycin, or vinblastine.

We can expect many more of these drugs, and when the right one is discovered — we may have a cure.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

RAMPANT RED CELLS

K. C. writes: What causes too many red blood cells?

REPLY

Known causes include certain types of heart and lung diseases, high altitudes, and dehydration. In primary polycythemia, the cause is not known. The bone marrow works overtime and manufactures red blood corpuscles faster than they are destroyed normally.

SUN AND INFANT'S EYES

A reader writes: Does staring directly into a bright light injure a baby's eyes in any way?

REPLY

It could except that many babies close the lids when exposed to a bright light. Too much exposure tends to burn the delicate structures of the eye.

NAVEL AND PREGNANCY

A reader writes: My lady friend had a hernia operation and the doctor also removed her navel. Will this prevent her from becoming pregnant?

REPLY

The navel plays no role in sex or getting pregnant. It represents the sole remnant of a person's fetal connection with his mother.

WART ON EYELID

J. T. writes: Can a wart on an eyelid be burned off?

REPLY

Yes, but the job is too tricky for amateurs.

FLIGHT FOR YOUNGSTERS

Mrs. B. B. writes: Will flying harm the ears of a 2-year-old boy?

REPLY

Not if his ears are otherwise normal and he doesn't have a cold. I assume your flight will be in a pressurized cabin.

SIGNS OF TB

A reader writes: Do any specific signs point to tuberculosis?

REPLY

Not specifically. Cough, unexplained weight loss, fever, and bloody sputum are likely to be late manifestations. So many persons with tuberculosis do not have symptoms, that an annual chest X-ray and tuberculin skin tests are the best means of detecting the disease in its early stages.

PLUSH CAPITOL PLANS

Twin-Tower Idea Quietly Dropped

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Legislature has quietly dropped talk of a new $65 million twin tower Capitol that had been planned in secret and would have given each lawmaker an office as big as a three-bedroom home.

And Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, who traveled to capitals as far away as Brazil to get ideas for the project, has been replaced as a member of the planning committee, of which he was chairman.

It all was done this week by the Legislature's two Republican leaders, Senate President pro tem Howard Way of Exeter and Assembly Speaker Robert T. Monagan of Tracy — a pair of economy minded lawmakers.

As Way told it, the twin tower with toilets in each office and a 2,000-car garage might be too grandiose of a project in a day when the voters pocketbooks are strained by inflation and high taxes. Committee chairmen would have had 2,707 square-foot offices and rank and file lawmakers 1,693 square feet in space, as much as a middle-class three-bedroom house.

Legislative planners now are thinking of something more modest.

IDEA SHELVED

"At least for the time being, the tower approach to the problem has been shelved," Way told a reporter.

He noted Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan has promised the state work force will be no greater next year than it was when he was inaugurated in 1967.

"Perhaps our space needs will not be what some people projected," he said. "There is no doubt the state will grow, but there is no reason why government has to grow if we approve its efficiency."

The twin tower Capitol, rising 24 stories high, had been designed, in preliminary form, by the state architect at the request of the Joint Committee on Legislative Space Needs.

Collier said the present building was too small for a legislative branch that has grown in recent years. The Capitol was built in 1869 and an office building annex finished in 1954.

SECRET WORK?

As chairman of the committee, Collier did not announce its meetings on the Capitol bulletin board where notice is given of joint committee sessions. Nor was the public informed in other ways of the meetings.

Collier and some committee members traveled to Brasilia, Hawaii, Michigan, New York, New Mexico, Georgia and North Carolina looking at new capitols.

The trips and plans for the twin towers cost $40,545.

The legislators haven't yet turned in a report on their travels and plans, but Collier said it will be ready in a few days.

"I've got two versions in front of me and I haven't read them yet," he said.

Way said Collier was replaced as committee chairman as part of a reshuffling and reorganization of joint committees.

Collier, a Democrat, opposed Way's election as president pro tem. Next year, Collier is expected to be dumped as chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee.

Collier said he's not unhappy about leaving the committee and promised to help the new chairman, Assemblyman Eugene Chappie, R-Cool.

Chappie is known as a legislative economizer. But he said he also believes the legislature needs more space. "If the leadership wants me to continue," he said "I'm going to ask for permission to make a rough estimate of space needs for 15 years ahead and relate it to costs and needs."

Drive Opened For Buyer Of Expo Grounds

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Buyers and developers wanted: "Properties . . . strategically located in the City of Sacramento and ideally suited for large imaginative development."

In other words, they're trying to get someone to take over Cal Expo, originally envisioned as a $34 million "showcase of the Golden State." Expo was a financial flop its first year in 1968.

The state ran an advertisement in major West Coast newspapers yesterday — the day after the 1969 version of the State Fair ended—seeking "expressions of interest in the development and operation" of Cal Expo.

TALK SUCCESS

Meanwhile, officials of the fair were confident this year's 19-day fair was more successful financially than last year's entire 72-day season, which many called a failure.

Gen. Mgr. Thomas Bair said, "I think we will look very good financially" mainly because of changes in prices and attractions.

Attendance this year came to 857,426, compared with a total of 682,414 last year.

Bair said final figures may be available Friday on how the finances fared.

Assemblyman Walter Powers, D-Sacramento, whose proposal to streamline the management of Cal Expo was vetoed by Gov. Ronald Reagan, said he was encouraged by this year's performance.

He said the difference was in a return to the old State Fair concept. "If they'd gone to a Cal Expo concept I don't think it would have been successful," he said.

ADVERTISE BIDS

The Cal Expo development subcommittee, headed by Denis Babson, started the $2,000 advertising campaign to be sure all possible bidders were aware of the fact that the state wants private enterprise to take over.

The ads solicit interest in the Cal Expo site, surplus property next to it, and the old State Fair site east of downtown Sacramento.

A spokesman for the Department of General Services, which oversees Cal Expo, said the solicitations doesn't mean the project will be opened to competitive bidding.

At least two developers have submitted proposals to the Expo executive committee to take over the operation next year. Both insist the ads do not mean their offers have been rejected.

The department already has tried once to sell the 169-acre old fair site. Not a single bid was received.

Business Chiefs To Advise On Spending

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—California business leaders will be asked tomorrow to advise the Reagan administration on the economic impact of cutting back the state's $1 billion construction program.

"We will ask them what kind of cutbacks we could make in California that wouldn't harm the economy too much," Business and Transportation Secretary Gordon C. Luce reported.

Luce heads a task force of state officials who will recommend to Gov. Ronald Reagan which state construction programs can be cut back in line with President Richard M. Nixon's order to federal agencies to reduce new building starts by 75 per cent.

ASKS FOLLOWERS

The presidential order applied to work financed solely by the federal government. But he urged state and local governments to follow suit under warning that if they failed to do so, federal construction funds might be restricted.

The administration task force will catalogue all proposed state construction programs and suggest to Reagan which can be cut back in compliance with Nixon's anti-inflation measure. Gov. Ronald Reagan is expected to act next week.

Luce estimated the state construction program covering the next 20 months totals about $1 billion. This includes highways, state buildings, parks, water, college and other construction.

He disclosed yesterday after a task force meeting that economists from such firms as the Bank of America, TRW, Pacific Telephone, and Pacific Gas and Electric will advise the state officials on the economic impact on California of cutbacks.

"GOOD ECONOMY"

"We don't want to disturb the good economy of California," Luce said.

Earlier, he announced a freeze on award of any new construction contracts along with an indefinite delay in the advertising for bids on new projects. The freeze will remain in effect until Regan decides which projects can be postponed.

In highway projects alone, Luce reported, frozen contracts totaled $78.5 million. But he said contracts for repair of roads damaged by last winter's storms and flooding are being let.

"Most of these should go ahead," he said.

But he said a barrier to the task force's work was learning from the U.S. Budget Bureau what federal projects in California will be affected by the presidential order.

Such information must be known, he said, before the Reagan Administration can project the effects on unemployment.

He said construction executives have told him of their "concern" and that the general attitude seemed to be "if you let us go ahead with our contracts, maybe we'll find some other ways to cut costs."

Luce said he had received no reaction from labor leaders.

But earlier in the day an official of the California Building and Construction Trades Council warned that its 250,000 members may stage a one-day strike.

James Lee, council lobbyist, announced he will poll the major locals to determine whether they would support such a walkout. His warning followed defeat by the state Senate Rules Committee of a measure urging Nixon to minimize cutbacks in federal construction.

Black Power Leader Wins Home Flight

LONDON (AP) — American Negro revolutionary Robert F. Williams today won his fight to return to the United States on the airline he bought a ticket from.

Trans World Airlines, which had refused previously to take Williams across the Atlantic, announced it would take him on a special flight. It said the only passengers would be the 44-year-old black power leader's lawyer and an airline security guard.

TWA said it would transport Williams "in response to a request from the U.S. government."

Milton Henry, a Detroit lawyer who came here to assist Williams, said Williams was in complete accord with the arrangement.

A TWA spokesman in New York said the flight would cost "as much as $20,000" and the airline was paying for it. Williams had accused TWA of breach of contract for not honoring the London-to-New York ticket he had bought, and the American Civil Liberties Union announced yesterday it was considering legal action against the airline on behalf of Williams.

Informed sources said Williams would leave London tomorrow.

Williams is returning to his home in Detroit. He will face a kidnaping charge in North Carolina from which he fled eight years ago. Since then he has lived in Cuba, Red China and Tanzania.

Egypt's United Arab Airlines flew him from Tanzania to London last Saturday, but TWA and all other airlines flying the Atlantic refused to take him to the United States.

Rumors Have Lolli, Weinberger Quitting

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Reagan administration today was reported to be losing two top aides, General Services Director Andrew R. Lolli and Finance Director Caspar W. Weinberger.

Lolli was reported by sources to be planning to leave the $24,675 post about Oct. 1. The report was neither confirmed nor denied by the 57-year-old retired Army major general, former commander of the Western North American Air Defense Command at Hamilton Air Force Base.

"I don't want to reveal my plans at this time," he said. "I'm not commenting at this time."

Reagan administration spokesmen said they did not know what plans the two officials had made.

Lolli was appointed to the post shortly after Gov. Ronald Reagan was inaugurated in January 1967 succeeding Robert L. Harkness. Lolli formerly was an assistant to the vice president of Hughes Aircraft in Fullerton.

Weinberger, 52, was vacationing in Europe and could not comment on reports he was offered and would accept a post with the Nixon administration on the Federal Trade Commission.

Last week Reagan confirmed Weinberger had a "decision to make" when he returned to the capitol.

Weinberger, a Republican and former GOP state chairman, replaced Gordon P. Smith in 1968.

Senator Lashes Latin Failures

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Despite $8 billion in Alliance for Progress appropriations, "the image of the United States in Latin America has gone from bad to worse," Sen. Frank Church, D.-Idaho said last night.

Speaking at a seminar on Latin America sponsored by the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, Church said:

"When (the alliance) was conceived, the growth of democratic government was considered at least as important as economic advances. The fact that seven years later 140 million more people are under military dictatorship underscores its failure."

Alliance funds have been used to benefit the elite, Church continued, saying evidence showed that the real purpose of the United States is to support the established order instead of change.

Deputies Probe Commune Death

BLYTHE (AP)—Dove hunters found a desert commune's caretaker dead about a mile from the camp where 11 members earlier were arrested in the 56-day detention of a 6-year-old boy in a large packing crate.

Sheriff's Capt. Ronald Bickmore said the body of Christopher Hartwell, 21, of Orange was found yesterday.

Bickmore said the circumstances of Hartnell's death were "suspicious" and the cause hasn't yet been established.

The commune members were arrested on felony child abuse charges after Anthony Gibbons said he was chained inside a topless packing crate at the camp, 35 miles north of Blythe.

Hartwell, who was employed by owners of the land where the commune is located, was reported missing last Sunday. Bickmore said the cause of death hasn't been established, and declined further comment.

One of the persons awaiting trial on the abuse charges is Beverly Gibbons, 36, Anthony's mother. The boy has been made a ward of Riverside County.

Starvation Kills Wealthy Man

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Lawrence Slocum died yesterday of malnutrition, a week after police found $40,000 hidden in his home.

Officers were called to the suburban Maple Heights house by neighbors who reported Slocum and his wife, both believed to be in their 80s, were neglecting their meals and that the house was filthy.

Using gas masks against the foul odor, patrolmen searched and found about $30,000 in bills and coins hidden in jars, boxes and dresser drawers.

An additional $10,000 in unredeemed stock dividend checks was found in various hiding places.

Slocum and his wife were taken to a hospital following the search last Friday. His wife was reported in fair condition, also suffering from malnutrition.

Innocent Plea To Counts Of Forgery

Peter E. Stuckslager, 33, of Santa Monica yesterday pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court to four counts of forgery. A jury trial was set for the week of Jan. 5.

Stuckslager is accused of taking checks belonging to a Sausalito woman, forging her signature and cashing them at the Two Turtle Bar and Del Monte liquors.

Los Angeles Eyes Battlewagon As Tourist Lure

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Now that Queen Mary is tooting her horn at tourist trade in nearby Long Beach, Los Angeles is harboring nautical ambitions.

It wants the Navy to send back the battleship New Jersey.

"A very interesting idea," Harbor Commission President Robert A. Day said yesterday, and ordered it explored "with urgency."

Then the commission voted unanimously to wire the Navy, offering $1 a year to lease the New Jersey as a tourist attraction.

The 56,000-ton battlewagon, returned from duty in Vietnam, its third war, left Los Angeles last weekend heading toward retirement in Bremerton, Wash.

The case of Paul Edward LeClair, 18, of San Anselmo who faces narcotics charges, was referred yesterday to the probation department for possible transferral to Marin Juvenile Court.

He was told to appear in municipal court on Sept. 24 to learn if he had been accepted by the juvenile authorities.

The case of a co-defendant, Herbert Travis Martin, 21, of Mill Valley, was continued to the same date for entry of plea.

Both are charged with possession of phenobarbital and hypodermic needles, and LeClair is also accused of having marijuana.

They were arrested in Sorich Ranch Park in San Anselmo Aug. 20.

TELEVISION REVIEW

The New Series: Who'll Win Out?

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The matchups of key television shows in the new season starting next week will be watched with keen interest by the industry.

For example, how will Leslie Uggams' new variety series, which replaces the Smothers Brothers on CBS-TV, do against NBC-TV's "Bonanza"?

On the same night, Sunday, how will NBC-TV's new Bill Cosby series, predicted to be a hot one, do against the long-running Ed Sullivan show and "The FBI"?

Mondays, as has been widely noted, ABC-TV's new pop recording series, "The Music Scene," will try to put a dent in "Laugh-In," and maybe even "Gunsmoke" too.

Also Mondays, Harold Robbins' new serial about the jet set, "The Survivors," with Lana Turner and George Hamilton, will go up against "Mayberry R.F.D." and the Doris Day show.

Tuesdays, NBC-TV's new Debbie Reynolds situation comedy will face "The Mod Squad" and "Lancer," a western.

The same night, ABC-TV's new 90-minute "Movie of the Week" series, an anthology of video originals, will take on such powerhouses as "Julia" and Red Skelton.

Also on Tuesdays, the CBS-TV news hour will face the new competition of an ABC-TV medical series, "Marcus Welby, M.D.," starring Robert Young. Both of these programs will be underdogs in the ratings, of course, to the Tuesday movies.

On Wednesdays, another new sawbones series, "Medical Center" (CBS-TV), will be hard-put to beat out the weekly movies of that night. But since those movies are on ABC-TV, which generally has ratings troubles because of its smaller affiliate lineup, the new entry might have a fair chance.

Another new Wednesday series, "The Courtship of Eddie's Father" (ABC-TV), based on the film about a widower and his son, will take on "The Virginian" and Glen Campbell.

Thursdays, CBS-TV will try to upset NBC-TV's strong lineup of "Daniel Boone," "Ironside," "Dragnet" and Dean Martin. CBS-TV will open up with the high-rated "Family Affair" (switched from Mondays) against "Daniel Boone."

Following "Family Affair," CBS-TV will offer the new Jim Nabors variety series, against the second half of "Boone" and the first half of "Ironside." Since Nabors formerly starred as "Gomer Pyle" in that top-rated series, his new show is considered a distinct threat to any and all competition.

Saturdays will also feature a heralded bit of competition between CBS-TV and NBC-TV. For that is the night that Andy Williams (NBC-TV) goes head-on against Jackie Gleason (CBS-TV), who thus far has been an almost unbeatable weekend video mainstay in terms of popularity.

Next 90 Days Major Ones In Peru

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Developments in the next three months likely will show whether radical or moderate forces will control the direction and leadership of Peru's revolution.

Although the military leadership as a whole stressed a need to reform the nation's social and economic structure, various factions differ on the methods to be used.

Moderates are striving to head off financial crisis in order to maintain the upper hand they tenuously hold now. Radicals, mostly non-Marxist nationalists, advocate a "go it alone" stance if necessary in negotiations with foreign financial interests. Some of them seem convinced that political considerations in the hemisphere will ease foreign economic pressures.

Important factors in the test for control are the outcome of efforts to reschedule heavy debt payments due next year to U.S. and other foreign creditors, and the result of negotiations with two major U.S. companies.

11 MONTHS AGO

A revolutionary movement of the Peruvian armed forces seized power 11 months ago.

On the fringes of the situation are subtle efforts by the Soviet Embassy to drive a wedge between American interests and the Peruvian government and push the military regime further left.

The radicals are known to represent a formidable bloc in the regime, but sources close to the government say they have voluntarily left policy direction —for now—in the hands of moderates. The radicals' leaders are said to be Gen. Jorge Fernandez Maldonado, minister of energy and mines, and Gen. Anibla Meza Cuadra, minister of transportation and communications.

The most pressing problem involves refinancing of a short-term public debt of $847 million due in the next five years. The government must pay an average $155 million a year until 1974. This represents slightly less than 20 per cent of Peru's anticipated earnings of more than $850 million a year over the same period— providing production and world market prices remain steady.

SERVICE RATE

This foreign debt service rate of 20 cents on each dollar earned compares with a Latin-American average closer to 30 per cent. Mexico's, the highest in the hemisphere, is 36 per cent.

Major creditors are U.S. private banks, $200 million; international banking organizations in which the United States has a large interest, $182 million, and West Germany, $157 million.

The Peruvian government and its creditors meet here next month to negotiate refinancing. Peru needs to improve its investment climate to strengthen its negotiating position. This seems likely to involve negotiations with two American concerns, Southern Peru Copper Corp. and International Telephone & Telegraph.

The government and ITT are currently negotiating compensation for the planned nationalization of Peru telephone operations in which the American company has a 67 per cent interest.

Southern Peru Copper and the government are working on terms involving the company's plans to invest $355 million in new mining operations.

Also still to be resolved is the question of compensation for Peru's seizure of the International Petroleum Co., a Standard Oil of New Jersey subsidiary. Peru says it is willing to compensate but alleges the company owes it $690 million for oil its field produced. The amount far exceeds the estimated value of the company's properties here.

Under U.S. law, a foreign country is liable to economic sanctions if it fails to provide adequate compensation for expropriated American property. The law has not been applied to Peru pending the outcome of talks now in progress. U.S. aid to Peru has been sharply curtailed, however.

The IPC case and the government's nationalistic policies have frightened off investors, domestic and foreign. Businessmen report a slump in construction and commercial activity. Bank credit is tight and fears of currency devaluation continue.

One bright note in the over-all picture is a favorable foreign trade performance. Exports are running well ahead of imports and gross foreign exchange reserves reached $150.1 million at the end of July, up $63.8 million over the same period a year ago. The government has effectively curbed imports but in doing so it has cut into its own revenues from import duties.

Although it registered a $236 million foreign trade surplus in 1968, Peru's gross national product increased only 1.7 per cent, a deficit in relation to the 3.1 per cent annual birth rate.

The government has failed so far in efforts to interest Russia in Peruvian investments.

But the new 14-man Russian Embassy in Lima has been busy on other fronts, especially in labor and among university students. Novosti, a Russian agency, is distributing press material to local papers.

The Russians also moved in openly to revive the nearly moribund General Confederation of Peruvian Workers, controlled by the Peruvian Communist party.

Many Peruvians and Foreigners feel that the Russians, working through leftist labor and student groups, are striving to keep nationalist "anti-imperialist" fervor at a pitch they hope will stimulate radical nationalism in the military.

Just Look Who's Leading East Division Now

NEW YORK (AP) — When Apollo 11 landed on the moon seven weeks ago, it set the pattern. Anything can happen in 1969 and now it has.

The New York Mets are in first place.

The chronicles of history will note that the Mets, lovable losers for seven long, adventure-filled seasons, made it to the top of the National League's East Division for the first time ever at precisely 8:43 p.m., EDT, last night when Ken Boswell laced a single to center, driving in Cleon Jones with the winning run in the 12-inning first game as the Mets trimmed Montreal 3-2.

That victory put the Mets one percentage point in front of the staggering Chicago Cubs, who were in the process of losing a 6-2 game to Philadelphia. When that was accomplished and Nolan Ryan had set down the Expos 7-1 on a three-hitter in the nightcap, New York had an almost unbelievable one-game lead over everybody else in the East.

"Look who's No. 1 now," the Shea Stadium scoreboard cheered, proudly displaying the N.L. standings as Mrs. Joan Payson, the club's principal owner, took a triumphant stroll in front of the Mets' dugout, smilingly acknowledging a standing ovation from the fans.

The Mets made it to the top in their 140th game—they now have 21 games to play and their magic number is 20 for clinching the pennant. In 1962, after 140 games, the Mets were last with a 35-105 record.

"Let's see . . . 1962." Boswell thought for a moment and then remembered. "Why I was in the ninth grade then. And I can tell you I wasn't dreaming of the New York Mets or first place."

But it was the second baseman who made the Met dream come true. He had five hits in the doubleheader sweep but the most important one was the single to center that brought Jones' home with the winning run in the opener.

"We came in here just like we do any other time," said catcher Jerry Grote. "We congratulated each other and we set our minds to winning the second game."

Ryan made that easy. He allowed just three hits—none until the sixth—and by then the Mets were in control with a six-run third inning.

"In 1962, I was a freshman in high school," Ryan remembered. "And I was a Houston Astro fan. I saw the Mets play once and I only went to see Casey Stengel."

Stengel was the manager of the first Met team in 1962. That was the team that finished 40-120. The first baseman on that club was Gil Hodges, who sits in the manager's office now.

"I'm just very happy," Hodges said. "I feel great. This is wonderful for all the fans, the players, the front office, everyone connected with the organization that suffered for so many years.

"Finally their patience is paying off. I just hope it can continue. We've got both feet in the door now."

New York has won six straight, seven of the last eight and 22 of the last 28 in a month-long tear that has wiped out a 9½-game deficit and vaulted them into first place.

Hockey Expansion For '70-71 Season

NHL To Go 12 To 14 Teams

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Hockey League will expand from 12 to 14 teams starting with the 1970-71 season, it was announced today.

The announcement was made at simultaneous press conferences in New York and Montreal.

APPLICATIONS

Clarence Campbell, the NHL president, said the league had received informal applications for franchises from Vancouver, Baltimore, Buffalo, Atlanta, Cleveland, Kansas City and Washington. He pointed out that Vancouver already had been assured it would be given first opportunity to obtain one of the franchises if "an acceptable applicant for a franchise complies prior to Dec. 1, 1969 with the various provisions established by the league."

The cost of each new franchise will be $6 million. When the circuit expanded from six to 12 teams three years ago, the cost was $2 million each.

Each of the 14 teams will play a 78-game schedule starting in 1970, two more than during the coming season.

In addition, the divisions will be realigned. The Chicago Black Hawks will play in another division with Los Angeles, Minnesota, Oakland, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and St. Louis. The latter six cities joined the league in 1967-68 and currently form the loop's West Division with Boston, New York, Detroit, Toronto, Montreal and Chicago playing in the East.

The league also announced plans for further realignment expected to be completed prior to the 1974-75 campaign which may include European teams.

PLAYOFFS

A new Stanley Cup playoff format will be introduced in 1971. The four top teams in each division will play the opening round in their own division. However, in the next round, the two winners in one division will meet the two survivors in the other division for the right to play in the final round. Each series will be best-of-seven.

Currently, the playoffs are intra-divisional until each division produces a winner and the two divisional titleholders meet in the Cup finals.

PREP FOOTBALL

Tempo Picking Up On Gridiron

The tempo is picking up as Marin County Athletic League football teams, most of them light and young, go into the home stretch of practice with a little more than a week to go before the 1969 season opens Sept. 19.

Things have been especially hot at Terra Linda High, where the Trojans wound up grueling two-day, run-run sessions yesterday before taking two days off from hitting prior to their scrimmage against Pinole Valley Saturday.

Head coach Don Lucas, who appears to have his Trojans primed, is down to 33 players, essentially two offensive and defensive teams.

"They're really knocking the heck out of each other," he said. "I think we have a pretty good team here. They're legweary and exhausted, but they'll be ready."

INJURIES

Three of them won't be ready any time soon.

John Hill, a junior split end, Greg Williams, a transfer from St. Louis, Mo., and tackle Jim Barker will all be out for extended periods with serious injuries.

Williams suffered a broken shoulder and will be out for six weeks while Barker will be out for two weeks with torn ligaments and Hill will be out with a broken arm.

Veteran Dewey Forry, an all-leaguer last year, has been a classic tower of strength for the Trojans.

"He's really been tremendous," Lucas said. "He's been working like a dog. He's really driving himself."

BACKUP MAN

Mike Sanderson, a transfer from Iowa City, Iowa, has been looking great as a backup to quarterback Tom Jackson, leaving Larry Kerr to a running back slot.

At Tamalpais, new head coach Mike Davlin, with only three lettermen to build on, is reporting a show of good spirit.

"It looks a lot better than last week," he said. "Our blocking up front looks tremendously improved, atlhough we may just be kidding ourselves there, since we've only scrimmaged against ourselves. But they're a great bunch of kids, with a tremendous attitude."

TWO MORE

Two more players who were nominal members of last year's varsity team have come out for action. They are Scott Palmer, and Rockney Pena.

Junior Tim McQuistin, a back, is hobbling with a bruised knee is the Indians' only important injury.

The Indians knock heads with Marin Catholic in a scrimmage Saturday.

Novato coach Al Scott, initially faced with the depressing prospect of rebuilding practically an entire team, seems a little

Michael Returns To His Studies

Master Michael Suyderhoud of San Anselmo returns to his chemistry studies at Sonoma State College this week after once again ruling the H2o skiing competition of the world.

I was hoping our astronauts would find water on the moon because I was certain Mike would become the lunar water ski champ, too. This young man of 19 summers has no peers in the sport.

In his travels this past season, Slatsy Suyderhoud visited Europe thrice and Australia, South Africa and South America once each, not to mention such other exotic places as Mira Monte Marina north of metropolitan Novato and, of course, Berkeley.

In the course of his travels Mike bagged the world overall (slalom, tricks, jumps) championship for the second time, the national title and numerous other honors.

Equals His Record Leap

In his final competition Sunday at an obscure meet in Berkeley called the "Diablo Open," Suyderhoud equalled his official world record jump of 162 feet. This didn't get much publicity, but it was an important leap because it proved Mike's world mark, set some time ago, was no fluke.

Suyderhoud will store away his aqua slats for a while now to hit the books, but he will resume international competition next season and continue for at least two more years. If water skiing becomes an official Olympic Games event as is rumored, look for Master Mike to be shooting for a gold medal.

I FORGET when the last time a Marin Countian played in the Rose Bowl, but the next time could be Jan. 1, 1970.

That is, if you believe everything Look Magazine publishes. Hm? No, I don't mean quarterback Joe Alioto of Mafia U.

Former Star At Drake

I mean, Look picks Stanford to represent the Pacific Eight Conference in Pasadena next New Year's Day and a prominent Indian is flanker Don Alvarado of San Anselmo, a sophomore who prepped honorably at Drake High School At last report Dashing Don was a second stringer at the Farm which means he'll see heap plenty action in Stanford's aerial-minded attack.

Meanwhile, I can hardly wait to see Look's basketball predictions because the publishers are going to be spending most of their time in court.

BAD NEWS COMETH from the southland: Wide receiver Paul Lee of San Rafael suffered a broken collarbone during last Saturday's U.C. Santa Barbara scrimmage and will be out from four to six weeks.

Gaucho team physician John Baumann sends word that, "If Paul's injury mends as it should, then he'll be able to return to duty later on this season."

Paul, who is also a star baseballer, is the brother of Boston Red Sox pitcher Bill Lee. The familee is very athleticlee inclined. Reallee.

A's Set Record Of Sorts

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Athletics are playing their worst baseball season, but fortunately it isn't embarassing them.

Very few people show up to see them lose.

The smallest turnout in the 12-year history of major league baseball in the Bay Area was on hand to watch the A's lose 9-4 to the Seattle Pilots last night.

Only, 1,945 fans attended. There was about as much noise in Oakland Coliseum as there was in the downtown library.

There was little chance of a fan getting hit by a foul ball, With 50,000 seats in the stadium, the odds were 25-1.

FANS GIVE UP

Since the disaster against the Minnesota Twins last weekend, in which the A's lost three of four games to tumble 8½ games behind the Twins in the American League West pennant race, only 7,098 fans have showed up for the three games played since then.

The final home stand of the season, later this month, brings in two more box office duds--the California Angels and the Chicago White Sox – which means the A's have almost no chance to draw 800,000 fans for the year.

TAILSPIN

The A's, who faced Seattle again this afternoon, have now dropped 13 of the last 16 games and five in a row.

Losing pitcher Chuck Dobson and two relief men were belted for 16 hits by Seattle last night. Steve Hovley, Wayne Comer and rookie Dan Walton each had three hits.

Dobson, who lost his 12th game of the year, gave up eight hits in six innings.

"I still can't figure this game out," he said. "I was throwing as hard as I have all year. They got a dribbler to shortstop, a blooper to the outfield and all of a sudden the score was 3-0.

BIG HITS

"When you're going bad things like that happen."

The big hits for Seattle were a two-run triple by Walton in the third inning and Comer's homer to score two more runs in the seventh inning.

Gene Brabender, the winning pitcher, gained his 12th victory against the same number of defeats.

The A's played the game without slugger Reggie Jackson, who was sent home before the game with hives.

Giants Living Too Dangerously

ATLANTA (UPI)—The San Francisco Giants are living dangerously again.

They were lucky last night even though they dropped an 8-4 decision to the Atlanta Braves, whom they meet again tonight before shoving off for home and a big 10-game stand against all the contenders in the National League West.

Despite the loss the Giants remained in first place but the combination of San Diego and Houston victories over the Reds and Dodgers, respectively, left a two-game gap from first to fifth.

SITUATION

Here is the situation as of the moment: The Giants lead the Reds and Braves by a half game each, although the Reds have a two percentage point edge on Atlanta, and the Dodgers and Astros are tied, two games off the pace.

Mike McCormick (9-9) pitches for the Giants tonight against big Ron Reed (15-9). Victory would assure the Giants of first place as they make the long trek home to start a weekend series with Cincinnati.

With the opposition bunched as it is the only hope for the Giants is to keep on winning. No one can win it for them now, so after the Reds they have to face the Braves, Astros and Dodgers in that order.

In the Commissioner's office they are set up for a possible two or three team tie. The way things are going now someone who is mathematically inclined better start figuring out a five team playoff.

BRYANT BOMBED

Rookie lefthander Ron Bryant cracked in the fourth inning. Hank Aaron started him on his way out by lining his 40th homer of the season to open the frame. By the time it was over the Braves had three runs and they added two more in the next inning of Ron Herbel for a 5-0 lead.

The Giants battled back to cut the deficit to just a run, 5-4 in the sixth against Pat Jarvis but Cecil Upshaw came on to stifle their bats over the final 3 2-3 innings while the Braves were adding three more runs off Don McMahon in the seventh.

Four NBA Referees Make Jump To ABA

NEW YORK (AP) — Four top referees of the National Basketball Association and another NBA player shifted to the rival American Basketball Association today in a heating up of the pro basketball war. The ABA announced that Luke Jackson of the Philadelphia 76ers of the NBA had agreed to play out his option and join the Carolina Cougars of the ABA. Jackson is a former Olympic star.

He is the second NBA player to go from the 76ers to the Cougars. Billy Cunningham had announced such a move previously.

Dave Bing, star player of the NBA Detroit Pistons, disclosed yesterday he would join the Washington Capitals of the ABA after playing out the remaining two years of his current contract.

The officials are Earl Strom of Pottstown, Pa.; Norm Drucker of New York, Joe Gushue of Philadelphia and John Vanack of Lansford, Pa.

Reportedly the four met with Walter Kennedy of the NBA yesterday to make demands for pay raises. Kennedy said he held no conferences with officials.

Yarbrough Qualifies With World Record

TALLADEGA, Ala. (UPI) — Leroy Yarbrough qualified for Sunday's Talladega 500 Nascar race by setting a world speed record for a closed course yesterday with a speed of 199.350 miles an hour on a 2.66 mile tri-oval course. Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., set the unofficial mark in Daytona several weeks ago with a speed of 197.573 m.p.h.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Orioles Reduce Magic Number

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

When the Baltimore Orioles refer to No. 1 they mean their leadoff man Don Buford.

One of the fundamental rules of baseball is to get the leadoff man on base. Buford knows that rule and that knowledge could mean a $15,000 jackpot for each of the Orioles.

Buford scored two of the three times he got on base. His walk and two Boston errors accounted for a Baltimore run in the first inning last night and his three-run homer climaxed a six-run fourth-inning that enabled Baltimore to shade the Red Sox, 8-7. Any combination of five Oriole wins or Detroit losses will earn Baltimore the American League's Eastern Division title.

In 26 games leading off for Baltimore, Buford batted .324 and reached base 55 times. During that span he drew 18 walks, 24 singles, seven doubles, two triples, two homers and was safe on errors twice.

15½-GAME LEAD

Baltimore kept a 15½-game lead over Detroit as the Tigers beat Cleveland, 4-1. Washington topped New York, 6-1; Chicago edged Minnesota, 3-2; Seattle rapped Oakland, 9-4, and California mauled Kansas City, 11-4.

Buford's 10th homer of the season offset circuit blows by Carl Yastrzemski and Syd O'Brien. Baltimore broke a 7-7 tie in the seventh when Boog Powell doubled after Brooks Robinson singled and Dave Johnson grounded out. Al Severinsen, the Orioles' fourth pitcher, received credit for his first win.

Mickey Lolich scattered five hits, hit a triple and won his 18th game in 26 decisions. He struck out eight Indians and was helped by Jim Northrup's 21st homer. Lolich tripled in a two-run Detroit fourth and scored on Mickey Stanley's single. Dick Ellsworth was charged with his eighth loss.

TIES JACKSON

Frank Howard tied Oakland's Reggie Jackson for the major league homer lead when he hit No. 46 with two men on base against New York. Lee Maye also drove in three runs for Washington to back Dick Bosman's 12th win against five losses. Mel Stottlemyre was tagged with his 13th loss. He has 18 victories.

Don Pavletich drove in two runs for Chicago with a single and a homer and Tommy John gained his first win since July 18 as the White Sox tripped Western Division-leading Minnesota. The Twins lost a chance to tie the game in the ninth when Cesar Tovar was cut down at the plate on a perfect throw by right-fielder Walt Williams.

Andy Messersmith won his 14th game and Bubba Morton drove in five runs with a single and a double in California's rout of Kansas City. The Royals set a major league record by using 27 players in the game, two more than the 25 previously used by the Cardinals and Braves in a single contest.

more optimistic these days, especially whenever he looks at linebacker-receiver Dave Perron.

"If he doesn't make all-league both ways, then nobody should," Scott said "He's a great all-around player. What I'd call a money player."

Scott reports that his team, which will be very, very light, is rounding into shape.

SMALL

"They've got pretty good spirit," he said. "We're real small, but they really hustle."

A pair of sophomores look to be something of an asset this year for the Hornets. That's Marty Moroski, a quarterback and Rick Reis a defensive guard.

The Hornets scrimmage against San Leandro Saturday.

A rash of injuries, major and minor, have hit fledging San Marin, where Bob Van Busked is out with head injuries, awaiting x-rays, halfback Steve Francis had a cut on his arm that required six stitches and lineman Rick Harmon last a toenail.

DEFENSE

"We've got a way to go on defense," head coach Bob Martin reported. "We'll be scrimmaging Kennedy High School of Richmond Saturday at Novato. They're considered the team to beat in the Alameda League, so we should find out what we're made of then."

At Drake, coach Bob Franceschini is very pleased with his running backs, of which he has plenty, especially Ron Biddle, and veteran Mark Silverman.

"The backfield looks very strong," Franceschini said. "They run real, hard, and we've got good depth there."

Francis is also pleased with the progress of a pair of sophomores, defensive back Rick Bozio and linebacker Jim Owens. The line, which gave Franceschini worries initially seems to be coming along.

"They surprised me," he said. "They've picked up real well, made real progress."

VS. ENCINAL

The Pirates go against Encinal in Oakland Saturday in their first scrimmage.

At Redwood, the Giants and coach Bob Troppmann are eagerly awaiting a scrimmage at Alameda, which should answer a lot of questions Saturday. Alameda was the top-ranked team in Northern California last year and has a string of 24 straight wins going for it.

Linemen Russ Gondak and Frank Pomilia are slowed down somewhat, Gondak with a bad knee and Pomilia with a bad back.

PUCCINELLI

Rick Puccinelli, brother of former baseball star Pat Puccinelli, has been the standout on defense. A senior, the 190-pounder will be at a linebacker spot, and along with 6-4, 230-pound tackle Tom Wickert, is expected to be the mainstay of a strong Giant defense.

The most inspirational guy around, however, probably isn't wearing pads. That would be new frosh coach Jess Payan, formerly of Terra Linda High School.

"He had 85 freshmen report yesterday," Troppmann said. "He's really been a help. He's the best in the county. He really knows football."

San Rafael coach Bob Muster expects to learn a little more about his Bulldogs after a scrimmage against Pacific of the Alameda League Saturday. An intra-squad scrimmage last week turned out to be just a bit inconclusive.

"It was sort of like a tug of war," Muster said. "It wasn't really satisfying."

Muster, who reports no injuries, is pleased with the linegacking work of Phil Greene, Frank Vanderbilt and Rick Sampson, as well as veteran linemen Dan Coleman and Chris Bonner.

Softballer Hurls No-Hit Victory

Perry's Delicatessen clinched at least a piece of the Class B title in the San Rafael Recreation Department's Adult Softball League yesterday while Paul Carnegie ballooned his prestige in softball circles.

Carnegie pitched a no-hitter and struck out 15 batters as Perry's ripped Foust Chevron, 15-0.

Meanwhile, Brandon Tires, which had been tied with Perry's for first place, dropped right out, coming up a loser against Sears Point Raceway, 6-1.

Game Switched

The St. Vincent of Petaluma-Justin of Napa high school football game, originally scheduled tomorrow night, has been moved up to Saturday night, it was reported today. The game will be played at Petaluma High School field starting at 8 o'clock.

Koss Team Wins

Mill Valley's Greg Schaefer singled with two out in the seventh inning last night to give Paul Koss Supply a 4-3 win over Flying Goose Sporting Goods and clinch the San Francisco A League softball title. Koss Supply has won 15 straight in the San Francisco League and is 36-32 overall.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Keep The Faith

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Take heart Montreal and San Diego. the New York Mets are in first place in the National League East.

Keep the faith San Diego and Montreal. The Houston Astros are just two games out of first place in the National League West.

Don't be embarrassed with your 44-99 record Montreal or with your 45-97 mark San Diego. Seven years ago today, in those pre-division days, the expansion Mets were in last place with 35-105 record and the new Astros were just a notch ahead of them with 56-87 mark.

SWEEP

But the Mets and the Astros have kept plugging, and last night New York swept Montreal 3-2 in 12 innings and 7-1 to move into first place a game ahead of Chicago, which lost 6-2 to Philadelphia, while Houston smashed Los Angeles 2-1 to tie the Dodgers for fourth, just two games back of first-place San Francisco.

In other N.L. action, San Francisco lost 8-4 to the Atlanta Braves but remained one-half game ahead of both Cincinnati, which was edged by San Diego 2-1, and the Braves, and St. Louis swept Pittsburgh 11-2 and 2-1.

Chicago, out of first place for the first time since the season started, went down to its seventh straight defeat before the three-hit pitching of Rick Wise.

TIE SCORE

The Cubs tied the game 2-2 in the sixth on Ron Santo's sacrifice fly, but the Phillies broke the tie on Johnny Briggs' run-scoring single in the seventh and wrapped it up with three more runs in the eighth.

Houston gained its tie with Los Angeles behind the hitting of Denis Menke and Jim Wynn, and the pitching of Denny Lemaster. Menke sparked a four-run first inning with a three-run double, Wynn hit his 31st homer with a man on, and Lemaster hurled a six-hitter.

Shortstop Woody Woodward's error proved to be Cincinnati's downfall. It came on Julio Morales' grounder in the eighth inning and allowed San Diego's Roberto Pena, who had tripled, to score. Morales also homered in the fourth. The Reds tied it in the sixth on Jim Stewart's RBI triple.

GIBSON WINS

The pitching and hitting of Bob Gibson and the hitting of Joe Torre keyed St. Louis' first-game victory over Pittsburgh. Gibson, 17-11, fired a seven-hitter, rapped three singles and a double and scored twice and Torre drove in five runs with a triple and single.

JACK HANLEY

Aaron Will Pass Mays On Home Run List

ATLANTA—Hank Aaron, now 35, is three years younger than Willie Mays. Aaron still will be hitting home runs after Mays retires. So it is inevitable Aaron is going to pass Mays and become the greatest right-handed home run hitter of all time.

When the 1969 season started Mays' home run total was 587, Aaron's 510. When the Giants started on this next-to-last road trip of 1969 Mays still was a couple of homers short of the 600 mark. While Mays was hitting only 11 homers, Aaron was belting 40. So the gap separating them was narrowed to less than 50.

THIS WILL BE the sixth season of his 16-year major league career in which Aaron has hit 40 or more homers. He doesn't believe he can catch the all-time mark of Babe Ruth (714) but he does believe he, not Mays, will windup No. 2 behind Ruth. Aaron expresses this belief in diplomatic language.

"I have no chance of catching Willie while he still is playing," said Aaron. "If Willie had played in some place that was a little fairer to him than Candlestick Park —a place like Atlanta or Chicago or Philadelphia — he might have had a chance to beat Ruth's record.

"WILLIE ADJUSTED to Candlestick but it still robs him of home runs. It's not like Willie McCovey (who tied Aaron at 44 for the National League home run title in 1963 and again is battling Aaron for this year's title). McCovey's so powerful anyway but he's not hitting against the wind like Willie has to most of the time."

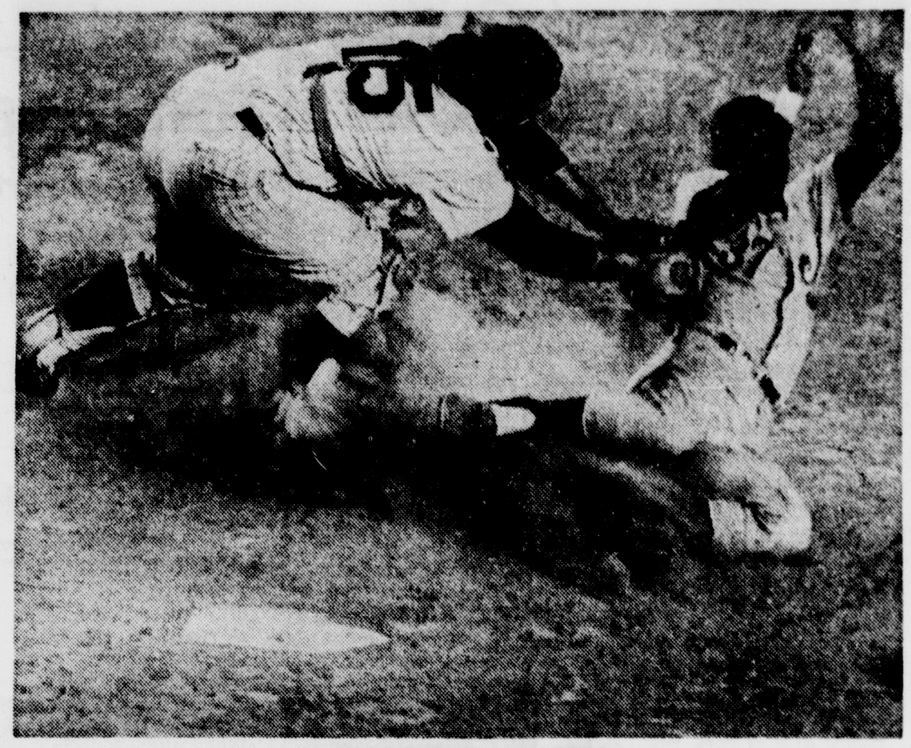
Aaron's statement that he has no chance of catching Mays while Willie still is playing may be true. But Willie, with a two-year contract extending through the 1970 season, now is planning on only one more campaign. Willie's legs have been reminding him more and more lately that he is going to be 39 next May.

AARON WILL BE 36 next February. His legs haven't begun to protest yet. Indeed, Aaron still plays 150 games or more a season. Only twice in his 16 major league seasons has Aaron played less than 150.

Aaron might have been a teammate of Mays but $50 a month more in salary prompted him to sign with the Braves in 1952 when he was 18. The Braves had purchased his contract for $10,000 from the Indianapolis Clowns, a team that once played in the American Negro League.

AFTER TWO YEARS in the Braves' farm system at Eau Claire and Jacksonville, Aaron became a regular Brave outfielder March 13, 1954, replacing Bobby Thomson — the same Bobby Thomson who won the 1951 pennant for the Giants with his "shot heard round the world." Thomson suffered a triple fracture of the right ankle that March 13 while sliding in an exhibition game.

On April 23, 1954, Aaron hit his first major league home run in St. Louis off Vic Raschi. Since then he has come a long, long way for a fellow who batted cross-handed with the Indianapolis Clowns. Dewey Briggs, a Brave scout, suggested Aaron try the regular grip with his right hand on top. He did. He hit the first pitch out of the park.



A FALLEN ANGEL

Montreal Expo Angel Hermoso was tagged out at home plae by New York Mets catcher Jerry Grote in top of the 12th inning last night in the first game of a doubleheader. The Mets scored a run in the bottom of the inning to give them a 3-2 victory. The triumph put them in first place in the National League's East Division and their 7-1 win in the nightcap kept them there. (UPI Telephoto)

Butch Buchholz of St. Louis, eked out an 8-7 victory over Ray Moore of South Africa.Ken Rosewall, the last of five Australian entries left in contention, won his quarter-final match, 8-5 over Ron Holmberg, Highland Falls, N.Y. The semifinal bracket was completed when Andres Gimeno of Spain beat Roger Taylor of England 8-7.

NEW PLAYOFF SYSTEM

Jets Picked To Win Title

By MIKE RATHET

NEW YORK (AP) — The new playoff wrinkle may wind up curling Joe Namath's Fu Manchu moustache but it won't keep him from unfurling the passes that will lead the New York Jets to the American Football League championship.

That, at least, is the way it looks from here in the AFL's last season before clasping hands with the National Football League in one giant league split into two 13-team conferences.

NEW SYSTEM

The AFL's new playoff system will make it just that much more difficult for the Jets to take their second consecutive AFL crown and move on to defend their Super Bowl championship at New Orleans in January.

Under the new system, the first-place team in the East will meet the second-place team in the West and vice versa in semifinal playoffs leading to the title game. Assuming the Jets qualify, they would have to defeat the West's top two teams to gain the throne room again.

But they have to be figured as the favorites in division races that should wind up like this:

Eastern Division—1, New York. 2, Houston. 3, Miami. 4, Buffalo. 5, Boston.

Western Division—1, Kansas City, 2, Oakland. 3, San Diego. 4, Denver. 5, Cincinnati.

The Jets, with Namath at the controls, should be the class of the East, although the Oilers, who rely on a stingy defense, could cause trouble as they did in annexing the division title two years ago.

REASONS

Namath, however, has all the complements he needs—effective receivers in Don Maynard and George Sauer, solid running backs in Matt Snell and Emerson Boozer and a strong defense that could be improved by the addition of sophomore tackle Steve Thompson.

The Oilers' defense, with super stars like linebacker George Webster and corner back Miller Farr, has been the moving force for the club because of a stuttering offense held back by lack of consistent quarterbacking. Houston still is waiting for Pete Beathard to be the answer.

The Dolphins, with Bob Griese an ever-improving passer at quarterback, figures to edge the Bills, despite the presence of O. J. Simpson, and the return of quarterback Jack Kemp. The Patriots have a new coach in Clive Rush but the same old problems.

In the West, the Chiefs are given the edge despite lack of depth and the fact that the Raiders and Chargers are just as explosive.

CONSISTENT

Kansas City, however, may prove just a bit more consistent with Len Dawson's passing and Mike Garrett's running providing sufficient points for the defense, led by what could be the strongest linebacking crew in the AFL—Bobby Bell, Willie Lanier and Jim Lynch.

The Raiders have been slowed by injuries but are a tough club, with Daryle Lamonica at quarterback firing to Fred Biletnikoff and Warren Wells. The defense, however, may not be strong enough.

That's the same problem that confronts the Chargers. They have, with John Hadl throwing to Lance Alworth and Gary Garrison, the potential to put the points on the board, but not enough strength to keep them off the board.

Petaluma Chances Better

(Second in a series on southern Sonoma County high school football prospects.)

North Bay League I football opponents will find something unusual in Petaluma this season.

The Petaluma Trojans finally appear ready to step out of their role as cellar-dwellers in the NBL-I, a role they have held since entering the league two years ago.

Head coach Howard Cadenhead, beginning his second year at Petaluma, is still looking for his first win as a head coach after a dismal 0-9 won-lost season last year. But he has returning lettermen at nearly every position and the potential to build an offense that should keep opponents guessing.

SCRAMBLER

Fred Klemenok, returning at quarterback, was a fine passer last season and, in early season workouts this year, appears to have picked up the ability to scramble, which he lacked last season.

Klemenok is backed by returning halfbacks Steve Hing and Dan Williams. Both are strong running backs, receivers, and they can throw the ball.

The battle for slotback draws some attention as Cadenhead rates returnee Rod Bell and Mike Swallow, up from the junior varsity, as even. "Both of them catch and block well," he said.

AT ENDS

Bob Garcia, another returning letterman, appears to have the inside tract on the split end spot but is being pressed by Mike Foster, out for the first time.

Returning in the line are John Fadelli, Marc Nelson, Dave Antognini, Chuck Barbera, Greg Gessaman, John Garretson and Joe Burgoim. Kurt Jastrow will be back in the defensive secondary and Cadenhead indicated Williams, who played there last season, will also see action at a defensive halfback post.

Benington Dies Of Heart Attack

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — John Benington, whose wit was as sharp as his eye for team errors, died of a massive heart attack last night at Michigan State University where he coached Spartan basketball teams for the past four seasons.

The lanky, 47-year-old head coach was found dead on the floor of the coaches' locker room at Jenison Gymnasium on the campus.

BY WIFE

Officials said his body was discovered by his wife, Barbra, and freshman basketball coach Bob Nordmann, a former star player under Benington, after he failed to arrive home for supper.

Dr. James Feurig, team physician, diagnosed the cause of Benington's death as a massive heart attack—his second in five months. He was a father of nine.

Benington's teams compiled a record of 56 victories and 38 losses at Michigan State. The Spartans tied for the Big Ten Conference championship under Benington in the 1966-67 season. Over-all Benington's teams won 32 games and lost 24 in the conference.

The balding, intensely competitive Benington often paced the sidelines, yelling directions at his players during basketball games.

He sometimes was seen pulling at the few hairs on his head during close contests, and once, when a friend called that to his attention, he grinned quickly and said, "That's why I don't have much hair."

Benington, popular with students and on the lecture tour, was an acknowledged expert on basketball methods. He co-authored a widely used textbook and frequently took part in basketball clinics.

195-137

In 13 years of coaching, Benington's teams racked up 195 victories and 137 losses.

His playing career, however, began with football.

He went to the University of San Francisco on a football scholarship after a tour of duty with the armed forces in World War II and after having been graduated in 1940 from high school in Findlay, Ohio, the town of his birth.

Benington played two years of varsity basketball at USF, becoming team captain and leading the Dons to the NIT championship in 1949.

Willie Davis Story: Mimic To Menace

It was the late Fresco Thompson who made the initial appraisal of William Henry Davis, the outfielder. The California Comet was coming to bat one night when Fresco cracked: "Oh-oh! Here comes our own Lon Chaney."

To Fresco, he was not Willie the Wisp. He was Willie the Actor.

"WILLIE," HE USED to say, "is one of the great impressionists of our day. He's like we used to be when we were kids. We'd see a Buck Jones movie and for a week we'd go around slapping ourselves on the backside pretending we were Buck Jones. We should have a marquee outside the ball park: 'Tonight, Dodgers vs. Cardinals, Presenting Willie Davis as Stan Musial.' "

Willie, you see, did imitations. The only way you could tell it wasn't Stan Musial was when he popped up. But Willie's repertoire included Ted Williams, Billy Williams, Babe Ruth, Babe Herman (usually it came out more like Babe Phelps). He had more shticks than a Catskill comic. He wasn't a ball player, he was a chameleon. Sometimes, he imitated three different guys the same night. None of them was Willie Davis. "Willie," Buzzie Bavasi used to ask him. "Why don't you arrange it so that somebody imitates YOU?"

HISTORY SHOWS that Willie Davis started to hit pitchers when they started to hit him. Willie was having the greatest spring of his career this year when a Claude Raymond fastball bounced off his right elbow and broke his arm at Vero Beach one night.

The front office watched for tell-tale signs that Willie D. would be afflicted with what the ballplayers call "tippy-toes" in the batter's box. But Willie was still stepping into, not away from pitches. That's how come the Expos' Dan McGinn shattered his cheekbone. It was broken in so many places that it was more like carpentry than surgery to repair it. Willie had more bolts sticking out of his skin than Frankenstein's monster. The doctor didn't need a scalpel he needed a screwdriver.

WILLIE NO SOONER returned to the lineup than Juan Marichal, whose control is so wobbly he walks a better every other week, stuck one in his ear.

Willie began to feel like Baseball's dartboard, but he decided he better hit the ball before it hit him.

Willie's career had hardly been horseshoes up to then. One of the best fielders in the history of the game, Willie nevertheless had gone into the history books for posting the most World Series errors in one game, one inning, and one Series. Willie had to endure a winter where he became a standard nightclub comic's joke. ("My luck is so bad lately that if I jumped out of a burning building, guess who would be holding the net? Willie Davis!")

THE WILLIE DAVIS story then is one of net courage. He came back from three errors in one inning to making the most sensational Series catch since Willie Mays' of 1954. He came back from three beanings to set an all-time Dodger consecutive game hitting streak. He has found it easier to hit a ball out of reach than out of sight. He is like a fighter who comes off the floor to score a knockout.

If the Dodgers win the pennant, they should vote Series shares to Marichal, McGinn and Raymond. They turned Willie Davis from a mimic to a menace. They took him out of acting school and into the record book. If he gets knocked down once more, to do an imitation of a .400 hitter, he may only need a mirror.

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

Bears Slowing Up For Texas

BERKELEY (AP) — The California Bears planned only two more days of double work sessions as the began to tape off today for the Sept. 20 football opener with Texas.

Coach Ray Willsey said this Saturday's scrimmage would be the final big workout before the game against the Longhorns.

The coach singled out defensive end Bob Rogers and reserve quaterback Dave Penhall for praise after two sessions yesterday.

Tomales '11' Could Win Title Again

(Ninth in a series on Marin County high school football prospects.)

Success is a funny thing in high school football. Some year it's here, the next year it's gone.

Tomales coach Jim Kovalik seems to have found a way to bottle it, put it behind bars and glue it to the team bus.

Tomales has won the North Central II League title for the past two years and in that span has piled up a 17-2 record. The record is 22-5 over the past three years. Last year, it was 8-1. And things don't appear to be letting up at all.

NO GONDOLA

Kovalik is expecting another good year, perhaps still another conference title, despite the loss of top-notch quarterback Larry Gondola through graduation.

What he does have coming back is one of the sheer running terrors of the North Central II conference. That's halfback Ron Petroni, who scored 111 points on 18 touchdowns and three extra points last season, as well as piling up 1,001 yards rushing. He was an all-conference gridder both ways.

Other top-drawer material is available. There's 215-pound tackle Mike Furlong, all-league defensive end Dan Thornton, the league's only sophomore to make all-conference last year, center and defensive end Bill Hendren, and all-league guard Bill Borello.

POSITION CHANGE

Stepping into Gondola's all-league quarterback shoes will be Mike Velloza, who played at a split-end spot last season.

"I think we have a pretty good chance to win the title again," Kovalik said. "We have two really tough games. One is against El Molino (Forestville), which gave us our only loss last year. The tough conference game should be against Calistoga."

Dixon May Go Against Oilers As Injury Mends

SANTA ROSA (AP) — Hewritt Dixon's shoulder is recovering and he may start at fullback Sunday when his Oakland Raiders open the American League season with a game against the Houston Oilers at Oakland.

Dixon, who pulled ligaments two weeks ago in an exhibition against the New York Jets, was running well in practice yesterday and declared: "The shoulder feels fine."

Coach John Madden noted that although Dixon hads been running well, "he doesn't run on the shoulder."

The coach also said that Dixon had "taken some pretty good hits" on the injured shoulder "and it hasn't bothered him."

Dixon averaged 4.3 yards a carry last season.

John Thomas' Grid Career Appears Over

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Big John Thomas' football career appears at an end.

The 260-pound offensive guard was one of five players cut yesterday by the San Francisco 49ers after he failed to rebound from tendon damage suffered in both knees in 1967. The 34-year-old lineman sat out last season and was trying a comeback as a tackle this year.

At the height of his career in 1966, he was one of the best blocking guards in pro football. He joined the 49ers in 1958 after playing basketball and football for the University of Pacific.

Also placed on waivers were defensive lineman Jack O'Malley, offensive guard Bob Hoskins, linebacker Dave Olerich and kick return specialist Charlie Leigh, obtained on waivers last week from Cleveland.

The cuts reduced the squad to 44. The final cut to 40 will be made next week.

The bottle of Bourbon you can't buy for love nor money.

At the Beam distillery, there's some Bourbon we bottled in 1911. Our chemist asked for a sample to compare it with the Jim Beam Bourbon we make today. Well, we gave him a drop, and he found out today's Jim Beam has the same good light taste that our 1911 Bourbon had. And our 1911 Bourbon tastes as good as it did in 1795. That's because the Beam formula has been part of our secret family art for six generations. We don't mind proving it scientifically. We just don't like using our only bottle of 1911 Bourbon to do it. "World's finest Bourbon since 1795."

Many Corporations Take On New Combined Names

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Several times, recently, you have answered readers unable to find their stocks listed because of company name changes. I thought stockholders were notified about such changes. — L. W.

A. They are, and furthermore, their vote is usually required to make such a change effective. Corporations go to great lengths to impress their new names on the public's consciousness, as was evident in a recent full-page advertisement repeatedly stating: "Union Tank Car is now Trans Union Corp."

Mergers, diversifications, product identification and simplification are some of the reasons why companies alter their titles. When Montgomery Ward and Container Corp. merged, a new composite name — Marcor — was adopted. Less imaginative titles have resulted from other mergers, such as Rorer-Amchem and Amerada-Hess.

Product diversification often prompts a company to divest itself of an old image, the reason for International Silver's modification to Insilco Corp. and Interchemical's to Inmont Corp. National Dairy wished to benefit from product identification when it chose Kraftco; and Seeman Brothers likewise when it became Seabrook Farms, Inc.

Q. We're a young couple with a new baby. I carry about $75,000 life insurance and we have $8,000 in savings. Our objectives are adequate retirement income and educational funds. Should our savings now go to a stock-buying program? — M. O'N.

A. Because your insurance and savings backlog appears satisfactory, you are justified in placing future spare funds in common stocks. From now on, I would definitely follow a regular stock purchase program.

Since your objectives are many years away, I would concentrate on growth and buy only those issues which seem capable of moving ahead faster than the economy as a whole. In this category I include such stocks as Boise-Cascade, American Home Products and Standard Oil of Ohio.

NEWEST OLDSMOBILE FOR 1970

This Cutlass Supreme Holiday coupe and a companion convertible represent an important added element to Oldsmobile's intermediate lineup for 1970. It is identified by its own roof line, body shape, ornamentation and interior appointments. Cars will be on sale in Marin next Thursday at Scripture Oldsmobile, Inc., San Rafael.

Market Is Mixed Near Day's Close

NEW YORK (UPI) — Profit taking turned stocks mixed today after two successive winning performances. Trading was active.

Some early strength stemmed from official hints that record high interest rates may come down, and hopes that something encouraging might emerge from President Richard M. Nixon's strategy session on Vietnam tomorrow.

Among the most active issues were Gulf Oil, Texaco, Atlantic Richfield, Massey-Ferguson, Kinney National, Occidental and Texas Gulf Sulphur.

Activity in the oils reflected speculation over Wednesday's bidding for acreage in Alaska's North Slope region, believed to be one of the world's richest petroleum fields.

Much of the oil group was in full retreat, although there were a few point-sized gainers noted. There appeared to be some feeling that some of the oil concerns may have gone overboard in their bidding. "There's oil up there," commented one analyst, "but profits still are several years away."

Electronics generally backed off after climbing sharply in the previous session. Steels, chemicals and motors traded in relatively narrow ranges. So did rails, airlines and aircrafts.

The 1969 budget of Petroleos Mexicanos, the Mexican government oil monopoly, is $1,345,440,000, the agency says.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

Lester Gorsline Associates Expected To Go International

A Tiburon-based organization, little publicized but which has had projects in 36 states, employs 40 persons at its 1550 Tiburon Boulevard offices and works with a large group of outside consultants — doctors, scientists, sociologists, architects and many others — is Lester Gorsline Associates.

This firm, specializing in planning health education facilities, hospitals and medical centers, has been acquired by Arthur D. Little, Inc., international research and management consulting firm in Cambridge, Mass., in an exchange of stock and will operate as a Little subsidiary.

Actually the two companies have already been working together about a year on health care planning and related problems, with about 70 of their professional staff members jointly engaged in these projects. Now with the weight of the Little organization and its full staff of some 800 research people and consultants more readily available, it appears that Gorsline will expand its operations internationally.

Gorsline has been in this work about 22 years. The company has been in business in Tiburon since 1960 and incorporated since 1962. Recent work in the west has included planning for the Stanford School of Medicine, University of California Schools of Medicine and Veterinary Medicine at Davis, University of Colorado Medical Center, University of Hawaii Schools of Medicine and Public Health and University of Washington health sciences.

JOHN F. O'CONNELL of Kentfield has been elected executive vice president of the Bechtel Co. He is executive sponsor of Bechtel's engineering and construction in petroleum refining, chemical, petrochemical and oil field development and of the manpower services and public relations departments. He joined the company in 1942 at Sausalito as labor coordinator for Marinship. Successively he became director of all Bechtel's labor relations, vice president, director and senior vice president in 1967.

FORMER SAN RAFAEL RESIDENT Paul W. Driscoll, one-time production manager and general foreman for Fairchild Semiconductor's diode manufacturing facility here, is now plant manager of the company's integrated circuit and transistor facility on the Navajo Reservation at Shiprock, N.M., which was dedicated this month.

KARL AND ANNE UNTERMANN are celebrating an anniversary sale tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday at West End Nursery, San Rafael, but this one is not just "another anniversary." It is the 60th for this business, which has remained at the same location and in the same family all this time. Congratulations.

Newest Untermann to join the nursery staff on a full-time basis is younger son Thomas, recently married and a graduate of University of California at Davis. Qualified by both his previous part-time work at the nursery and agricultural training to carry on the family standard, he's decided this is his cup of Jasmine.

Survey Gives Tam Board Some Valuable Guides

Tamalpais High School District has been given a look at itself through the eyes of its public, its students and its teachers in an "attitude survey" by Field Research Corp. which was submitted to the district board this week.

The look may not be equally accurate as regards the three views. Of some 22,000 registered voters in the district, the survey sample included only 624, while of approximately 6,000 students it took in 704, and of the faculty it polled 224, or approximately one-half of the total teaching staff.

DESPITE THESE disparities, however, what the survey found can prove a useful guideline for the board of trustees and administration in plotting the future course of the Tam district.

It may even help the board to dispell what was the most disturbing finding by Field Research in its sampling of faculty attitudes. Said the report:

"In judging the way different groups relate to teachers' concerns, the teachers say their own principals are most understanding and the board of trustees least understanding, even less so than parents."

THIS MAY ACCOUNT in part for the fact that 77 per cent of the faculty members polled felt they should have a bigger voice in educational policy and 60 per cent wanted more voice in administrative policy.

On the other hand, this desire for more "teacher power" may be merely a natural one. Sixty-eight per cent of the students polled thought they should have more voice in running the schools.

THE SURVEY'S greatest potential value may be in its findings regarding the relative importance attached to various teaching areas and its ratings of present performance in them.

Most important to the voters sampled is teaching of English, with 84 per cent rating it "very important." Seventy-seven per cent of teachers felt there should be more emphasis on English. But only 51 per cent of the students thought it very important.

Sixty per cent of the teachers rated present teaching of English as good or excellent, as did 57 per cent of the students but only 40 per cent of the voters sampled.

At the other end of the scale of importance in view of all three — public, teachers and students — lies physical education and athletics, rated very important by only 28 per cent of voters, 21 per cent of teachers, and 33 per cent of students. Yet the coaching and "phys ed" teaching were rated good or excellent by 76 per cent of students, 72 per cent of teachers, and 59 per cent of the public sample.

Interestingly, voters and students were in agreement that fine arts is over-emphasized in the Tam district, with only 32 per cent of voters and 27 per cent of students feeling it very important. But 41 per cent of teachers thought it needs still more emphasis.

THESE AND OTHER findings of the survey regarding what is considered important by whom and how well it is being taught could prove very useful to that "least understanding" district board in charting the future course of the three high schools.

They could well make the survey worth many times the $18,500 it cost the taxpayers of the Tam district.

"But, Still I Hear That Cold Eerie Laugh, 'Ho . . . Ho . . . Ho . . .'!"

The Disappearing Mantids

We never actually saw them, but we did have an egg-case. It was in our garden in May and June and when we cut it open, it was empty. We assumed our garden would be crawling with mantids and we promised to keep our readers posted on the life cycle of mantids in Marin.

Months have passed and we have not seen a single one. By now they should be almost four inches long and almost tripping us in the garden path. Instead, we fear they were killed by some residual insecticide which we put out for ants in March, or provided lunch for our robbins or towhees.

Next year, maybe.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Legislature's Veto Session May Be Submitted To People

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — It's beginning to look like the people of California will get a chance next November to vote on whether they want to dispense with the "veto" session of the state legislature, which is under way in Sacramento this week.

Leadership in both the Assembly and Senate expressed a favorable attitude toward a constitutional amendment next year giving the voters a choice as to whether they want to restore authority of the governor to "pocket veto" bills passed by the legislature, or whether they want the present system continued.

BEFORE the people voted an amendment depriving the governor of this power, he was able to shelve measures he did not wish to sign without explanation, simply disregarding them after the legislature adjourned.

Under the new amendment, the governor is mandated to act upon every measure within 30 days after adjournment, either signing the bill into law or returning it to the legislatue as the veto session opens, with an explanation of why he did not sign same.

Then the legislature has five days to make up its mind as to whether it wishes to over-ride his veto, and write the measure into law. There is no provision in the constitution as to what would happen if the governor "forgot" to act — whether the bill would become law or be forgotten.

IN THEORY, the veto session has its merits. In practicality, it boils down to being nothing more than an expense to the taxpayer, productive of no results.

Since these veto sessions started several years ago, the legislature has over-ridden no executive veto, and it is not likely to in the foreseeable future.

This is because seldom are there enough votes in the legislature, as it takes a two-thirds vote in both houses to say a bill becomes law without the governor's signature.

Both Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, speaker of the Assembly, and Howard Way, president pro-tem of the upper house, have have announced the next year they will support legislation to submit the matter again to the people.

HOLDING the veto session is a costly control on the power of the governor, especially as it produces no results. Legislators get transportation to Sacramento, $25 a day expenses if they answer the roll call, plus the other emoluments of legislative office. Of course, their salaries go on anyhow.

An attempt to eliminate the session this year was made by Sen. Albert E. Rodda, D-Sacramento, but Rodda's bill got little consideration. However, with the backing of the legislative leadership such a measure may be passed.

Politics Holding Back Better Postal Service

(Reprinted from Wall Street Journal)

From all accounts Congress is likely to reject any meaningful reform of the postal service — an unfortunate but nonetheless predictable outcome.

The chief trouble with the post office, after all, is its thorough immersion in partisan politics. Congressmen enjoy playing for votes by manipulating postal rates and workers' pay, whatever the results may be in postal service.

So it can't be counted surprising that many congressmen are cool to the administration plan to turn the post office into a public corporation that would set its own rates and salaries, raise funds by selling bonds and largely balance its books. The lawmakers' rationalizations of their opposition, however, are likely to sound ingenuous to most citizens.

ONE CONTENTION is that the post office is not just a business but a government agency with major public responsibilities that might suffer if put in the hands of a public corporation. It's surely true that the post office does have large public responsibilities, but it's equally true that in recent years it has become more and more inept at handling them.

Perhaps there are reasons to quarrel about the precise mechanics of prying politics out of the postal service. Yet a sensibly constituted and widely run corporation could hardly fail to do a better job with the mails than the present setup has done.

The demands on the service are growing enormously. The post office now handles about 84 billion pieces of mail a year, more than double the figure for 1945, and the future trend is clearly upward.

DESPITE ALL of the talk of the coming wonders of zip code, the fact is that mail still is sorted manually into partitioned bins, in much the same way that Benjamin Franklin originally planned it. The speed and regularity of service steadily diminish.

The more candid congressmen may admit that they don't want to lose the campaign support of big mailers, companies that use the mails heavily for distribution of publications and advertising. If rates were set by a public corporation, these mailers no longer would find it necessary to curry favor with Congress — a development that most of the public could count as a blessing.

THE POSTAL unions also play a part in the opposition to the administration's plan. The unions have grown accustomed to bargaining with legislators for higher pay, and then swinging electoral support to those lawmakers who befriend them. A postal organization that would end that sort of vote-buying surely would be in the general public's interest. . . .

Meanwhile the postal service continues to spiral downhill and rates go on rising. And there's no question at all about whom the public can blame for that.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Sept. 11, 1959

The 1,700-acre Silva ranch, between Highway 101 and Tennessee Valley, was purchased at an undisclosed price for development as a residential area.

Actor Paul Douglas of stage and screen died at his home in Hollywood of a heart attack at the age of 51.

20 YEARS AGO

Marin County supervisors cleared the way for establishment of state parks at Tomales Bay and Stinson Beach by withdrawing their demand that the property revert to the county if not used for recreation.

Eighty-seven contestants, from 11 to 63 years old, ran in the 39th Dipsea Race. Paul J. Juette of Berkeley, a University of California student, was the winner.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A YOUNG beauty was watching drill at West Point one afternoon. Suddenly a rifle volley rang out, and the startled young lady shrank back directly into the arms of a cadet standing behind her. "I'm so panic-stricken by the sound of rifle fire," she apologized. Forgive me, won't you?"

"Don't mention it," smiled the cadet — obviously headed for the Pentagon. "Let's saunter over and watch the artillery."

ONLY IN California, surmises Paul Nathan, could this happen: He ran into a crestfallen Pasadena father who just had been advised that his only son, a student at Cal Tech, had flunked golf.

Surplus Of Pets Leads To Cruelty

Kittens to give away — kittens free — puppies free, puppies cheap, so run the "ads" by people who do not know what to do with all the surplus kittens and puppies. They say they want to get good homes for them, but so few people wish to take them.

When people give kittens or puppies away, they should follow up and see if the people who take them really give them a good home. I am thinking of one "good" home when the kitten grew up and had her own kittens, the person who promised to give it a good home took the mother cat and the kittens and dropped them off at one of the school yards in Novato early this summer. She claims she didn't have the heart to give them to the Humane Society. How can people be so cruel?

I've seen children outside of the stores with kittens for any passerby to take. Purposely watched one girl about 10 who took a kitten and after carrying it for two blocks, put it down on the street and ran away.

If only owners of female cats and dogs would realize what a surplus of kittens and puppies there are, and have their females spayed. This is the only certain way of preventing the female from breeding. Suppose it does cost for spaying, isn't it worth it because the owners then would not be confronted every few months with a litter of kittens or puppies to dispose of? . . .

Death Of Ho Removes Best Hope For Vietnam Treaty

WASHINGTON — The death of Ho Chi Minh is judged in all the assessments as a grave blow to Hanoi. He was father figure who, in the ordeal of 30 years of war and occupation, stood for the independence of the Vietnamese people. However incapacitated he may have been in recent months, there is no substitute.

But it is also very likely to be a blow to the hope of peace by negotiation. Ho alone had the authority to put the stamp of approval on a compromise settlement which might have ended the bloodletting and made eventual American withdrawal possible. His heirs have nothing like his unifying force or his authoritarian voice.

For Ho, death in the midst of a still-inconclusive war, taking such a hideous toll in misery and suffering, is the final grim irony.

AT THE END of World War II, Ho entered into long and painstaking negotiation in Paris for the independence of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam, which was his creation. After many months he believed he had obtained agreement insuring his role in an independent nation in which French commercial interests would be respected. Returning home, he stopped in New Delhi for a meeting with Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

He told the Indian leader he was confident the agreement was workable. As Nehru reported their conversation to me, Ho envisaged a form of socialist gradualism that would mean live-and-let-live in the developing nation.

This may have been a naive view. Nehru tended to look at communism through his own rose-colored glasses.

THE EXPERIMENT died aborning. The French colonials, backed by the military, vetoed the grant of independence, if indeed it had been that, by Paris.

The French, propping up Bao Dai, the puppet emperor who had no popular following, fought the war with foreign legionnaires, offered by the graduating classes out of St. Cyr, sacrificed in a hopeless conflict.

This was the first great error, original sin. It has been compounded again and again in the long, agonizing ordeal costing to date 38,000 American lives and at least $100 billion in American treasure.

The first compounding of the error has been for this observer the most difficult to understand. The United States set out to give the French blank-check backing for that colonial war.

IN THE FIRST years of the Eisenhower administration, Washington was pouring $800 million a year into the French treasury to underwrite the cost of the war and sustain the franc. As the French fell at Dienbienphu, armed intervention by the United States hung narrowly in the balance, with the then vice president, Richard M. Nixon, hinting at the need to send in American ground troops. President Eisenhower's cooler judgment prevailed.

The compounding of the initial error continued after the country was partitioned in 1954 between north and south. One by one the steps were taken in a Via Dolorosa leading up to the present impasse.

President Kennedy, sanctioning the sending in 1961 of 10,000 armed "advisers" authorized to fire at the enemy, took one of the critical steps. Lyndon Johnson was the grievous compounder, building up the American presence to an extent that overwhelmed Vietnam with an Americanized war.

Many 'Ifs' Surrounding U.S. Role In Thailand

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

An atmosphere of unreality surrounds the talks between the United States and Thailand over eventual withdrawal of American troops from the territory of that small U.S. ally.

The unreality springs from the fact that neither side particularly wanted the talks now, that neither foresees the immediate possibility of American withdrawal on a massive scale, and that their outcome depends on other events whose final outline still must be determined.

THE CIRCUMSTANCES arose out of Thai irrigation with American doves who feared that a contingency defense plan worked out by the United States and Thailand in 1965 could lead to U.S. involvement in "another Vietnam."

The Thais have said emphatically they do not want U.S. help in dealing with their own Communist-led guerrillas which today are not believed to number more than about 1,500 in the jungled hills of the northwest. They also say they see no particular need for the continued presence of some 48,000 American military men after the issue of Vietnam and Laos have been settled.

The contingency plan which American military planners hoped would just quietly fade away provided that, in the event of an attempted large-scale Communist invasion of Thailand through Laos, American and Thai forces would move into Laos to preserve a buffer zone.

THE PLAN would not fade away and the outcry in Congress and elsewhere led the suspicious Thais to believe it was time to declare their independence.

Hence the talks.

Whether or not this is the time for the talks, eventually major decisions must be reached.

Among these is the stance the United States is finally to assume in the Pacific.

SINCE 1950, this stance has taken a 180-degree turn and appears now to be taking still another turn.

It has ranged first from a decision to omit South Korea from the U.S. defense perimeter to a further decision that Southeast Asia could not be defended against communism. In both cases the United States reversed itself.

In Thailand the United States has spent roughly $500 million on construction of six airfields and more millions on construction of a deep water port at Sattahip.

The decision whether the United States will continue to maintain a presence there after settlement of the Vietnam and Laos issues must depend in part at least on the outcome of controversies over U.S. bases in Japan, Okinawa and the Philippines.

A further decision must be reached on how to protect the Thai economy from the devastating effect of U.S. withdrawal. American dollars have brought prosperity to Thailand but they also have changed its culture.

Commuters Can Face Challenge Of Everything But Quick Route

Marin's resourceful commuters are facing new challenges these days. Many drivers have dodged San Anselmo's Hub for years by using Center Boulevard, San Anselmo Avenue, Sycamore Avenue or all three.

With a $211,000 remodeling project now in progress at the Hub, drivers have found that bulldozers, back hoes and flagmen are periodically blocking off half the lanes on these little escape routes.

Farther along, in Kentfield, drivers still face two detours stemming from the flood control project, which by now have the feeling of permanent routes.

In Larkspur, last spring's bottleneck has been magically converted to a spacious four-lane road.

ONE GETS the feeling, watching the routes shift and change, that wer are being tested, much like laboratory animals in a maze. When one route is learned, it is blocked off and another substituted. Our quickness and adaptability are being sounded.

The commuter is notoriously spartan, and if he had a fox gnawing at his vitals he would doubtless ignore it until he reached the office aspirin supply. He can cope with the maze.

But one day in the shining future, all the road work will be done and all the streets will lie open and straight between the home and the job.

When that day comes, the commuter will venture out onto the unaccustomed new road, blink a little in the bright dawn, and freeze in dismay, longing for the comfort of his familiar old maze.

And in a little while you will find him puttering around the side streets in second gear, looking for the short cuts that no longer exist.

NOBODY ASKED, but it appears the Black Student Union still has to prove its charge that the College of Marin administration is racist and repressive.

The dispute is over an $800 bill for damages which the administration says resulted from a BSU-sponsored rock concert last month.

The only point at issue, when the rhetoric is peeled away, is whether the damage can actually be linked to the concert. If it can, the BSU should pay up — as it agreed to do when it signed up to use the college gymnasium. If it can't, the administration should pay up or find out who was responsible.

Meantime, it appears to serve little purpose but that of raising tensions to start name-calling over the case. None of us likes to pay bills, but that doesn't make us victims of racism.

Besides, if all the terms of outrage are expended in little squabbles like this, what will be left to say when a real outrage comes along?

FIRST IMPRESSIONS on a new beat:

The topiary hedge outside Larkspur City Hall spells out "City of Larkspur," and for some reason it's a homey, reassuring touch.

Corte Madera has a mammoth swath of town park that some cities in Marin would give eye teeth for. And an ample public safety building that some other cities (Sausalito fairly leaps to mind) might ransom their city managers to get.

Surprise Move By President To Sleepy Town On Potomac

WASHINGTON — President Richard Nixon has just moved the White House from San Clemente, Calif., to Washington, D.C. The President indicated he might spend part of the winter in Washington, and he has asked his chief advisers and cabinet officers if they would move there temporarily so he could confer with them.

When asked why the President had chosen D.C. for his fall headquarters, an administration spokesman said:

"The President has always had a warm spot in his heart for Washington, and with communications the way they are these days it's just as easy for him to handle the nation's business from Washington as it is from San Clemente, Calif. Besides, if anything important happens, the President can always fly back to San Clemente."

WHILE ADMINISTRATION officials, for security reasons, refuse to discuss where the President will live, it is rumored that he has taken a house located at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, overlooking the Washington Monument on one side and Lafayette Park on the other. Neighbors in the area report that they have seen Secret Service men looking over the grounds and checking the neighborhood.

When a reporter asked the Nixon spokesman if the President would live in this particular house, the spokesman replied: "We are looking at several houses in Washington and I believe it would be premature to say which one the President will live in."

THE CHOICE of Wasnington as the President's autumn White House came as a surprise to many residents of this sleepy town on the Potomac. The chamber of commerce naturally was delighted.

The man at the chamber office told me, "The fact that the President has selected Washington to live in this fall is a feather in our cap. It's going to bring in tourists and newspapermen, and we might even get to see some dignitaries from abroad. I guess you could say the President has put Washington on the map."

The manager of the town's largest department store said, "I don't know what effect the President's move here will have on business, but we do need a shot on the arm."

At the same time the chief of police said, "It could cause traffic problems, and I'm not sure I have enough men to handle it. But any time the President of the United States selects this place to live, even if it's for a short time, I think we should consider it an honor."

A NEIGHBOR of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue didn't' seem too pleased about the President moving there. "We're quiet folks around here and we don't like to be bothered by a lot of commotion. Of course, the President has a right to live anywhere he wants, but I'm checking the zoning regulations just to make sure no one's violating any of the rules."

Another neighbor said, "It won't make no difference to me. Everyone's all excited about the President coming here, but I'm not going to change my way of life just because he wants to live in Washington for a while."

On the whole the reaction to the President moving to Washington has been good.

One high school student said, "I guess this will stop people from calling us a tank town."

ONE EFFECT the news of the President's move has had is that hotel keepers and restaurant owners have already raised their prices. While there has been some bitterness about this, one hotel owner said, "Hech, with the President in town we're going to have to put on more help. The people coming here to visit him are going to demand more service. We're not gouging anyone."

The real problem the people of Washington face is that they don't know how long the President is going to stay.

One merchant said, "We'll probably spend a lot of money fixing up the town and then Mr. Nixon will decide to move on to some place else. I know the President doesn't like to stay in one spot too long, and I think it's a mistake — just because he says he wats to live in Washington today — to assume that he still wants to make his headquarters here tomorrow."

Marijuana Raid Figure In Denial

Paul Stanton Gladman, 22, of Stinson Beach, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Superior Court to three drug charges stemming from a $5,000 marijuana raid at a Stinson Beach motel Dec. 15.

He is accused of selling marijuana and offering to sell LSD on Nov. 27 and selling marijuana on Dec. 15.

A jury trial was set for the week of Jan. 12.

Drug agents said they confiscated $5,000 worth of marijuana at the time of the arrest.

The case of a co-defendant, Robert Leighton Leoni, 23, of Bolinas, was continued until Monday for entry of plea.

Hearing Improvement Course Is Announced

The course will provide a program of auditory retraining for those with hearing loss of varying degrees. It will be held at Marin General Hospital 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays and is open to anyone over 16 years of age.
